SECRET SERVICE HORRIFIED

Nixon Makes Dawn Plea to Protesters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unable to sleep, President Nixon went to the Lincoln Memorial at dawn Saturday and pleaded with young peace demonstrators for understanding of his efforts to end the Vietnam war.

Secret Service agents were horrified — in the President's words — that he left the barricaded White House to confront student protesters at the Lincoln shrine.

Telling a newsman of his encounter with the young people, Nixon said:

"I told them that I know you think we are a bunch of so-and-sos — I used a stronger word to them — I know how you feel. You want to get the war over.

"Try to understand what we are doing. Sure, you came here to demonstrate. Go shout your slogans on the Ellipse. That is all right. Just keep it peaceful."

This was only a few hours before tens of thousands of opponents of the war gathered in the Ellipse — a tree-fringed park between the grounds of the White House and the Washington Monument — to make speeches and sound off.

The White House grounds were sealed off completely. Buses were parked bumper to bumper across sidewalks and street intersections and all around the rear of the White House grounds. Police allowed persons with official passes through check points.

Details of regular Army troops were standing by out of sight in nearby buildings, including the Executive Office Building next to the White House.

Nixon's highly unusual personal encounter with students at the Lincoln shrine perhaps had no parallel. It was a palpable attempt to try to calm the campus outcry that greeted his announcement April 30 that he was sending U.S forces into Cambodia.

Some of the students remained unconvinced, including two 20-year-old sophomore girls from Syr-

UAW Union Chief Walter Reuther, Wife Killed in Jet

6 Burned Bodies in Wreckage

PELLSTON, Mich. (UPI) — Walter P. Reuther, one of the most powerful figures in organized labor as president of the United Auto Workers union, was killed late Saturday night in the crash of a small leased executive jet near here.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said five other persons, including Reuther's wife and UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock, were killed when their leased Lear executive jet missed the runway of Emmet County Airport and crashed about three miles southwest of here at about 9:33 p.m.

FAA spokesmen in Washington said according to the official flight plan, the plane was scheduled to leave Detroit at 8:44 p.m. and was due at Pellston at 9:18 p.m. Authorities said it was raining at the time.

Residents said they saw a ball of fire apparently caused by gas tanks on the plane exploding on impact. The bodies were burned beyond recognition and were in the main part of the plane.

Nixon Cites Gains in Cambodia Drive

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Asserting that success in the first nine days of the allied military sweep in Cambodia exceeded all expectations, the White House said Saturday that American and South Vietnamese forces had already captured more enemy ammunition than the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong had expended in Vietnam in the first four months of this year.

In making the report, the White House issued a detailed list of Allied and enemy casualties and of captured and destroyed enemy materiel, installations and supplies. Administration officials went further than President Nixon did at his news conference Friday night to express belief that the operation need not foreclose peace talks with Hanoi and broader disarmament negotiations with the Soviet Union.

The move into Cambodia by Allied forces last week was aimed, according to the Administration, to destroy a complex of enemy bases preventing North Vietnam and the Viet Cong from expanding their activities in South Vietnam.

Nixon said at his news conference that United States units would begin withdrawing from Cambodia this week in the light of what was described here as swift military success. However, White House officials admitted Saturday that despite earlier expectations the invading forces had failed to discover or capture the main enemy headquarters originally believed

Finch Hits Reagan, Agnew Talk

60,000 Protest Near White House; Nixon's Men Listen

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antiwar demonstrators, estimated by police at 60,000 strong, protested peacefully beside a barricaded White House Saturday and found the Nixon administration in a conciliatory mood.

Scattered clashes between police and roving bands of protesters started a few hours later and continued into the night. None was serious.

Police moved in methodically to break up the groups of demonstrators wherever they formed, sometimes dodging bottles and cherry bombs.

City officials reported a total of 124 arrests.

About 200 people sat down in a downtown intersection three blocks north of the White House shortly after 8 p.m. and several persons were arrested when they refused police orders to disperse. The crowd swelled to near 1,000 and harassed police with bottles and taunts and chants of "Arrest Richard Nixon."

THREE POLICE officers told a newsman Saturday night they were under orders not to use tear gas, although it had been used earlier in the day. "I think we should use it now, it's getting rough," one said. "But the word is, 'no gas.' "

Even as police sought to scatter that gathering, another, smaller group filtered into the Dupont Circle area, five blocks further north, a favored gathering point for youthful dissenters. Windows were broken in a bank, two drug stores, a liquor store and several small shops.

The incidents were a continuation of small confrontations that began in the late afternoon as the peace rally on the Ellipse about 200 yards south of the White House broke up.

A few hours after the rally ended police hurled tear gas to disperse roving youthful bands, one of which tried to tip over a bus that was part of the barricade around the White House.

Another volley of tear gas was fired at several hundred demonstrators outside the Justice Department after police were pelted with bricks and bottles.

BEFORE THE LATE afternoon incidents occurred, the hastily organized rally, which officials had feared would erupt in violence because of its lack of formal organization, had been as peaceful as a picnic.

But the speeches pouring out over the loudspeaker system sounded a different note. They were filled with anger and bitterness, and not a few obscenities, directed at the occupant of the White House a few hundred yards away.

There also were demands that the strike of students that had closed hundreds of colleges during the week be widened to become a general strike throughout the nation.

"We'll shut down offices, communities, factories until we end the war," said Ron Young, coordinator of

Q. Does the Long Beach Unified School District have an official policy prohibiting teachers from wearing beards? I teach in a Long Beach high school, and would like to grow a neat, well-trimmed beard. However, two years ago, at the back-to-school faculty meeting, our principal made it clear that he would not tolerate any of his teachers wearing a beard, and several shaved theirs off before the first day of school. Again this year one young teacher was told to get rid of his beard, and

CITY'S POLICY BLAMED

Economic Slide Hits L.B. Airport Hard

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

In the opinion of a large segment of the local aviation community, Long Beach Airport has become an economic disaster area.

The airport business slump has far outstripped the decline in the general economy and exceeds the predictions made last fall when the City Council reversed a policy of long standing by voting down proposals for new terminal facilities and additional airline service.

The slide has come faster to Long Beach than to the classic example of Chicago's Midway, which was termed a "ghost airport" in 1962 after airline service was diverted under similar circumstances.

In the six months since the Long Beach ban on airport development, major airlines have cut service to the bone, regional carriers headquartered here have been forced to reschedule most of their flights to other areas, one has gone out of business and others have been denied landing rights assigned by higher government agencies.

Since last November, more than a dozen aviation service firms have closed their doors in the face of bankruptcy or have moved to more promising locations.

Employment at firms on the airport, exclusive of McDonnell Douglas, has diminished by an estimated 500 jobs in the same period and at least as many more have been denied to Long Beach workers because of the reluctance of new industries to locate at a faltering airport.

The combined payroll loss to Long Beach from these sources runs into millions of dollars annually, according to the re-

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Antiwar Solon Shoots Self in Front of Wife

Mass. Rep. H. James Shea, 30, the Newton Democrat who drafted landmark legislation challenging the constitutionality of the Vietnam war, fired a bullet into his head Saturday as his horrified wife looked on.

"I witnessed the event — I was in the room at the time," said Mrs. Shea. She was composed but barely able to control her voice as she spoke to newsmen at police headquarters.

She told them "political pressures" had led to her husband's taking his own life.

Police Chief William F. Quinn said:

"Mrs. Shea said her husband had been troubled lately because of political pressures. International events have been mentioned to us. Nothing I know of on the local level."

Shea, who once described himself as an "activist in the legislative process," was serving his first term in the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

He was the sponsor of a Vietnam war bill which said Massachusetts citizens do not have to fight in undeclared wars. The purpose of the measure, signed last month by Gov. Francis W. Sargent, is aimed at making the U.S. Supreme Court rule on the constitutionality of undeclared wars, such as Vietnam.

The director of the California State Fair has been fined $1,000 after he pleaded "no contest" to charges that he failed to file federal income tax returns from 1950 to 1955.

San Francisco federal judge William T. Sweigert levied the fine on Harrison F. Cutler, who owes the government $12,000 in back taxes, interest and penalties.

Judge Sweigert said about 90 per cent of Cutler's federal taxes were paid through withholding even though he had not filed.

PITCH DUE

Mayor Sam Yorty and officials from Los Angeles are scheduled to make a final sales pitch today in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, to become host of the 1976 Summer Olympic Games.

The Los Angeles delegation arrived Friday for its presentation before the International Olympic Committee and other sports groups. Today, the committee will choose among Los Angeles, Montreal and Moscow.

ABDICATES

Bernard "Bernie" Cornfeld, the one-time Brooklyn, N.Y., social worker, abdicated Saturday in Geneva as head of Investors overseas Servlies, the mutual funds empire that brought him wealth, private jets, mini-skirted girl aides and two Swiss castles.

Leaving with Cornfeld, who founded the firm, was his top lieutenant, Edward M. Cowett. They continue as board members, however.

Their departures were seen as a move by the firm to pave the way for U.S. or European financial groupings to come to the rescue of the organization whose common stock lost almost $200 million in value in the past few weeks, outpacing Wall Street's slump.

Taking over from Cornfeld as board chairman, at least temporarily, is Britain's Sir Eric Wyndham White, a former chairman of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. Richard M. Hammermann, Miami-born head of the IOS insurance operation, who recently was appointed to lead a cost-cutting drive, succeeded Cowett as president of the parent company, IOS Ltd.

A bachelor at 42 Cornfeld wears flashy clothes, surrounds himself with squads of girls in micro-minis, owns two castles and throws all-night parties that have become a legend.

SPECIAL

About 800 retarded youngsters turned out Saturday to participate in Long Island's first Special Olympics, presided over by Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy.

Looking tanned and wearing a cool, green summer dress, Mrs. Kennedy said of the games — especially designed for retarded youngsters — "A pasttime born of love given by parents that makes all this possible."

Mrs. Kennedy represented the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation which in 1968 inaugurated the games. Last year 50,000 youngsters across the nation participated in regional meets. This year, twice as many will have competed before the 1970 International games are held in August.

L.A. Board to Meet, Striking Teachers to Vote on Pact

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Board of Education scheduled a special session this morning to consider a proposed settlement to the four-week teachers' strike which already has been approved by leaders of the United Teachers of Los Angeles.

The rank-and-file membership of the union, which represents about half the 25,000 teachers in the natain's second largest school district, planned a midafternoon meeting to vote on whether to return to their classrooms Monday, if the school board accepts the pact.

The compromise contract was drawn up by federal mediator Benjamin Aaron, a UCLA law professor, from "best offer" proposals submitted by both sides last week.

Robert Ransom, president of UTLA, told newsmen that if the teachers vote for ratification, and if the school board accepts, the approximately 10,000 striking teachers will return to their classrooms Monday morning.

Two board members have unofficially given their approval of the strike settlement.

Others either have refused to comment or have expressed reservations.

The board will get an analysis of the pact from their chief negotiator Lyman Powell and his team of school administrators. The Powell group is expected to recommend rejection of the Aaron pact.

But Ransom said his "personal impression" was that the settlement would be accepted by the city board of education by either a margin of 5-2 or 4-3.

A group calling itself the Professional Educators of Los Angeles, which claimed to represent the nonstriking teachers, urged the school board to refuse to accept the proposal.

Although terms of the proposal have not been made public, Richard Mason, a vice president of PELA, claimed acceptance of the contract would mean unionization of Los Angeles public schools.

He contended the school board would be committing an illegal act by signing the proposal and expressed confidence the board would reject the pact.

Aaron's 76-page proposal reportedly included sections restoring most of the budget cuts already proposed by the Board of Education, reducing class sizes by three pupils, setting up special reading classes, giving extra help to poverty-area schools, substantially increasing the voice of teachers in running the schools, and giving teachers a seven per cent raise.

Key provisions of the proposed settlement drawn up by Aaron include elimination of most of the cutbacks planned by the board of education, class-size controls, and a special reading classes for grades four, seven and ten for all pupils two years or more behind in reading, as well as special program will be adopted for poverty-area schools.

Other provisions include increases in teachers salaries by 7 per cent plus other benefits.

The proposed agreement would allow the negotiating council to name UTLA as its negotiating agent.

If the board is financially unable to meet the terms of the agreement, it may be terminated by the negotiating council and no-strike clause will also be canceled.

Young Vows to Keep UCLA Open; Warns Against Strike

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Faced with the possibility of a student-faculty strike, UCLA Chancellor Charles E. Young pledged Saturday to keep the campus open and said striking instructors may lose pay.

"The university must remain open for students," Young told a news conference. "Education — within the classroom and without — is not merely a business. It is its life, its raison d'etre."

Gov. Reagan ordered state colleges and universities closed Thursday through Sunday because of demonstrations protesting U.S. troops in Cambodia and the deaths of four Ohio students. UCLA, along with the others, is scheduled to reopen Monday.

BUT FACULTY and graduate students in the political science, history and philosophy departments and the campus chapter of the American Federation of Teachers have voted to boycott classes.

And about 2,000 students camping in the student union and some student leaders have issued calls for a student strike. The students say they want to use the campus for discussions on the war rather than classes.

"Faculty members who elect not to meet their classes for moral or consciences reasons should also have the moral commitment to forego their normal compensations," Young said.

"RATHER THAN seeking to close the university or to restrict in any way the education process, let us extend it," said Young.

"Surely professors could find the time in this trying period to meet each class twice — once for the more normal work, and once to discuss other educationally important issues."

600 TEAMSTERS VOTE TO CONTINUE STRIKE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Nearly 600 striking truck drivers rallied in Lincoln Park Saturday and voted to defy employers' ultimatums to return to work or be fired.

Teamsters from Los Angeles and Orange Counties said they would continue their wildcat walkout despite the lack of financial support from the union.

The drivers refused last month to ratify a tentative agreement between union leadership and the trucking industry, because it did not contain a sick leave.

Saturday the drivers indicated their main concern now is "amnesty" for continuing their strike, with sick leave a secondary concern.

NIGHT WATCH

Police Patrol the City--Everything is Quiet

By BILL HOMER
Staff Writer

The only thing visible at first was a tiny, red light blinking in the distance. Then the hum of a motor and the whir of blades sounded through the moist, night-time skies.

Now the police helicopter loomed into view, hovering like a grotesque insect above the rooftop of a nearby store. A beam of white light licked out from the aircraft's searchlight, raking across the roof. Then, as suddenly as it had appeared, the ray blinked off and the helicopter — with a roar and a whoosh — ascended once more.

The whirly-bird slashed its way through the skies of Long Beach like an airborne point-man — a watchman aloft. Tonight, so far at least everything was orderly; everything was quiet. But there still were four hours to go until the end of the night watch. And more than 47 square miles to patrol.

Across town, in the Public Safety Building, the voice of female radio dispatcher came from the loudspeaker in the adjoining offices of Capt. Forest W. Smith and Lt. Charles R. Harmon.

Quiet night. Catch up on your paperwork. Draw up those schedules. And when does that vacation start, anyhow?

"Unit Four."

Four at Claremont and Broadway."

"Unit Four: a nine-oh-two 'tee' at Second and Covina. A 902-T at Second and Covina. Code two."

"Unit Four: ten four."

As Unit Four sped to the traffic accident, Detective Sgt. David Bauer, of the homicide detail, placed finishing touches on a supplemental report of a murder which had occurred two weeks previously. Now the investigation was complete. The evidence needed for prosecution of the suspect was at hand. And . . . won't this night ever end?

Night watch. Everything's quiet. Three hours to go.

"Unit Fifteen, Unit Fifteen. Nine-twenty-six a four-five-nine at . . . Temple Avenue."

"Ten Four."

While Unit Fifteen traveled several blocks to the Temple Avenue apartment where a burglary had been discovered, Sgt. Bob Dillon dimmed the lights of his black-and-white patrol car.

SLOWLY, QUIETLY, Dillon turned the cruiser in to the alley behind a row of shops fronting on Seventh Street. The vehicle at a crawl, Dillon scanned windows and doorways for signs of a break-in. Not tonight. Everything's calm. Two and a half hours to go.

"All units. All units. Two-eleven 'ess' at . . . Atlantic. Unit 17 code two."

"Seventeen. Ten-four from Market and Atlantic."

"Unit Thirty-four, we'll back."

Jack Coachim pushed his broom down the second floor hallway at the Public Safety Building. One more sweep and the hall would be out of the way. So quiet tonight; there's not even any good gossip.

His partner on this stretch of floor, Ray Moran, was down by the water fountain. "That guy's diet must really work," Coachim thought. "Look at all the weight he's lost."

And so it went, with two hours and twenty-eight minutes to go.

"Unit Seventeen code four on the 211 -- code four. Proprietor pushed the alarm button by mistake. We're ten-eight."

"Ten-four Unit Seventeen. All units, code four on the 211 silent. Code four."

Forty-five minutes later, the residents of a Santa Fe Avenue apartment house flooded the police department's switchboard with reports of screams coming from a neighbor's apartment.

"Unit Eleven. A nine-twenty-seven, possible two-seventy-three 'dee' at . . . Santa Fe, apartment . . . Your 'c-p' is Rogers. Code two."

"Eleven. Ten-four."

"Unit Twelve, we'll back."

Lieutenant Harmon gazed at the clock. Quitting time was getting near. But this little-old lady on the telephone wouldn't shut up. How could she have seen a flying saucer when, by her own admission, she hardly could see at all?

"Unit Eleven. Code four. Just a loud television."

"Ten-four."

With a half hour to go now, and with a fleet of early units from the next watch already on the streets, the thoughts of the night shift patrolmen, dispatchers, detectives and janitors began drifting to "tonight's dinner" or a cold beer. It had been slow. It had been quiet. None of the city's 390,000 residents had been killed, injured or assaulted. Only a minor traffic accident and a few burglaries. Just a quiet, slow shift that for a while seemed like it would never end.

There would be other nights when the city wasn't so lucky, however. Nights when crime would strike like a plague. Nights when at least one Long Beach resident wouldn't live to see the sunrise, the victim of a killer. Nights when traffic mishaps would take their toll. Nights when the anguish of terrified parents would cry out for the safe return of their lost children. And nights when children already "lost" would cry out in terror from the abuse of parents not worthy of the title.

But now it was time to go home.

L.B. Airport Hits Economic Skids

maining operators of businesses at the airport. In addition, many millions more in airline service and maintenance fees have gone down the drain.

Last week, TRW Industries withdrew from a proposed contract with a Long Beach Airport business developer to build a $200,000 light manufacturing facility which would have employed some 50 workers with an annual payroll of $500,000.

"We can't locate in Long Beach because we discovered there is no direct air service," explained Birch Graper, general manager of TRW's Fuel Pump Division. "We ship everything by air and there is no sense in trucking it back to Los Angeles to a major airline."

The loss of the contract is nothing new to James N. Routh, who watched a $1 million, 10-year lease for a proposed airline maintenance base disappear before his eyes when the city opposed additional service last year.

"THIS HAPPENS almost every week now," complained Routh. "Most of the contracts are smaller, but they all drop out for the same reason — no progressive city policy for the airport."

Routh, who recently announced a "$3 million expression of confidence" in the airport with plans to develop a seven-acre business complex on Donald Douglas Drive, now says he is undecided about proceeding with additional facilities.

"The plans are ready to go on a row of rental offices and aircraft service hangars, but I don't know if I want to jump into this just now," he said. "It's beginning to look like the airport is dying on the vine."

Another operator hard-hit by the airport squeeze is Ray Heady of Aircraft Associates, a general maintenance and service base which held fueling contracts with supplemental airlines flying international charter flights from Long Beach.

"We lost $60,000 a year in pumping fees from Trans International Airlines alone when the city stopped the flights," said Heady. "In gross business from TIA and the other charters, we are down about $500,000 annually.

"One of the foreign charter operators told us they wouldn't fly in to Long Beach again even if the city approved, because there are no connecting flights for their overseas passengers."

HEADY SAID the loss of business forced him to cut 15 employes off the payroll and to abandon plans to hire 10 or more for anticipated growth of operations.

Among the businesses which have closed in recent weeks is the Clouds Restaurant and cocktail lounge on the second floor of the airport terminal building.

Proprietor Wilferd Rasch notified the city he was closing after 12 years of operating the restaurant and the airport's only airline food catering service because of the "drastic cutdown of air service."

Rasch said he was near bankruptcy after putting $100,000 worth of improvements into the leased premises. He also pointed out that he had been maintaining the operation on a month-to-month basis for the last two years because the city had made no move to renew his original 10-year lease. The restaurant employed a total of 25.

The closing of the restaurant and catering service brought immediate complaints to the city from Western Air Lines, now down to two daily Long Beach-San Francisco flights, one of which continues to San Diego.

Mike Simpson, Western's station manager, said he is receiving from 30 to 50 complaints daily from passengers arriving after 6 p.m., when the terminal coffee shop is closed. The lack of a restaurant and bar reduces passenger comforts in the Long Beach terminal to the vanishing point, he said.

AIR WEST, the only other major airline serving Long Beach, has cut service to one flight to Los Angeles daily, and has served notice this well be suspended in the near future.

Regional and local service airlines also feeling the pinch of declining services and traffic include Cal-State Airlines, linking Long Beach with 10 California cities and Las Vegas, and Golden West Airlines, a commuter carrier serving Los Angeles and San Francisco area airports by scheduled air taxi. Both operations are headquartered in Long Beach.

"Our planes leave Long Beach in the morning and don't come back until dark," said Richard Dick, president of Cal-State. "About 40 per cent of our traffic connects with other airlines. How can you interline at Long Beach without major airline service?"

At Golden West, vice president James Harmon pointed out that the airline can't start construction of permanent headquarters until the city comes up with a definite plan for the airport terminal area.

"We'd like to see the city go ahead on this," he said. "We want to make Long Beach our permanent home."

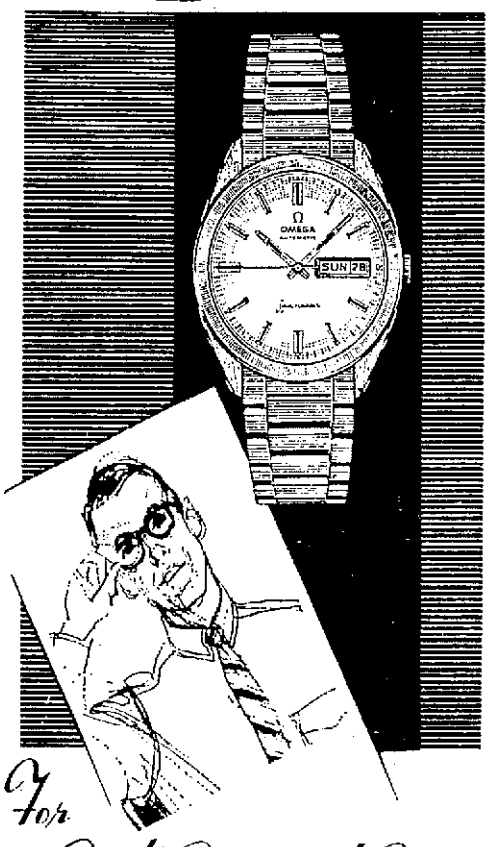

MEANWHILE, Pacific Southwest Airlines and Air California, both intrastate carriers, have been knocking on the gates of Long Beach since they were awarded service rights by the California Public Utilities Commission last year.

The PUC granted both airlines Long Beach routes to Northern California points and San Diego on condition that they obtain permission of the City Council by July 1.

Spokesmen for PSA, which is in the process of merging with Air California, said, "We'd come in to Long Beach today if they'd let us."

2 University Buildings Burned; Tension Eases at Some Schools

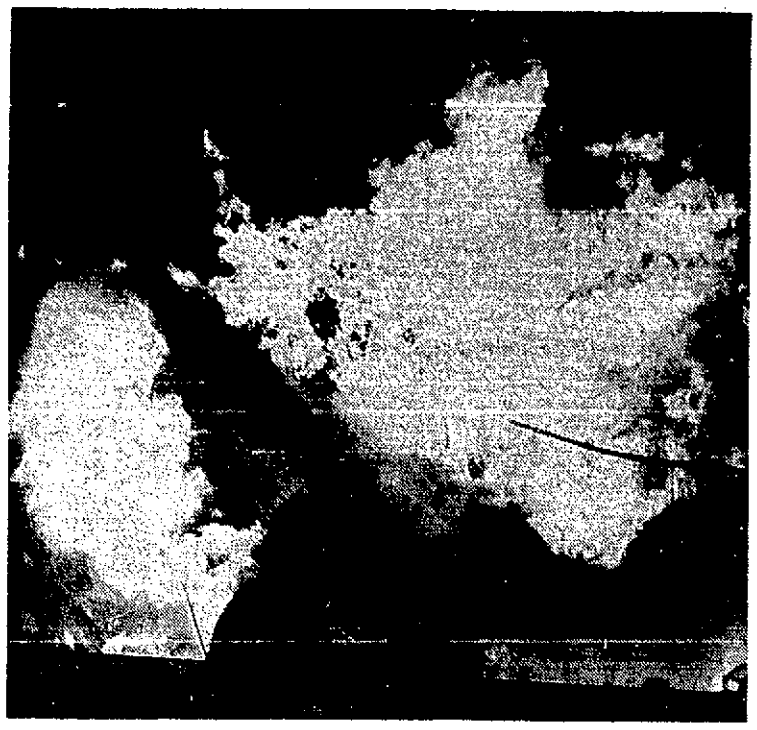

Associated Press

Fires blamed on arsonists destroyed old buildings at the University of Iowa and Colorado State University Saturday as campus protests against the war in Indochina continued across the country.

Gov. Robert Ray sent 400 National Guardsmen into Iowa City as firefighters poured water on the ruins of an old frame classroom building on the University of Iowa campus.

Students milled about on the Iowa campus for the fifth day of protest demonstrations as the guardsmen stood by at the nearby Johnson County Fairgrounds.

At Colorado State in Fort Collins, about 100 students helped firefighters vainly fight flames which destroyed Old Main, first building on the 91-year-old campus.

PRESIDENT A. R. Chamberlain said he thougs the fire had been set by "a sick person bent on attempting to shut the university by terrorist tactics." He said he didn't think it was a student and would not close the school.

Chamberlain credited students, many of them on strike, with helping keep the peace after historic Old Main was destroyed.

Police arrested 200 students at Southern Illinois Univeristy at Carbondale early Saturday for curfew violation. Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie called up 3,900 more guardsmen, making 9,000 on standby alert in armories across Illinois.

There was an easing of tension on some campuses.

Students ended occupation of the ROTC building at Central Michigan University at Mount Pleasant and started meeting with faculty members to discuss plans for "peace week" this week.

NATIONAL Guardsmen were withdrawn from the University of New Mexico late Friday after a confrontation with students that sent 11 people to the hospital with bayonet wounds. The troops had helped police remove 140 protesters from a Student Union building they had occupied since Wednesday. The protesters offered no resistance to police, but the injuries occurred when the guard advanced on 200 students gathered outside the building.

Brig. Gen. D.L. Doane, commander of the guardsmen, said the stabbings were being investigated and would not admit his men bayoneted anyone. He said his men faced demonstrators with fixed bayonets because it is "standard operating procedures."

The campus of New York State University at Buffalo was quiet for the first time in three days. Four students were injured by birdshot from shotguns during a demonstration Thursday night.

In New York City, Leonard N. Cohen, deputy borough president of Manhattan, charged police with "gross negligence" for failing to stop construction workers from beating student protesters Friday during wild melees in Wall Street and outside City Hall.

"I was present," Cohen said in a letter to city officials. "Police acted in force immediately to protect City Hall building, but then joined ranks with attacking workers and laughingly watched students brutally beaten."

An estimated 70 students were injured, a dozen requiring hospitalization.

A student committee charged that the construction workers were "paramilitary forces operating to divide the workers and students," and charged that the assaults were not spontaneous but seemed "to be carefully organized and directed by men looking suspiciously like police agents."

Mayor John V. Lindsay promised an investigation.

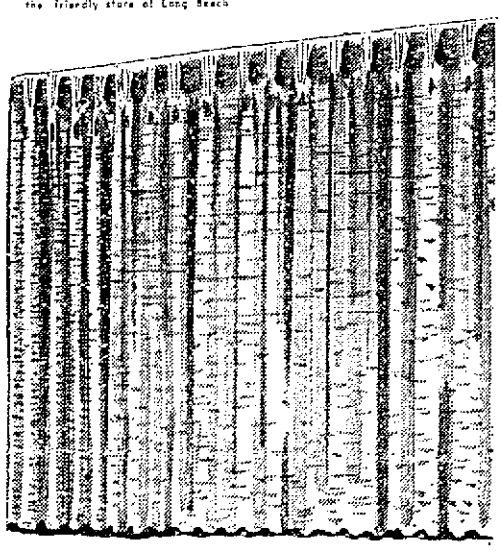

HINDU-MOSLEM ROW; 66 DIE

BOMBAY (AP) — Three days of clashes between Hindus and Moslems in Maharashtra State have claimed 66 lives, officials in Bombay said Saturday.

In Jalgaon, where army troops were called out Friday, 36 persons were reported killed and 70 injured.

Bhiwandi, where the disturbances first broke out, was under a continuous curfew imposed Thursday. There the dead numbered 30 and thousands were fleeing to safer areas.

Tunney Charges Asia Loss

No Hope Left for Neutrality, L.B. Group Told

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Rep. John V. Tunney, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, charged here Saturday that the Nixon Southeast Asia policy "has effectively destroyed any potential for returning Cambodia to a position of neutrality".

Speaking at a fund-raising dinner in the International City Club, Tunney said Cambodia has been polarized by the American incursion and, after our withdrawall will be either pro-American or pro-Communist.

Prince Sinahouk, now in exile, is by far the most popular political leader in Cambodia, Tunney said. And when the Americans leave, it is clear he even-the aid of the Communists. tually will come back with

"In that event the only way to prevent a pro-Communist regime will be to send American troops in again. And none of this would have happened if the U.S. were not in Cambodia," he said.

The Riverside congressman also disputed incumbent Republican Senator George Murphy's claim of credit for federal action to fund Point Reyes Park.

TUNNEY SAID the real credit goes to another Republican, Rep. Don Clausen, along with Democratic Congressmen Jeff Cohelan and Harold "Biz" Johnson, "who worked on it for years, and did all the groundwork. At the last moment George Murphy jumped on board."

Tunney also disputed Murphy's claimed effectiveness in working for aerospace contracts for California, remarking, "If he has become involved in the B-1 bomber matter it will be the first time he has worked hard on a contract for the California industry."

New F-111 Patching Revealed

FORT WORTH (UPI) — General Dynamics Fort Worth announced Saturday the second discovery of unauthorized welds on subcontracted parts of the controversial, variable wing F-111 military plane.

General Dynamics said unauthorized welds were found at the company's Convair division in San Diego, Calif. General Dynamics did not announce the names of the subcontractors that made the parts, but said they had been suspended.

The welds were on pylons, which are steel parts mounted under the wings of F-111s — the bomber version of the F-111 — to carry explosives and extra fuel tanks.

Last fall, General Dynamics inspectors discovered unauthorized welds in other F-111 parts. Federal indictments were returned May 1 in Little Rock, Ark., against subcontractors and General Dynamics employes after investigations that grew out of the earlier discovery.

THE INDICTMENTS were returned against a high-ranking Genera Dynamics employe, two other former employes and four men who worked for subcontracting firms in Arkansas. A federal grand jury accuse the seven of conspiring to defraud the government.

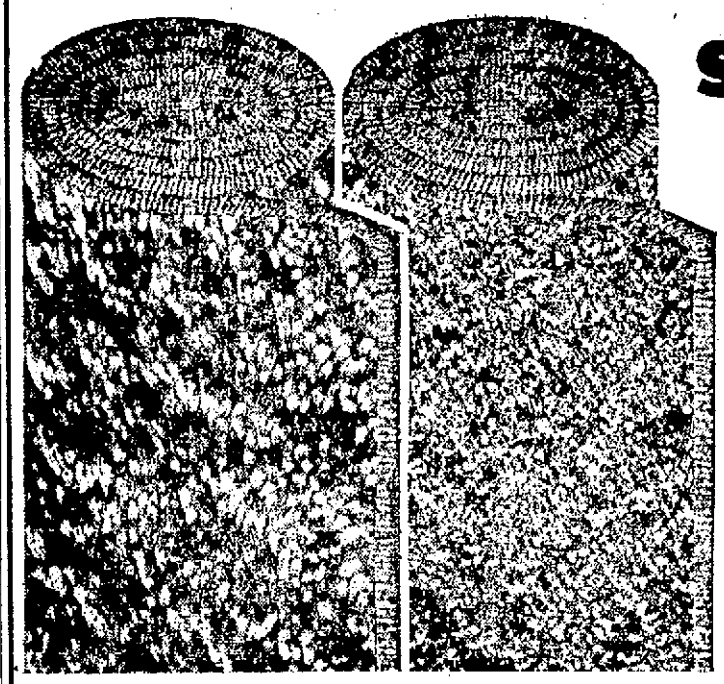

The subcontractors involved were Selb Manufacturing Co., of Walnut Ridge, Ark., and Blades Manufacturing Co., of Rector, Ark.

General Dynamics said none of the defective parts made in Arkansas caused any of the 18 F-111 crashes.

60,000 Protest; Most Stay Peaceful

Despite the fire and zeal of the speakers, however, the crowd, for the most part, remained silent, applauding only at the end of the addresses.

THEY SAT or lolled under a blazing sun on the grass of the Ellipse between the White House and the Washington Monument, showing little enthusiasm for the parade of speakers who mounted the platform to hurl demands for peace at the White House across the way.

The mayor's office estimated the crowd at 60,000 but sponsors claimed up to 200,000 crammed the Ellipse.

Although several senators and congresssmen prominent in the antiwar movement attended the rally, none of them addressed the crowd.

From President Nixon on down, however, the administration made a determined effort to open a dialogue with the students it has been accused of alienating with its policies.

The President, unable to sleep, rose at dawn and went to the Lincoln Memorial where he conversed at length with a group of students as the sun came up. (For more details, see report at top of Page A-1.)

Other high-ranking administration officials met throughout the day with groups of students. At the day's end, the White House estimated about 3,000 students had taken part in the many discussions.

CONTRIBUTING to the picnic-like atmosphere was the hot sun and the spring splendor of the flowers, shrubs and trees around the Ellipse. Most of those needing first aid were victims of the heat.

At one point, more than 3,000 people left the Ellipse to watch a group of men and women splashing and wading in the nude in the Reflecting Pool in front of the Lincoln Memorial. Two men who tried it later were arrested, the first arrests of the day.

Although the bus barricade prevented most of the demonstrators from seeing the White House, a powerful sound system made the voices of the speakers audible inside. White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President could also see the gathering clearly.

With the President were his wife and daughters and among the things they could hear were obscenities aimed at the President by several of the speakers.

Nixon Pleads With Protesters

acuse University, Ronnie Kemper and Joan Pelletier.

"It was unreal. He was trying so hard to relate on a personal basis," Ronnie told a reporter. "But he wasn't really concerned with why we were here."

Jean said: "I hope it was because he was tired but most of what he was saying was absurd. Here we had come from a university that's completely uptight, on strike, and when we told him where we were from, he talked about the football team."

Another Syracuse girl, Lynn Shatzkin, 21, said, "He did not make sense. People would ask him questions and he would talk about something else."

Nixon had set forth his position in a broadcast news conference Friday night. Then, by his own account, he read and took phone calls until 2:30 a.m., went to bed and — unable to sleep — got up at 4.

The trip to the Lincoln Memorial by auto followed. And before he got back to the White House, the President surprised a few early morning neighbors by visiting the Capitol and then driving to the Mayflower Hotel for breakfast.

Later he went across the street to thank soldiers from Ft. Myer, Va., and Ft. Meade, Md., for the way they had dealt with demonstrations in the area last October and November. Nixon said these events were generally peaceful and he was sure the Saturday demonstration would be, too.

HE WAS BACK in the White House by noon, starting time for the activities on the Ellipse. His family had driven in a few minutes before from Camp David, Md.

From the back windows and the portice of the White House, they could see the demonstrations.

From one of the bedrooms, Nixon had put in a telephone call to Manole Sanchez, his handy man and valet, after finally giving up on trying to sleep. He said he asked Manole if he ever had seen the Lincoln Memorial at night, found out he hadn't and the result was the five-minute ride that brought the two of them and a detail of what he termed "petrified" Secret Servicemen to the Memorial at 5 a.m.

About eight students were on hand. Before the President left nearly an hour later, about 50 people were on hand.

"They were fine kinds from all over the country," Nixon said. Back at the White House, he referred to war and peace and told a reporter:

"I told them that I knew it is awfully hard to keep this in perspective. I told them that in 1939 I thought Neville Chamberlain was the greatest man living and Winston Churchill was a madman." This was at the time that Chamberlain made a pact with Adolph Hitler — the Munich agreement that dismembered Czechoslovakia.

"IT WAS NOT until years later," the President said, "that I realized that Neville Chamberlain was a good man, but that Winston Churchill was right."

Nixon added that he doubted if this reference to the two former British prime ministers got over with the youngsters.

The Secret Service, Nixon said, apparently was worried, because Manole kept coming up to him and saying there was a phone call from him. But he said he told Manolo "I want to talk to these people."

"It was one of the most interesting experiences of my life," Nixon said. He had seen a student wearing a jacket from his old school, Duke University, and remarked that:

"Here at the Memorial I was sort of carried back to when I was in college myself and in law school."

The nucleus of the students at the Memorial, the original eight, told him they were from Alfred University, Alfred, N.Y.

"I tried to relate to them," he said.

NIXON SAID, TOO, he had told some of the younger members of his staff to go out and meet some of the visitors. Referring back to the encounter at the Memorial, Nixon said:

"I think this is far more useful. There were no TV cameras, no press, they did not feel the awesome power of the White House. I was trying to relate to them in a way they could feel I understood their problems. I told them to have a good time here in Washington and not to go away bitter."

During the afternoon, Nixon spent some time in the Executive Office Building across the street to meet with several staff members. Other presidential assistants were holding conferences with about 80 young protesters in small groups. Nixon did not meet with them, the White House said.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the purpose was basically to listen and answer questions on such subjects as Vietnam, the Cambodian decision, the American system of government, communications between youth and the government and between youth and college administrators.

"I gather they were impressed by the fact they were being listened to," Ziegler said. "They did not agree, but there was no hostility."

Some of the noise from the demonstration in the Ellipse was audible within the White House, Ziegler said. And Nixon, he said, could see the gathering clearly — and did.

The President's family watched the demonstration "on and off" on television, said Mrs. Nixon's press secretary, Constance Stuart.

MOTHER'S DAY; DAD WILL CHANGE QUINTS

LIBERTY CORNERS, N.J. (AP) — The Kienast quintuplets don't know yet that today is Mother's Day or that their parents plan to observe it by staying home to take care of them.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kienast invited Mrs. Kienast's parents, Mr. and Mrs. French Radcliff, for dinner but otherwise said they had no particular plans for the day.

Kienast and Radcliff planned to cook dinner for the women "and change a lot of diapers."

The quints, two boys and three girls, came home about two weeks ago after spending the first two months of their lives in a New York hospital. The family's home was enlarged from five to 12 rooms earlier this year by volunteers from neighboring communities in central New Jersey. The Kienasts have two other children, a boy and a girl.

Park Authorized

OAKLAND (UPI) — The California Park and Recreation Commission has authorized creation of a Mendocino Headlands State Park. The authorization, permitting immediate master planning, would include 205 acres at the town of Mendocino and 12,000 feet of ocean frontage.

Students Map Total Shutdown

SAN JOSE (AP) — Student leaders from at least 300 of the nation's colleges meet today at San Jose State to launch a student strike aimed at shutting down America's campuses.

Hal Weiner, 21, a San Jose State senior and spokesman for the National Student Congress, said Saturday: "The whole thing is based on getting something together that's completely nonviolent.

"The purpose is to establish a national student strike and shut down all the schools — just keep the schools open to discuss the Cambodian situation for the remainder of the school semester."

Representatives of the California Student Offensive — a statewide group formed last week — arranged housing and a program for some 2,000 delegates expected at the congress.

EUROPEANS JOIN ANTIWAR PROTEST

Associated Press

Thousands of anti-U.S. demonstrators tried Saturday to storm the American Embassy in London and Amerika Haus in West Berlin. More than 300 policemen and demonstrators were known injured by hails of sticks, stones and bottles and in close-quarters combat.

Crowds were out in other parts of the world — including Denmark, Finland, Italy, Israel and the Virgin Islands, to protest U.S. policy in Indochina and the killing of four students at Kent State University in Ohio.

A young woman and a plainclothes policeman were wounded by gunfire in the Berlin melee. "There was a use of firearms in self-defense" near Amerika Haus, deputy Mayor Kurt Neubauer said in a statement.

SCOTLAND Yard said 79 were injured in the London fracas, 60 of them policemen who tried to stop crowds that surged through Grosvenor Square toward the U.S. Embassy, smashing car windows and hurling missiles.

Demonstration leaders said in a warmup meeting in Trafalgar Square they wanted no confrontation with authority, only to lay flowers at the statue of Franklin D. Roosevelt in Grosvenor Square. The march and the flowers, they said, were a tribute to the four students killed at Kent State.

Then 200 protesters waving red flags burst out of the 3,000-strong crowd moving into the square and charged police lines. Mounted police and busloads of foot policemen rushed in, and the police line held.

The main body of the procession remained peaceful and resumed its slow march around the Square after the outbreak.

"It shouldn't have happened this way," said actress Vanessa Redgrave, one of the march leaders. "Nobody wants violence. But love turns to hate if it is pushed too far."

A MOUNTED policeman, moments after the clash, waved the marchers on with a daffodil.

Seven thousand marchers against U.S. action in Cambodia launched an assault on the downtown Amerika Haus cultural center in the worst confrontation of a long series in Berlin over the Vietnam war issue.

A police spokesman said 231 policemen were hurt and 16 of those hospitalized. Neubauer said 44 persons were arrested and "many were injured."

The young woman wounded by gunfire, apparently a demonstrator, was struck in the calf by a bullet and the officer was hit in the neck and the hip.

Neubauer and police would not discuss the incident, but an unconfirmed account from persons at the scene said shots were fired when fleeing demonstrators who had hurled stones and Molotov cocktails refused a police order to halt.

9,000 in L.A. Peace Rally Police Selves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some 9,000 persons — mostly young and in a festive mood — rallied for world peace and kept peace at the rally with a method of their own in Exposition Park Saturday.

"We're trying to patrol ourselves," said Rick Propas, 22, a UCLA graduate student and spokesman for the Cambodia Crisis Coalition, sponsor of the rally.

"We're trying to make sure there is no reason for the Police Department to intervene." There wasn't.

THE CCC, composed of members of various antiwar groups, set up a monitoring system in which more than 300 persons were appointed to prevent violence.

The rally proceeded peacefully with young people waving placards reading, "Withdraw All U.S. Troops," "Impeach Nixon" and "Nixon is Guilty of Murder."

Spokesmen said the rally was in protest of U.S. involvement in Cambodia and the deaths of four Kent State University students in Ohio.

Police were informed of the security precautions and did not intervene.

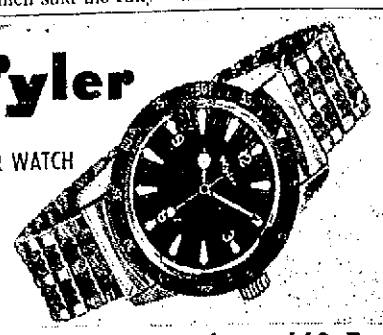

Fred Kirsch, a Kent State University student who told the crowd he was present when four students were fatally wounded by National Guardsmen, said a few thrown stones were the only provocation for the shooting.

"IT WAS the goriest thing I've ever seen," he told the crowd.

Between speeches and announcements, music was provided by an assortment of bands, including Country Joe and the Fish. The Andrew Jackson Populist Band, with two flutes, a recorder and a saxophone, played "Yankee Doodle" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

In Riverside about 2,000 persons held a peaceful rally on the downtown mall.

LITTLE RICHARD Stage Collapses

Singer Hurt as Fans Rush

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Little Richard was nursing a broken wrist Saturday after a rock 'n' roll concert at which the stage collapsed and 80 persons were arrested.

Police said Little Richard was in the middle of his act — standing on a piano while singing a song titled, "Come On," when about 50 fans rushed the stage at the Olympic Auditorium late Friday night. The stage collapsed under their weight.

Five others were slightly injured including a guitarist in Richard's band and the road manager for another rock group on the program, "Country Joe and the Fish."

Police, called when the stage fell, arrived and arrested 80 persons, including 16 juveniles, for investigation of various drug and drinking counts. Fifty-seven were jailed.

Besides the wrist injury, Little Richard had a gash on his neck, suffered when an electric organ fell on him.

An officer at the scene said that when the concert ended, the stage looked like kindling wood.

Anchovies Protected

LIMA (AP) — Peru's military government has imposed a 3½-month ban starting Wednesday in the anchovy catch all along the coast, except at the southern port of Ilo, in an annual conservation measure.

to be in the Fish Hook area.

The list of captured equipment issued by the White House included more than six million rounds of ammunition, ranging from large rockets to small arms rounds.

Acknowledging that the United States had to pay a political price for its decision to move into Cambodia, White House aides said that in a larger context — when the intermediate period of transition, as they called it, is completed — the prospects of negotiations not only with Hanoi, but also with the Soviet Union may be enhanced.

OFFICIALS stressed that despite enemy denunciations of Allied actions in Cambodia, the next Paris meeting remained scheduled for Thursday. They added that, as Nixon said, efforts to obtain Soviet assistance in arranging for an Indochina peace conference were continuing.

White House officials also said that United States troops and American advisers with the South Vietnamese forces would be withdrawn from Cambodia within eight weeks at the latest.

The official list issued by the White House said 60 Americans and 184 South Vietnamese had been killed as of 8 a.m. Saturday after nine days of operations in Cambodia. Enemy losses were put at 3,470 killed and 1,041 prisoners were reported taken.

The Allied forces, the White House said, captured 4,793 individual weapons, 730 weapons served by crews, 24 trucks, 3,254,963 rounds of small arms ammunition, 1,326,143 rifle rounds, 1,980,820 machine gun rounds, 495 large rocket rounds, 6,790 smaller rocket rounds, and 2,102,000 pounds of rice.

The White House said that 1,710 enemy bunkers had been destroyed in Cambodia.

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. and South Vietnamese patrol boats, tanks and infantrymen pushed up the Mekong River corridor Sunday in a new offensive to clear the vital waterway and destroy Communist forces threatening the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh.

Allied military spokesmen reported scattered fighting Saturday in the first phases of the amphibious thrust into Cambodian territory.

The U.S. command said 30 heavily-armed American river boats involved in the campaign would not go further into Cambodia than the 21.7-mile limit set by the Nixon Administration.

The Allied task force coordinated its advance up Southeast Asia's greatest waterway with operations of the Cambodian army.

Israeli Air Strikes Hit Guerrillas

United Press International

Israeli warplanes blasted Arab guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon Saturday in reprisal for escalating guerrilla attacks in Israeli's northern frontier region, a military spokesman in Tel Aviv said. The heavy raids lasted an hour and a half.

Reports from Lebanon said the Israelis attacked in waves, using every kind of aircraft in their arsenal during the raids concentated in the Al Arkoub area, 50 miles southeast of Beirut.

Finch Hits Rhetoric of Agnew, Reagan

of some 40 young people on a grassy mall across Independence Avenue from his department's headquarters.

One student asked the secretary if he saw any connection between the shooting of the four Kent State University students in a confrontation with Ohio National Guardsmen on Monday and Gov. Ronald Reagan's remark last month that "if it takes a bloodbath" to deal with campus demonstrations "let's get it over with."

FINCH REPLIED that there had been "a whole series of causal relationships, including some of the Agnew rhetoric."

Later, when word of his remarks spread through Washington, an aide to Finch issued a statement in which he said the point he was seeking to make was that everyone must take care in making public comments. "Neither by direct statement nor by illusion," he added, "have I ever indicated that any statement by the vice president contributed to the tragedy at Kent State University."

The exchange with the students, and Finch's later amendments, illustrated a central aspect of the Administration's attempt to arrange a dialogue with its critics during the mass demonstration against U.S. policy in Southeast Asia. Officials often were more candid with the students than they have been with the news media.

Dozens of top-level administrators in the Administration were holding private sessions with small clusters of students or meeting with them on the sunny mall across from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE, young aides to the President were going out into the streets to invite young demonstrators into their offices to discuss the issues that have alienated them from the President.

Moments before Finch made the remarks about the vice president, a high official of the Justice Department told another group of students that he thought Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who presided over the conspiracy trial of the Chicago Seven, was fair minded, although "personally I dislike him intensely."

An aide to the official later asked a reporter who listened to the conversation not to report it. "He didn't know there was a reporter taking notes," the aide said.

Candor was evident elsewhere. Dennis J. Doolin, deputy assistant secretary of defense for East Asian affairs, chatted with three young men who were students at Carleton College in Northfield, Minn. — the alma mater of Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

"IF PEOPLE keep their cool today," said Doolin, "you're going to have a hell of a lot of clout."

Some clout already was apparent. The contrast in the Administration's approach to the demonstrators Saturday and is refusal to acknowledge their presence in Washington last October and November was enormous.

This time, in Room 1271 of the HEW building, 30 telephones were being manned by officials arranging private meetings between groups of demonstrators and government officials. A bloc of rooms in the building was set aside for the dialogues.

Marchers Want to Close Stores

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — About 700 antiwar demonstrators threatened Saturday to close downtown department stores until the end of the Vietnam war.

Police said there were no injuries, but some downtown streets were blocked by the protestors, who marched to a shopping area after a peaceful march and rally at Balboa Park.

About 5,000 demonstrators, half the number predicted by organizers, marched to the park at noon, chanting peace slogans and carrying antiwar posters.

The Chain of Events That Led to Kent State Tragedy

EDITOR'S NOTE: Student protest in America took a tragic turn on Monday when four Kent State University students were killed. This dispatch by two members of the AP special assignment team describes the fatal confrontation, and the events that led up to it.

By JEAN HELLER
and KEN HARTNETT

KENT, Ohio (AP) — There had been Berkeley and Harvard and Columbia and Wisconsin. There had been rocks and fires and taunts and tear gas. There had been bloodied heads, and shattered windows and broken curfews and police blockades.

Then suddenly there was Kent State University. Suddenly there was death in the heartland of the country.

Four Kent State students were killed and nine wounded in a confrontation with National Guardsmen on Monday. In the days that followed, mounting student protests across the country closed hundreds of universities and brought waves of young people flooding into the nation's capital for a massive weekend demonstration.

AND AT WEEK'S end, investigators and officials were shuffling through bits of a puzzle trying to answer gnawing questions like these:

Did someone shoot at the national guardsmen before they opened fire? Guard officials first said there was a sniper, then later said they had no evidence to support the statement.

What about apparent bullet holes in the lawn, in trees, in a modern sculpture in front of a campus building, and grazes on nearby buildings? Is there any significance to them?

What about the statement by an Ohio National Guard official that a partial report from a medical examiner indicated one of the students was hit by a "nonmilitary small caliber steel-jacket bullet?"

Why did the guard, despite voiced fears of sniping, make no effort to clear and secure rooftops of campus buildings, including those in the disturbance area?

And why didn't the embattled 50-man unit involved in the shooting receive reinforcements when photographs taken at the time show at least 100 National Guardsmen standing less than a city block away?

And what of Kent State? What is its future? Students say there must be change: In the university they feel has grown faster in size than in sensitivity, and in the American society they insist denies to some a peaceful and humane existence.

FOR ITS PART, the university administration says that in the past week it has recognized some of its own shortcomings and is anxious to seek advice from the students. But it refuses to bow to any unnegotiable demands, refuses to take any political positions, refuses to condone revolution.

Unlike Cambridge, Mass., home of Harvard, with its long history of radicalism and dissent, Kent, Ohio, is mostly conservative, middle - class and traditional, unaccustomed to radical rhetoric and action.

Unlike Yale, where student leaders alone had succeeded in keeping peace in a tense situation a weekend earlier, Kent student leaders say they were not allowed passes through National Guard lines to work at cooling off tempers.

Unlike Madison, Wis., Kent's radical community is small and leaderless. Its members felt they were years behind their counterparts at the University of Wisconsin and elsewhere across the nation. Cambodia was an issue on which they emerged united. But inexperienced, they didn't know when to fall back.

And unlike almost anywhere else in the country, Ohio National Guardsmen carry loaded weapons into campus confrontations.

It was against this background that emotions honed keen by three nights of student demonstrations exploded at noon on Monday, May 4.

THE NATIONAL Guard has moved in on Saturday. The troops had stopped the demonstrations but the tension remained.

It was the eve of a vital primary election with Gov. James A. Rhodes in a tight battle for Republican nomination to the Senate. He had come to Kent the night before to tell the students and the state that he would tolerate no further violence. "It's over with in Ohio," he had said. Kent students were infuriated.

Halfway around the world, more and more American troops were crossing the Vietnamese border into Cambodia in a war many of the students find intolerable. President Nixon had promised to end it.

Now the students believed he was expanding it.

On Friday night, small bands of activists smashed 50 windows downtown in response to the move into Cambodia.

The National Guard had been on campus since late Saturday night when an ROTC building burned.

Monday was a perfect spring day, the kind that draws people outside. At noon, classes were changing and many students were moving for the Commons — the heart of the campus — where a rally was planned.

Activists and guardsmen arrived simultaneously, and soon, tear gas, rocks and stones flew. The demonstrators retreated. The guard pursued.

AT THIS POINT, about 50 guardsmen broke from the main body and followed a group of students from the Commons to a grassy knoll the students called Blanket Hill — a favorite nighttime campus retreat before construction of Taylor Hall, a classroom building to the left of the knoll with a massive steel sculpture in front.

At Blanket Hill, there was more tear gas. More rocks. The chants rose, "One, two, three, four f-- the War!" and "Pigs Off Campus!"

Army veteran James Minard, a tall, slim dramatics student with a newly grown beard, found himself in the front ranks of the student demonstrators.

Minard, who considers himself a cultural revolutionary, had thrown seven tear gas canisters back into the midst of the guardsmen in earlier encounters. Now he grabbed for an eighth and fired it back as the crowd cheered.

But in doing so, Minard caught the gas full in the face. He staggered toward Taylor Hall where friends gave him medication. He was, for the moment, out of action.

He watched as the small guard force slowly pushed the students over the summit of Blanket Hill, down the sloping srping-green lawn and across a driveway and parking lot into the practice field beyond.

THE GUARD fired tear gas. The students picked up the canisters and threw them back. The guardsmen returned the throws.

A young guardsman, standing with his unit about 100 yards to the right of the hill, remembered that he and his buddies found it amusing.

"We were all standing there watching and laughing at it," he said.

"At that point, it was really kinda funny. Then all of a sudden, is wasn't funny anymore."

From all accounts, the guard did not see the heavy chain link fence at the back of the practice field because of the corwd of students, the tear gas and gas masks the men wore.

But the students were backing into a trap.

When they could go no further, the students split into two groups, one on either side of the guard unit. More students, watching the action, had come up behind the men. It was then, and apparently not until then, that the guardsmen saw the fence.

The guardsmen suddenly were in a box — students on either side and behind them, and the heavy fence in front.

SLOWLY, THE guard backed up and the students behind them let them through. The students on either side joined ranks and followed the guardsmen throwing stones and cheering.

"We thought they had run out of gas," said Doug Baird, a Kent resident who went to his hometown university on a scholarship.

"We had withstood them and we were cheering."

A guard spokesman said the men had exhausted their tear gas supplies. But one witness, David Seffens, an Army veteran from Canton, Ohio, and the former attorney general in the student government, said "I saw red tear gas canisters hanging from their web gear. Just hanging there."

If the men did have gas, they didn't use it. Witnesses said the guardsmen periodically stopped walking back to Blanket Hill and turned and pointed their M1 rifles toward the students. They reportedly held that pse for several moments and then, without having fired, turned back toward the hill.

Few students took the moves seriously. Instead, throwing rocks and taunts all the way, they followed

'PERSON NEXT TO ME DROPPED, SHOT...'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Kent State student who said he was an antiwar demonstrator and an eyewitness to the fatal shooting of four students this week says if people start throwing rocks "It's up to you to go up and stop them."

KIRSCH

He was Fred Kirsch, a member of the Kent State Student Mobilization Committee, who spoke to some 400 persons at an antiwar rally Friday night.

When Kirsch advised against rock-throwing, someone called out "Chicken," but Kirsch went on.

He said a crowd of some 3,000 Kent students, gathering on the commons Monday to "bury the Constitution," had caused the National Guardsmen to "retreat to the highest point on the commons."

At that poin, when the guardsmen were surrounded, rock-throwing started, he said.

The guardsmen, on the receiving end of tear gas canisters tossed back at them suddenly dropped "to their knees." Kirsch said he was 60 yards away. Said Kirsch:

"I thought to myself they weren't going to shoot from that distance, or that they were only firing blanks.

"Then the person next to me dropped, shot in the stomach, and with the bullets all around me I was headed for a tree.

"It was the most terrifying experience of my life. This seemed to go on for hours, but it was only 30 seconds."

Kirsch said from behind the tree he looked out "and saw a student with a bullet hole in his neck and his face all contorted.

"THE NEXT THING I knew I was out on Main Street . . . all I know is, if you take part in a demonstration and three or four people start throwing rocks, it's up to you to go up and stop them."

Up to that point there was silence. Then came hisses, shouts and a cry of "chicken!"

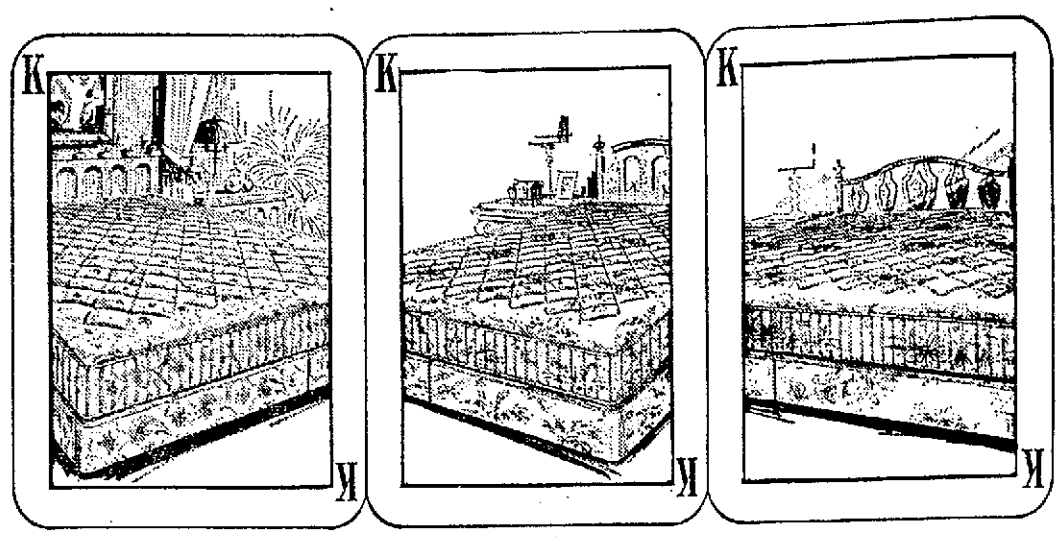

"Well," continued Kirsch, "if I see some guy throwing rocks, I'm going to stop that guy to protect my life.

"When you hear bullets around you it's the most frightening thing in your life."

KENT STATE CAMPUS—SCENE OF CONFRONTATION WHERE FOUR STUDENTS WERE SHOT TO DEATH Dashed Line Shows Where Guardsmen Faced Protesters; Blanket Hill, Link Chain Fence, Firing Point Are Marked
—AP Wirephoto

Guard Halted, Pointed Rifles...

the guardsmen back to Blanket Hill, some as close as 10 to 15 feet.

"It was like walking into a gravel pit," said one member of the guard unti. "It was raining," said another of the rocks. A soldier named Jeff said the men feared for their lives. And a burly sergeant, a veteran of two wars, later pulled from his pocket two chunks of concrete. "What about these?" he asked.

When the guardsmen reached the crest of the knoll, they turned again and pointed their rifles again.

And this time some of them fired.

MINARD HIT the ground as soon as the firing began. He said he was no more than 15 feet away from the troops.

Unlike many of the students, Army veteran Minard never thought he was hearing blanks.

"I felt thuds all around me," Minard said

"I just thought is wasn't happening," said Doug Baird. "And then, the thought came into my head that they were trying to kill us."

Chris Butler of Cleveland hit the ground, too.

"It lasted for five to eight seconds. When I stood up, the guard was still in a shooting position. I heard someone say they were just shooting blanks. But then I saw a green MG with its glass knocked out and I saw that girl with the blood. I stood there and saw her shirt turn red."

What was going on within the guard unit is unclear.

At least one witness claims he heard an order to five. Another said he saw a slim, angular-faced officer standing in front of the unit raise a baton, then drop it sharply.

The National Guard officially denies there was any order to fire.

KENT STATE BULLET NOT GUARD TYPE

KENT, Ohio (AP) — An Akron doctor who is experienced in treating gunshot wounds said Saturday that a Kent State University student he treated was not shot by a military or police weapon.

Dr. Joseph W. Ewing, a plastic surgeon who treated bullet wounds while with the 109th Evacuation Hospital in Europe in World War II, said that Donald MacKenzie, 20, of Richboro, Pa., was shot in the back of the neck within an inch of the spinal cord by a small caliber bullet that came out his jaw and cheek.

EWING SAID the bullet that struck MacKenzie was steeljacketed and nonexplosive. No steel fragments were left in the student's face, he said.

Dr. Weing, who said the .30-caliber M-1 bullet he was familiar with was copper-jacketed, said that the M-1 and .45-caliber bullets had high velocity and would have shattered on contact with a bone.

Seffens, the student leader who looks like a young bank executive, is convinced an order was given.

"You just don't kneel, you just don't fire," he said.

One guardsman from the unit on the hill bristled when told that it had been claimed that an order to open fire had been given.

"I don't know how anyone can say that," he said. "You couldn't hear a thing up there."

But, the guardsmen from Blanket Hill were adamant that they were in danger and not just from stones.

"There's proof," said one. "They just haven't brought it out yet."

FOUR PEOPLE were dead.

Nineteen-year-old Allison Krause of Pittsburgh, Pa., was a freshman. "She was a little thing, curly hair, an art student," a friend said. "She was going to class. She wasn't included in the demonstration."

Allison died in the parking lot, a bullet piercing her side.

Not far from where she fell, a bullet struck Sandra Scheuer, 20, of Youngstown, Ohio, in the neck. She, too, died. She was a major in speech therapy, and friends said she too was on her way to class when the shooting began.

Sophomore William K. Schroeder, 19, of Lorain, Ohio, fell in front of Taylor Hall. Schroeder died five minutes after arriving at a hospital.

"I don't know him," said a student who had knelt to help him after the shooting. "But he had short hair and books in his hands."

Schroeder, an Eagle Scout, was enrolled in the campus ROTC program.

"Everyone says after someone dies that he was a very nice person, and it doesn't mean much, but Jeff was just that — a very nice kid," said a friend of the fourth victime, Jeff Miller of Plainview, N.Y.

Miller may have been the closest of any of the four victims to radicalism. He wore his hair long. According to his friend Chris Butler, he lived the radical lifestyle.

FOR MANY DAYS before the Battle of Blanket Hill, Kent Police Chief Roy Thompson and his small town force of 21 uniformed men had expected trouble.

Kent had experienced SDS disturbances last year, and four of the SDS leaders who were jailed for six months on charges stemming from the outbreak were due for release. Radical-led violence was racking Ohio State University in Columbus.

Ohio, for all its conservatism, was a seed bed for the most frenzied of the nation's left radicals: the Weathermen.

But it wasn't easy for radicals to organize at Kent. Only a small proportion of its students were ready for activism. The radicals needed an issue, something to galvanize the students. The movement of U.S. troops into Cambodia did it.

"As soon as President Nixon gave that speech, everyone here knew that the ROTC building wouldn't last the weekend," said Doug Baird. "No one said it, but everyone knew it."

AFTER THE Friday rampage downtown, university officials conferred with student leaders and their own security forces.

A strategy of watchful wating was decided upon.

Kent Mayor LeRoy Satrom and city officials also conferred. They expected trouble. At 5 p.m. Saturday the mayor telephoned Brig. Gen Robert Canterbury, Ohio's assistant adjutant general, and asked for advice.

Canterbury placed the guard on alert and waited for developments, although university officials deny they knew this.

Meanwhile, the mayor placed the city — exclusive of the campus — under an 8 p.m. curfew. At that hour, on the university Commons, the victory bell — normally sounded after football triumphs — began to ring. A crowd started to form.

"Here's when we knew it was a different ballgame," said Seffens. "We know our radicals and we saw a guy get on top of the Victory Bell. People never had seen him before. He was saying, 'They are trying to keep you in your dormitories. Let's free the people in the dormitories. Let's go.'"

And the crowd went with him.

New Mexico Guardsmen Bayonet Students, Newsmen

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A National Guard commander, whose troops were accused by students and newsmen of stabbing them, said his men faced demonstrators with fixed bayonets because it is "standard operating proceudre."

"Right or wrong," said Brig. Gen. D. L. Deane, "that's the way the book is written."

But he refused Saturday to confirm that anyone was bayoneted by his 150 Guardsmen, who backed up police during a confrontation Friday with about 500 antiwar protesters on the 14,000-student campus.

"I don't know that people were bayoneted," Doane commented, adding that he was investigating the reports and wouldn't comment further.

But among the 10 stab wound victims who accused Guardsmen, KOB-TV cameraman Bill Norlander said:

"Three of them tried to stab me and two of them did stab me with bayonets." I was shooting film. I held my camera with KOB on it up in front of them to identify myself and I hollered, 'press, press.' And then I started to shoot film again . . . and then they got me."

Norlander, 28, was treated for chest and arm wounds.

One of the students, Steve Sullivan, 18, said he was acting as a student marshal for the demonstrators, "and I had a white headband on. The Guardsmen were jabbing at us and a guy on crutches fell down. I was trying to drag him off and they came over and stabbed me twice in the arm."

Six students and four newsmen said they were wounded by bayonet thrusts. Three Guardsmen also were nicked, Doane reported, because "they got tangled up in their own feet."

Another newsman at the scene said some of the victims just didn't move fast enough as the Guardsmen advanced.

The stabbings occured when the Guardsmen moved to support a police unit removing 140 students occupying the Student Union building in defiance of a court order to vacate the building.

POLITICS

Republican Hopefuls to Speak

The Long Beach Council of Republican Women expects to listen to from 15 to 20 candidate in the June 2 primary at its Wednesday meeting in the Lafayette Hotel French Room.

The program will start at 1 p.m. after a noon coffee hour.

Scheduled are James A. Ware, candidate for controller; Wendell T. Handy, Alberta Jordan, John E. Leadbetter and Kim Harris Perman, candidates for secretary of state; Spencer Williams, candidate for attorney general; Howard Jarvis, Gordon Powers, William Thomson and Bernard Wocher, for Board of Equalization, 4th District, and Robert Amesquita, for U.S. Senate.

Also Michael Donaldson and Robert Westerfield, for Congress, 17th District; William Teague and V. Lane Knight, for Congress, 34th District; Woodrow Smith and Harold E. Perkins, for Assembly, 44th District; and judicial candidates Dino John Fuigoni, Ernest Duncan and J. Wallace McKnight.

FRONTIER DEMOS

John Peck, son of actor Gregory Peck, and Dennis J. Murray, will speak at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the New Frontier Democratic Club in the Lafayette Hotel.

Peck, now serving in the Los Angeles campaign headquarters of U.S. Senate candidate Rep. John V. Tunney, D-Riverside, is a former teacher with the Peace Corps in Kenya.

Murray is chairman of the Long Beach area for the Jess Unruh for Governor campaign.

'POVERTY' ATUHOR

Joyce Wenger, coauthor of "Pass the Poverty Please," will speak for 32nd Congressional District Republican Women Federated Wendesday noon in the Fidelity Plaza Community Room, 525 E. Ocean Blvd. Her topic: "Who is Behind Off-Campus Violence?" The meeting is public.

NAVA ON REAGAN

Dr. Julian Nava, candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, warned in a statement recently that Gov. Reagan's closure of campuses has only postponed the campus crisis.

"The governor," he said, "can't call for a bloodbath one day and brotherhood the next. He can't pull the financial rug from under higher education, then, in the name of education, call on faculty and students to rally to his side.

"The governor can't say he's powerless to act while more than half a million Los Angeles school children miss four weeks of education, then, in a matter of hours, close down the largest university in the world."

SEN. GRAVEL HERE

U.S. Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, will speak Thursday noon at a general luncheon meeting of the Long Beach Forum of Town Hall of California in the Pacific Coast Club, 850 E. Ocean Blvd. His topic, "Oil and Troubled Waters" will deal with such issues as the proposed 800-mile oil pipeline from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez, Alaska.

Reservations for the $4 public event may be made at 436-6225.

HAYES IN SEMINAR

Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, has been selected by the Eagleton Institute of Politics, Rutgers University, to take part in a state legislator seminar July 19-25 at Marco Island, Fla.

Ex-Prisoner of Nazis Fights for POWs

By LOU CANNON
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Among the several congressmen who are attempting to obtain humane treatment of American prisoners of war in Vietnam, one Californian has a special memory.

He is Rep. Burt Talcott, who in World War II was imprisoned for 14 months in Stalag Luft III after the B-24 he piloted was downed over Austria.

Stalag Luft III was no picnic. Seventy-six prisoners attempted to escape the Bavarian camp, and all but three of them were recaptured. Fifty of the captured men were not returned to the prison camp but were shot to death by the Nazis.

The POWs who remained in camp, Talcott recalls, were treated in accordance with the Geneva convention. He believes this was so because the German military acted more scrupulously than the nation's political rulers.

TALCOTT

"HITLER and Himmler ordered the extermination of all prisoners of war, including Americans," Talcott said at a recent appeal here for the POWs in North Vietnam. "A similar dichotomy may prevail in North Vietnam today. If so, we ought to exploit it by appeals to the basic honor of the military."

The plight of the families of those who have been captured or who are missing in action is more a personal question for Talcott than a political one.

In Stalag Luft III, he recalls, "we were confined in groups so we could at least lean on each other. We could, within restrictions, correspond with our families. I knew within three months that my son was born."

HE CONTRASTS that with the information available to the families of present-day American prisoners.

"Some of the women whose husbands were shot down five years ago do not yet know whether they are wives or widows," he says, and adds:

"None of you can imagine their longing or anxiety. Some time ago an enemy photograph purporting to show an American prisoner was circulated among the wives. Twenty-two of them identified one man as their husband."

Pilots are not folk heroes in America these days, or in many other places of the world, either. Today the heroes are the astronauts, men whom Talcott admires but whom he considers not much different than other skilled pilots except that they fly under orders and out of camera range.

"IF WE BUILT in comparable safeguards for our combat crews; if we had cared as much for their safe return; if our news media had removed their wraps and had devoted as much attention to the plight of our combat crews and their loved ones, as to their space program, I am certain that our prisoners would, by now, be receiving treatment in compliance with the Geneva convention."

There is a similar refrain, almost of resentment for the "news media" and the "space program", running through much of the literature and speeches on the POWs, and it is an unfortunate note but an understandable one. The wives and families of the prisoners, as Talcott points out, too frequently feel left behind by public opinion, which has been mobilized both to end the war and to prevent it.

MOST AMERICAN young people do not find aviators "glamorous," as they did during World War II, and it is easy to neglect the torment suffered daily by people who do not know whether their loved ones are dead or alive.

Talcott believes that German, Japanese and Italian nationals who were American prisoners of war can be enlisted in the campaign to obtain humane treatment for the POWs of the Asian conflict. He also believes that such action would be helpful to North Vietnam in the years ahead when that country wants "acceptance in the community of civilized nations."

The campaign of Talcott and the men and women who share his concern appears to be having some limited positive results. The congressman says some wives who had not previously heard from their husbands have received letters in the past few weeks.

"One or two letters aren't much, but it's more than we had before," Talcott says.

The congressman remembers from Stalag Luft III when his son was born, and he knows how important a letter can be.

SIF COMMUTERS SAIL TO WORK

How to Beat Daily Traffic Rush

By RONALD S. SUPINSKI

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Salt spray caresses your face. Sea breezes swirl your hair. Fresh air fills your lungs.

This is commuting?

For 500 lucky residents of Marin County who work in San Francisco, taking the ferryboat has again become a way of life that was thought to have vanished from the bay forever. And if some visionaries among the operators of the Golden Gate Bridge have their way, thousands of commuters may be sailing to work every day.

Before the Golden Gate and San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridges were built, dozens of ferries plied the bay. Their use gradually dwindled and the last boat was taken out of service in 1958.

These days, at 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., city workers board the M.V. Harbor Emperor for the five-and-half-mile run between Tiburon and San Francisco. The trip takes 35 minutes and costs 50 cents. During a recent run, a stockbroker summed up the opinion of the water commuters: "It's the best part of my day."

ON THE MORNING runs, coffee and donuts are served. Passengers read newspapers and magazines, work crossword puzzles and do a little office paper work.

Others stand on the two upper decks, usually bathed in brisk breezes and early-morning sunshine.

Cutting an 11-knot wake, the Harbor Emperor cruises past 770-foot-high Angel Island State Park and Alcatraz Island while the silhouette of San Francisco looms ahead.

Up to 600 persons crowd the dock near the ferry building in San Francisco for the 5:30 return trip. With a cocktail in hand, the commuter can climb to the top deck, watch bumper-to-bumper traffic stalled on the bridges and listen to the cries of seagulls wheeling and dipping around the ferry. On the sheltered lower decks, bridge players try to cram in as many hands as possible.

The Harbor Emperor makes nine daily runs to the city and eight return trips, with passenger totals climbing steadily.

"ONCE WE DROPPED the one-way fare from 75 cents to 50 cents on Jan. 15, business began picking up," said Dale W. Luehring, general manager of the Golden Gate Bridge District, which operated the Harbor Emperor for several months.

The bridge district got into the ferryboat business while trying to find ways to lure commuters from their cars and ease the congestion of nearly 90,000 vehicles per day on the Golden Gate Bridge.

An opportunity presented itself when employes of Harbor Carriers, Inc., which operated bay tours and an unpublicized commuter run, went on strike last fall. The bridge district leased the Harbor Emperor for $200 until the strike ended late in March.

The Harbor Emperor will continue to ferry commuters from Tiburon to San Francisco until July 1 when the bridge district will put its own ferryboat into service.

The district purchased the almost-new, 600-passenger Point Loma from the City of San Diego for $558,000. It will begin operating daily commuter runs between Sausalito and San Francisco this summer. Tiburon, located a few miles east of Sausalito, will be temporarily abandoned as a ferry terminal.

PARKING NEAR the terminals in Tiburon and downtown Sausalito is limited. That's why the bridge district is planning to shift its Sausalito terminal in the fall to a shipyard area north of town where more parking is available.

"This little operation blew up into more than we had expected," said Harlan Soeten, chief of ferry operations for the bridge district. "Problems are now developing because of the popularity of the ferryboats. Public transit wasn't a very attractive term two or three years ago. But neither was the public uptight then about air pollution and environmental ecology as it is now.

"The biggest problem eventually will be to keep up with the demands for ferryboats. We'll need boats with about a 1,000-person capacity," Soeten added.

He sees the day when a crisscross the bay from terminals up and down Marin County. All will dock at the ferry building, where passengers can switch quickly to the new buses.

Luehring is also an enthusiastic planner for a future ferry fleet.

"By 1980 we hope to have a 50-50 split between commuters who use their cars and those using some form of public transit," he said. "That means we must persuade 10,000 more persons to abandon their cars in favor of buses or ferryboats in the next decade."

And, if today's relaxed voyagers are any indication, the ferryboat is back to stay.

FUNNIES

MAGNETIC

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — The left rear fender on John Davis' car seems to possess an uncommon attraction for other cars.

The fender was dented by a hit-run driver recently, and Thursday night as Davis was working on insurance forms concerning the accident, he received a call from a woman who said she had just backed into his parked car and damaged the left rear fender.

At midnight Davis was called by a neighbor who reported he had just backed out of his driveway and hit Davis' car . . . that's right . . . in the left rear fender.

REAL NAME

LONDON (UPI) — London cab driver Alan Matten, 26, and his wife Eileen, 24, wanted a name that would be a bit different for their son. They decided on Xerxes Xavier Zeus Zachary Silas Thaddeus. They'll call him Xerx for short.

ELIXIR

HOUSTON (UPI) — Dr. Frank E. Vandiver, acting president of Rice University, says Gen. John J. Pershing was the greatest ladies' man in the history of the U.S. Army."

Vandiver spent several years conducting research on the Wrold War I general and hopes to begin writing a biography this fall.

PERSHING

"I have talked to no fewer than seven former mistresses of Gen. Pershing, and they not only admit it, they claim the right to that title proudly," Vandiver said.

Pershing died at 87 in Washington in 1948.

"He lived his last years in his apartment in Walter Reed Hospital in Washington," Vandiver said. "There, in total disregard for his doctor's orders, he smoked gargantuan cigars, enjoyed enormous dinners and consumed unbelievable quantities of alcohol — all of which undoubtedly contributed to his long life."

EGGED ON

MATLOCK, England (UPI) — A stork at a nature reserve near here is supposed to become a mother next Tuesday, but she doesn't seem to be able to cope with the prospect and keeps falling off her egg.

"A stork laying an egg in captivity is a rare event," said Eddie Hallam, curator of the Riber Nature Reserve, "and this one isn't very infant-minded."

"She is very clumsy, and we are having all sorts of problems with her."

Hallam and his staff have to watch the bird constantly to make sure she does not damage the egg with her foot.

"She seemed astonished when she laid the egg," said Hallam.

County Investigating Death of 2 Infants In Blaze

A county arson and homicide officers are investigating the circumstances of the death Friday night of two Bellflower infants in a fire in their home at 16251 Woodruff Ave.

Michael J. Bowman, 23 months, was pronounced dead on arrival at Studebaker Hospital at about 10 p.m. after he apparently pulled a lamp into his crib, which set the bedding afire.

His brother Joseph Randall Bowman, 11 months, who had been sleeping in an adjacent crib, died an hour later at the hospital as a result of smoke inhalation.

Sheriff's deputies said the children's mother and stepfather, Karen and Eugene De Los Santos, were out shopping at the time of the fire.

They told officers they smelled smoke when they returned from the shopping trip and ran into the bedroom of their apartment to find the crib in flames. They then called the county fire department.

Deputies said there was major damage to the apartment, one of 86 units in the complex.

A sheriff's spokesman said it will take several days to complete the probes.

ACTION LINE

did. Please do not disclose my identity for, I assure you, there would be reprisals. Anon., Long Beach.

A. ACTION LINE contacted a spokesman for the Long Beach Unified School District, who said the district has no written rule prohibiting beards. "Professionally, of course, I think that a teacher working with boys and girls would want to present an appearance that would advance his educational program," he said. He said he knew of no bearded teachers in the district, "but there may be some." When asked what might happen if you grew a beard, he said he could not answer such a hypothetical question. Spokesmen for both the nearby Bellflower and ABC Unified School Districts said they have no prohibitions against beards, and that there are bearded teachers in both districts.

Church Tax

Q. Do churches pay taxes? If they own, directly or indirectly, profitable businesses, are they taxed on the profits? What about income taxes for their personnel? Mrs. R.S., Bellflower.

A. Churches, and other facilities used for religious purposes, are exempt from paying property taxes. A new California law, which went into effect Jan. 1, 1970, now requires churches to pay the state's 7 per cent tax on corporate income from businesses directly operated by religious organizations, but unrelated to their theological function. Also as of the first of this year, churches, and other tax-exempt organizations, must pay federal income tax on unrelated income. However, only those organizations formed after Jan. 1 will be subject to the tax immediately. Previously established tax-exempt organizations will be given a five-year grace period before being required to pay the tax, according to an Internal Revenue Service spokesman. Clergymen and other church personnel are subject to the same federal income tax regulations as any other citizen.

Non-Stop

Q. I live near the corner of Shipway Avenue and Los Santos Drive, and I would like to know what I have to do to get a stop sign installed in this area to keep it from being used as a speedway. Nine months ago, I submitted a petition to the city traffic division, but I have never heard from them. Can ACTION LINE find out what happened to the petition? R.L., Long Beach.

A. When your petition was submitted, the traffic engineer's office conducted a survey of the area, and decided that a stop or yield sign was not justified. The survey showed that from 1964 to August, 1969 there were 32 accidents in the area, but 24 of them did not occur at the intersection. The survey also showed that 14 of the accidents involved parked cars and other fixed objects. A spokesman for the traffic engineer's office said that stop signs do not work as speed breakers because drivers often tend to go faster to make up for the few seconds they have spent stopped at an intersection. The spokesman promised to call you and answer any other questions you might have. One recourse is to appeal the decision to your councilman, Paul Deats.

COMEDIAN WASN'T JOKING; CART AFIRE

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Comedian Joey Bishop tried to warn a fellow golfer that his golf cart was afire but couldn't convince him he wasn't joking, so he had to pull the man out of the cart Saturday.

Playing in the Fourth Annual Chuck Conners Charity Celebrity Invitational at the Canyon Country Club, Bishop saw smoke coming from an electric cart driven by television producer Harris Katleman.

"Hey Harris, the cart's on fire," shouted Bishop.

"Come on Joey, hit the ball and quit clowning," said Katleman.

"I'm not kidding," said Bishop. Then he rushed to the cart and pulled Katleman out before it burst into flames. By the time club attendants arrived with a fire extinguisher, the cart was destroyed. The club said an electrical short caused the fire.

U.S. Snubs Czech Army Celebration

PRAGUE (AP) — The Czechoslovak army paraded its rockets, big guns, and tanks Saturday at a Liberation Day ceremony boycotted by U.S. diplomatic and military representatives here.

The Americans acted in protest at Czechoslovakia's efforts to slight the role of the U.S. and other Western Allies in freeing the country from the Nazis in 1945, while glorifying the Soviet army.

Invitations to the embassy's military attaches were returned to the Czechoslovak defense Ministry, it was learned, with a letter objecting that the wording "does not recognize that the liberation of your country resulted from a collective effort by the people of Czechoslovakia and the forces of the nations allied to them, not merely to the actions of one of the Allied nations."

Treasurer Hints at Tax Hikes

May be Needed to Prevent Deficit in '71

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy told industry Saturday the Nixon Administration will seek new or higher taxes if necessary to prevent a fiscal 1971 deficit that could perpetuate inflation.

Both Kennedy and a member of the presidential Council of Economic Advisers assured the heads of about 100 of the country's biggest corporations, attending the Business Council's spring meeting, there will be no substantial recession despite sagging profits and rising unemployment.

But Kennedy noted that President Nixon's projected, slender budget surpluses for both this fiscal year and next are in danger of turning into deficits. Then he declared:

"This Administration has been fiscally responsible from the start and we intend to stay that way.

"This may require rigid economy, even beyond what we have already instituted, or it may require enlargement of our tax base.

"BUT WE will not hesitate to pursue either route, or both routes, if we feel that such action is necessary to maintain a responsible fiscal position, one that will help speed the return to and maintain wage-price stability."

After his speech at a closed session of the business organization, Kennedy told reporters the reference to an enlarge tax base meant that the Administration is studying possible requests for new or increased excise taxes, user charges and other revenue-raising devices.

Also under consideration is the seeking of postponements of some of the revenue-reducing provisions of the 1969 tax-reform act which are to take effect in 1971 and 1972.

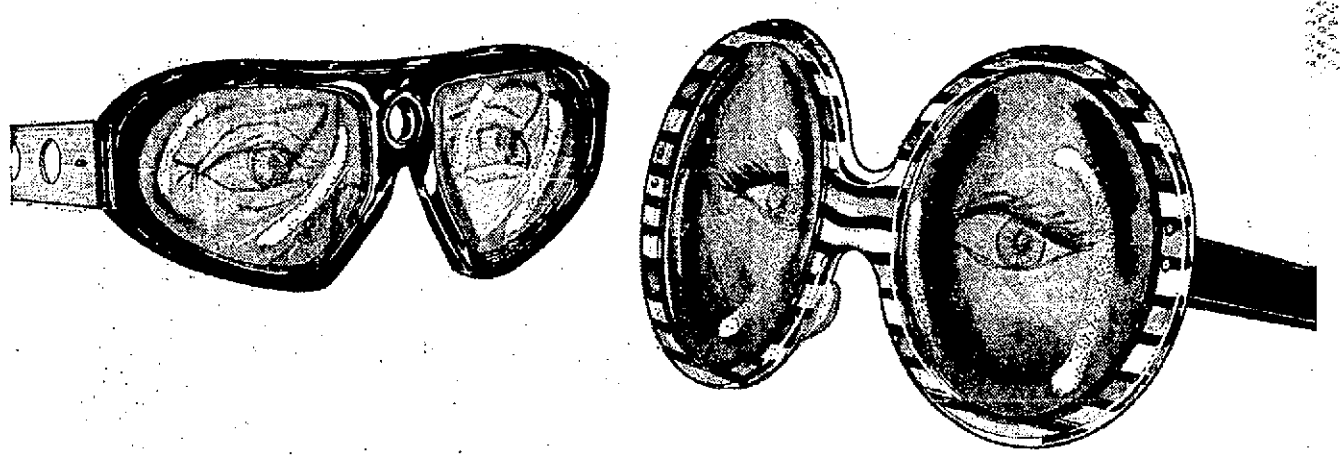

Canadians Hit U.S. Town; Repelled in Fight

BLAINE, Wash. (UPI) — About 450 Canadians — mostly young and bearded — invaded this U.S. border city Saturday to protest the Cambodian situation but were driven back across the border in a running fist fight with townspeople.

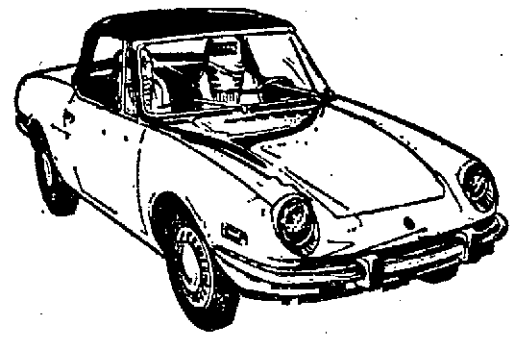

One city policeman was injured. Three persons were arrested. Invaders shattered several windows throughout the downtown area and pelted rocks at a passing freight train carrying new automobiles. Windows of about half of the new cars were broken.

Demonstrators tried to take down the U.S. flag at the local post office but were driven back. During the three-hour melee, traffic was disrupted for a short time on Interstate 5 which connects the two nations.

Frog Jumping Jubilee Gets Out of Hand

By WILEY MALONEY

ANGELS CAMP (UPI) — In compliance with a request, I called on good-natured, garrulous Mayor Ray Callahan of Frogtown the other day to inquire about how frog-jumping was going in Angels Camp since Mark Twain's day.

"It isn't quite the same," the mayor said. "Things are sort of out of hand."

Since the international jumping frog jubilee is scheduled for May 14-17, I wanted to get, as they say, to the rock-bottom of things as they are now 105 years later.

"You know," the mayor said, "I've had a lurking suspicion that Samuel Clemens stretched the truth a bit. You know, of course, he wrote that yarn from Jackass Hill near here. That doesn't sound like too good an address."

"But what's the trouble?"

"WELL," SAID the mayor thoughtfully fixing his fake western tie, "now the general public has taken that old history of "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County" as literal. We just have to abide by the rules, just like scripture. But time moves on.

"Now we're mixed up with cows, chickens, beauty queens, frogs, governors, mayors, foreign notables and Lord knows what. Mister, this year is now the Calaveras County Fair as well as Angels Camp's challenge to the Olympic Games."

Callahan was decked out in a derby hat, a swallow-tailed coat and carried a gold-knobbed cane — the mark of his office no doubt, like a baton. It was his part to play along with other residents of Angels Camp to promote the big event.

There were plenty of whiskers (mostly real) around and buckskins and pretty girls in dresses trailing their ankles.

"Just look at them," the mayor said. "Everyday, almost, they wear miniskirts, even on Sunday."

CALLAHAN was concerned about how to entertain the 72,000 expected for this year's events. Mark Twain, even in his wildest fancies, couldn't dream of what has happened since his mining camp days in the mother lode country in the Sierra.

The mayor backed me off in a corner and blockaded me with his chair — even as Twain had been. Then he started to talk and I couldn't get a word in edgewise — or even perpendicular.

"Thish-yer frog thing, as you know, got started with yarn," the mayor recalled. "That guy Smiley, being bet-crazy, put $40 on his own frog, 'Dan'l Webster.' But a stranger came along and filled Dan'l Webster with a handful of lead shot. Smiley's frog couldn't get off the pad and the stranger walked off with the money."

"Yes, but . . . ?"

"NOW THINGS are mighty different. Thish-yer is a big international event now what with frogs coming from all over the world, even over the pole by airplane. Why, we get maybe 2,000 or more entering the contest. Sure, we reenact that bit about filling the frog full of buckshot, but in the regular contest the rules are clean," he explained.

The length of the leap actually is measured in three jumps. After a frog leaves the starting pad, he may not be touched, although the "frog jockey" may jump up and down, shout, blow on him or do anything else to make him move. If you bring your own frog and enter it for $2, he must measure four inches from nose to base of tail, the place it dropped off when he was a tadpole. He will be allowed 15 seconds on each jump in the qualifying trials and grand finals. He will be disqualified if he does not jump within the allotted time.

"You see how it is," the mayor said. "Last year we had 24 governors who entered frogs and I don't know how many mayors. This thing gets complicated."

The existing world's record was made by a frog named "Rippel" in 1966. He was owned by Leonard Hall and Bill Proctor of Lafayette, Calif., and traveled 19 feet, 3½ inches. The grand prize is now $1,200, going to the owner of the frog breaking the existing Frogtown record.

THE RE-ENACTION of Twain's first frog jump occurred on May 21, 1928 to celebrate the paving of Angels Camp's streets. That day, a line was drawn across the street by the then mayor, James Valente, now 66, who used his boot heel. A total of 51 frogs were entered with an attendance of 5,600.

So far, 18 governors across the land are entered to hurl challenges in the coming championships. Last year's winner in the governors' frog jump event was Gov. Tom McCall's frog, "Mister Oregon," with a leap of 15 feet, 2 inches. But it lost in the championship finals.

Facts You Should Know About Weddings

June is the month for Weddings. There is a certain etiquette most people follow in reference to a wedding. For example: The bride's parents pay for the reception and dinner, the groom pays for the ceremony, the groom's parents pay for the liquor and flowers, the bride and groom exchange plain gold wedding bands as part of the ceremony.

We are fortunate to be jewelers as we are constantly exposed to young love from engagement rings to the wedding. As jewelers, we play an important role as the bride and groom customarily bestow gifts, not only to each other, but to members of the bridal party. A wedding is the occasion for the personal gift, and there is nothing more personal than a gift of jewelry. Remember, the gift you choose is something you want the recipient to treasure and remember for many years. That is why JEWELRY is always the ideal gift.

What should the groom give as a gift to the bride?

The birthstone for June is PEARL. It is thus very appropriate to give her CULTURED PEARLS. We suggest a lovely cultured pearl necklace, which she can wear with her bridal dress. Your jeweler will help you choose the exact size, color, and shape of the cultured pearl strand that will most aptly fit your intended. The selection of this cultured pearl strand will give your bride immense pleasure forever. You may purchase a beautiful gift of cultured pearls for approximately $50.00 to $100.00.

If you have any questions, please consult us. We would be not only happy, but proud to be of service in making your wedding a success.

Just drop in, call or write us at Lawson's Jewelers, 250 Pine Ave., Downtown Long Beach Only.

Boxes can be very square.

But Friends of the Long Beach Museum of Art took this routine subject and, with customary Friends' imagination, turned it into the sophisticated, exciting, creative theme for their annual Art Bazaar.

Next Sunday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m, museum grounds at 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. will be the liveliest place in Long Beach. Last year, 4,100 visitors watched artists at work, ate, bought bargains and listened to music.

This year, they will do much the same. Friends, wearing vinyl aprons in bright colors, will greet them at the gate. There's no admission charge.

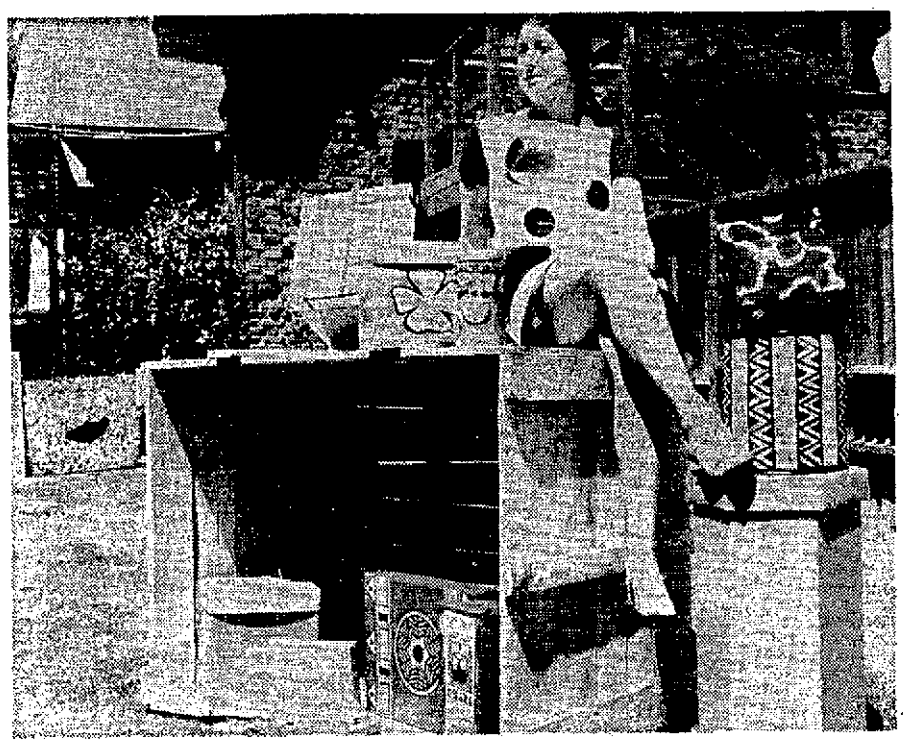

At stalls, more than 70 artists will display ceramics, paintings, jewelry, weaving and sculpture.

Door prizes always are a major attraction. This year they are jewelry by Joseph Girtner, a print by T. Ryohei of Shinno Associates, a large ceramic by Roland Shutt, weaving by Bill Kleese and sculpture by Kenn Glenn. Tickets will be sold for 50 cents.

Seven items have been donated for a silent auction which will run through 2:30 p.m.

LIVING STATUES? Could be, but they SAID they were examining wooden crates destined to become box sculpture. From left are Mrs. Hans Bunger, Mrs. Duane Gurnee, and Mrs. Otto Kerstner, president of Friends.

NONCHALANTLY, Mrs. Richard Klass perches on boxful of boxes made by Friends for booth at bazaar.

TO SET THE MUSICAL mood, Dr. Gerald Daniel and Mrs. Duane Gurnee, president-elect, have taped music which they describe as "expressionistic, contemporary," and have subtitled "Music for Bazaars."

The Friends' own booth will be stocked with 200 hand-decorated boxes of all sizes and shapes, designed to fit many purposes — for gifts, storage, display and decoration. The 90 women have let their imaginations run free during workshop sessions in homes. Prices will range from 10 cents to $1.50.

The bazaar will expand this year into the parking lot facing the ocean, made gay with large tables and colorful umbrellas. Tacos, hamburgers, doughnuts, soft drinks and coffee will be for sale. Popcorn will be sold from an antique popcorn wagon from the Metlox collection in Huntington Beach.

At day's end, 90 weary women will total their profits, money that will go for support of the museum and its activities.

When bazaar chairman Mrs. Sheldon Sundgren and co-chairman Mrs. Richard Morrison present the donation to museum director Jason Wong, how will they do it?

In a box, of course.

Musical casts lasting spell

In these raucous times of riots, demonstrations, dissent and war, it's reassuring to find lasting values — whether they be in people or places.

Perhaps that's why Long Beach Civic Light Opera is closing its current season with a nostalgic show.

"Take Me Along" is the delightful musical version of Eugene O'Neill's enduring comedy, "Ah, Wilderness," which treats with humor and sympathy the strengths and foibles of the Miller family. Set in a small town in the early 1900s, the story opens with a Fourth of July celebration. The townspeople are exuberant, celebrating the arrival of a brand new, bright red fire engine for which Nat, head of the Miller family and editor of the town's newspaper, has campaigned.

As the day progresses, problems surface . . . romantic complications for Richard Miller, 16, (played by Robert Anderson) and Muriel Macomber (played by Diana Monter). And Sid returns — the errant, bibulous brother of Essie, Mrs. Miller. Sixteen years ago Nat's sister, Lily, broke her engagement to Sid — but the romance never really died.

With town characters and other family members, the plot develops in depth and color.

Reunions dot social scene

By LINDA ZINK
(subbing for vacationing Pat McDonnell)

THE BIG ONE that got away is big news today among Long Beach Yacht Club Anglers and their wives following yellowtail charter trip this weekend.

Among those embarking on the 20-knot "Patrician" late Friday were Millie and Clay Hopper, Marge and Glen Bracken, Frank and Sue Mansuy and Herbert and Ida Buehler.

Others joining them to stalk the big ones off San Clemente and Catalina were Don Gillespie, Jed and Helen Welsh, Jack and Laurie Cummings, Frank Mansup Sr. and Anglers, commodore, Joe Cunningham.

HAPPY DIN of 19 feminine voices didn't faze three-week-old Barrett Scott Dickie as he slept soundly through a party in his honor. Iola Masterson — serene despite signs of construction at the Masterson home — was party hostess and Barrett's mother, Sally, sat in for her son in unwrapping gifts.

Among those gathered to admire the sleeping Dickie heir were his grandmothers Virginia Dickie and Ruby Bothwell, great-grandma Mrs. Ralph Schmidt, aunts Sandie Dickie and Nancy Bothwell and pretend aunts, Hope Cunningham, Betty Cantor, Dorothy Banks and Pat Horrocks, to name a few.

GETTING BACK TO DISHES and the daily routine has been a trying transition for Betty Kesler.

She and husband, Joe, recently returned from six weeks in the Orient and South Pacific where they visited Expo '70 in Japan, Taipei, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Djkarta, Sydney and the Fiji and Yuuaca islands. Highlight of the trip, according to Betty, was viewing beautiful Mt. Fuji sans clouds.

EVERYTHING was in the pink (cupids and coaches and all) Saturday at Virginia Country Club as VCC oldtimers welcomed new members at annual spring dance.

Table hosts Kay and John Roggeveen ushered new members Audrey and Ray Green Jr. and Audrey and Arnold Romeyn into club happenings in grand style. On hand to help were Tharas and Charles Skidmore, George and Ann Tallin.

Cocktails, dinner and dancing were part of the fun for spring initiates Ida and Joseph Ashton, Del and Charles Bonney, Cuba and Don Curl; Sally and Dr. Richard de Golia and Birdsall and Bill Broom.

Other new members: Marion and Paul Fitzmaurice, Frances and Robert Kelley, Jane and Don Kuster, Delores and Harold Lingle, Catherine and Dr. James Peacock, Marjorie and Robert Nados, Ann and Carey Scarborough, Lucille and Robert Shaffer and Jeanne and Lawrence Weitzel.

THERE'S NO BETTER WAY, says Florence Dodge, to celebrate a birthday (though she's not saying which one) than with a group of groovy friends.

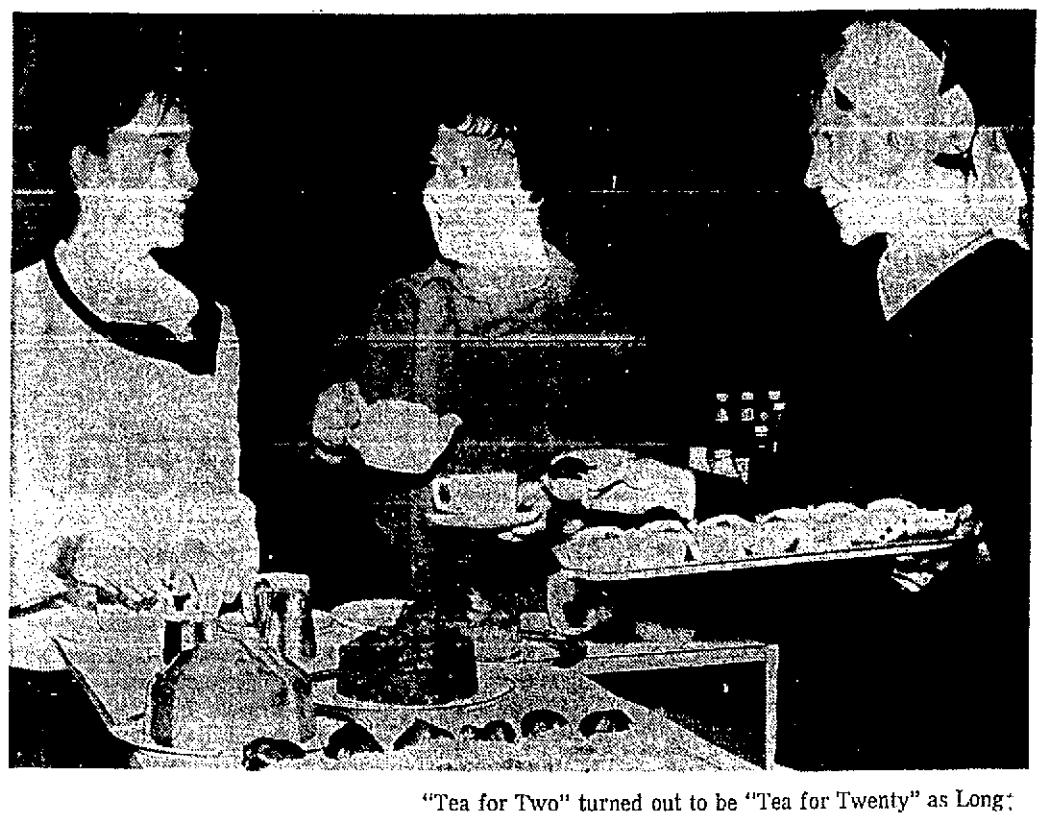

Joining Florence and husband Steve at the Dodge home last week were Jackie Blotner and Jim Silkaitter, Odessa and Bob Parker, Henry Roberts and Diana and Bob Keys.

Then it was off to Pasadena to tour the Junior Philharmonic's Showcase of Interior Design where the group was joined by Jennie Harris and Tony Osio and on to Miyako's Japanese restaurant for sukiyaki and tempura. Guests were seated on the floor with host Steve insisting everyone eat with chopsticks.

A BIT OF ITALY was imported to the Terraine Avenue home of Jacquelin and Joseph Blanche when the couple hosted a garden party in honor of Giuseppe and Antonia Dell'Acqua, visiting here from Muggia, Italy.

Umbrellas dotted the landscape as the Dell'Acquas were greeted by Lucian and Rose Turnatori, Edward and Esther Lawrence and Mario and Alda Parovel.

Others in attendance were the Dell'Acqua's daughter and son-in-law, Paula and Richard Fortune, the Blanche's niece, Linda Ferrigno of New Haven, Conn.; son Richard Blanche and Jacquelin's brother and sister-in-law, Betty and Bob Beerds of Miami, Fla.

It's tea time aboard liner Canberra

"Tea for Two" turned out to be "Tea for Twenty" as Long Beach Symphony Juniors and guests boarded the British luxury liner Canberra as honored guests for an authentic British tea. Among those partaking of fancy English pastries and tea were Wanda Sewak, Ruth Boorkman, Connie Starr, Cathy Cleveland, Nancy Fleischli, Deonne Griffiths, Jean Hubb and Pat Lawrence. Pictured above: Yvonne Houssels (left), Florence Dodge, Margaret Durnin.

Republicans plan candidate party

Getting ready for "Grand Old Party" sponsored by Lakewood-Long Beach Republican Women, Federated, are Mmes. Robert E. Moriarty, left, James M. Crawford and Robert J. Kraft with "friend." Edgewater Hyatt House will be site of next Sunday's event. No-host cocktail hour at 5:30 p.m. precedes dinner. Tickets are $10 per person. The public is invited to meet Republican candidates for state and congressional posts and for State Central Comittee. A couturier fashion show will follow dinner, with commentary by Jan Simonian. Mrs. Kraft will take reservations.

Nevada trip for couple

Melanie Lynn Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Roberts, 5808 Barrios St., exchanged nuptial vows with Terrence L. Guetzkow during a Saturday afternoon ceremony in Bethany Lutheran Church.

The bride chose a formal empire gown trimmed with Chantilly lace for her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Guetzkow, 3531 Palo Verde Ave.

Kathi Martineck, maid of honor, Mrs. Sam Thomas, the bridegroom's sister and Mrs. Edward Slater preceded the bride to the altar.

Tim Gatlin performed best man duties and 150 guests were seated by Chris Macias, and the bride's brother, Brett Roberts.

MRS. TERRENCE GUETZKOW

A reception in the church hall followed the nuptials. Upon return from a honeymoon trip to Las Vegas, the newlyweds will live in Long Beach.

The bridegroom attended Long Beach City College.

Faris-Nazaretian vows said

Dr. John Wilson Faris III claimed as his bride, Linda Joyce Nazaretian of Los Angeles during a ceremony in United Armenian Congregational Church of Hollywood.

The newlyweds will move to Long Beach in June following the bridegroom's graduation from USC School of Dentistry. Son of Dr. and Mrs. John W. Faris Jr., 3912 Lemon Ave., he will enter practice with his father. His grandfather, Dr. John W. Faris, also is a Long Beach dentist.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sirok Nazaretian of Los Angeles, the bride wore a Maurer candlelight satin gown in empress silhouette and was attended by Janice Antoyan as maid of honor. Dr. Bob Stender of Arcadia, USC classmate of the bridegroom, was best man.

A dinner dance for 250 guests in Sheraton Universal Hotel Ballroom West followed the vow exchange. The couple took a honeymoon trip to Carmel and Bay area cities.

Tracy Clinic plans bazaar

Annual benefit family bazaar sponsored by parents of John Tracy Clinic will be held Saturday at the clinic, 806 W. Adams Blvd., Los Angeles, beginning at 11 a.m.

A show by television, motion picture stars and Disney Studio characters at 3 p.m., will be followed by an auction.

Among committee members helping with arrangements are Larry Curry and Edmund Callewaert, Long Beach; Thomas Burge, Torrance, Mrs. Dorothy Dostal, Newport Beach; Richard Monsen and Mrs. Jean Watson, Downey; Walter Johnson, Harbor City; Kelly Hillenburg and James Magill, Anaheim.

You get MORE than Red Carpet Treatment at SCHICK'S . . .
Southern California's Distinctive Fashion Store

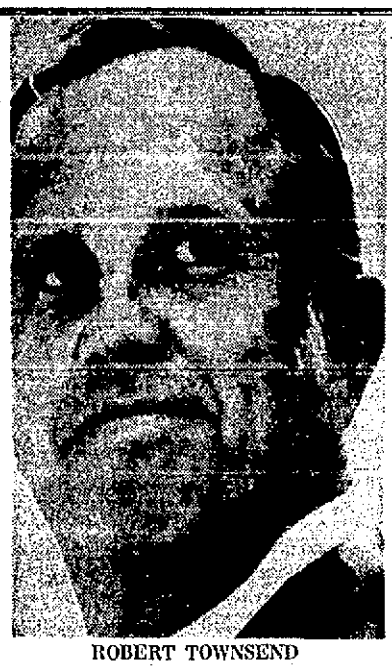

At Schick's we not only roll out the velvet carpet but we give you SPA (SCHICK'S PERSONALIZED ATTENTION)! Our trained stylists will hover over you (even though you're not the Princess of Morocco) and bring choice new fashions to you in our soon-to-be-glorified fitting rooms, (part of our face-lifting project) where you may try on to your heart's content until we find a dress to compliment you and gather compliments.

If you're the mother of a June Bride we've a gorgeous collection of gowns for daytime until after-dark. And if you're a jet setter or cruising to "far away places," see our wonderful washables, including pant suits, all wrinkle-proof. We've glamorous styles for you stay-at-homes accessorized with bags, jewelry or scarves. We'll even dress up your complexion with Alexandra de Markoff Cosmetics and make you irresistible with Nettie Rosenstein's super scents.

It's fun to shop at Schick's where we've outfitted lovely Long Beach ladies — their mothers, sisters and aunts since away back. The customer is still Queen here, so come in and enjoy our special pampering — and the price is right!

"The chief executive is the number one enemy of the corporation."

ROBERT TOWNSEND

Husband a snakepit? Greet him with a martini and a kiss

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

Best-seller "Up the Organization" wasn't intended to be a best-seller at all.

"It was an inter-office memo," explained author Robert Townsend, "and had an original run of 100 copies. But if I'd intended it to be a best-seller, it probably would have sold 100 copies.

"There's a tremendous women's market for this book," he noted. "The average woman doesn't read books about business — and I'll admit they're pretty dull. But after she's read this book, she'll understand why her husband is a snake pit when he comes home and why she should greet him with a kiss and a martini.

"And for the woman intent on driving her husband up the wall, it'll give her a whole new set of questions to ask," he said, a twinkle in his eye. "She'll know, for example, that the 'important' board of director's meeting isn't so important after all."

His book is about eliminating nonsense and bringing justice to the organization.

Among his proposals:

GET RID OF the advertising, public relations and personnel departments and all assistants-to.

Let anyone earning over $150 a week set his own hours and vacation schedules. "The responsible employe won't do anything to reduce his effectiveness anyway, so why box him into certain hours?"

Introduce an incentive plan with no ceiling on how much the person can make.. "Raises and promotions should be based on merit rather than who the employe knows, what he looks like or how he dresses. And, whatever happens, the person who doesn't deserve a raise or promotion shouldn't get it. It's bad for company morale."

The good chief executive, according to Townsend, should spend his first 90 days in office getting the opinion of employes about what the goal of the organization should be.

"And you can't call them into your office. Nobody gives the boss a straight answer there. You have to talk to them where they work, eat where they eat, wear the uniform they wear, use the transportation they use. That's the only way you'll find out what's going on in your own company.

"BY THE TIME your 90 days are up you'll know who the lemons are and who the heroes are. Your first act should be to fire the lemons. That'll be as much of a tonic to the others as a raise."

Townsend claims he wants nothing more to do with organizations and May 13 is the day he's set to stop talking about them.

"I have about 50 things I want to do, and I guess my first project will be locating outside the United States — probably in London. It's getting to be a bore living here, especially in New York."

An immediate plan for Townsend is a month-long cruise on the Aegean with his wife, whom he describes as "right of Louis XIV" and children, who are "revolutionaries."

"I suppose I'll spend most of my time keeping my kids out of Greek jails," he said.

"I never spent much time with them when they were younger. Then one day several years ago I actually talked with my 13-year-old and I discovered he was 13 going on 39 — he'd learned so much because of television."

Townsend also revealed he was doing some lyric writing for songs. His first is about the women's liberation movement. "It's a calypso."

Did he think it would sell?

"Well no, not really."

Catholic rite joins O'Brien, Berchtold names

Lakewood High School graduates JoAnn Marie Berchtold and William J. O'Brien Jr. exchanged nuptial vows Saturday morning in St. Maria Goretti Catholic Church.

The daughter of Mrs. Joseph Berchtold, 4245 Hackett Ave., Lakewood, and the late Mr. Berchtold, wore a formal white satin empire gown with lace sleeves and tiered train.

The bride was preceded to the altar by Mrs. Michael Shaver, matron of honor, Nancy Hytrek and Sue Ravin.

Larry Meyer served as best man and ushering duties were shared by Richard Eynon and Michael Shaver.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Norma Calvert, 3412 Arbor Road, Lakewood.

Upon return from a honeymoon trip to Carmel, the newlyweds will reside in Anaheim.

The bridegroom attended Long Beach City College.

Easy measure

A pound of cream/style cottage cheese yields two cups. An eight-ounce package of cream cheese yields one cup.

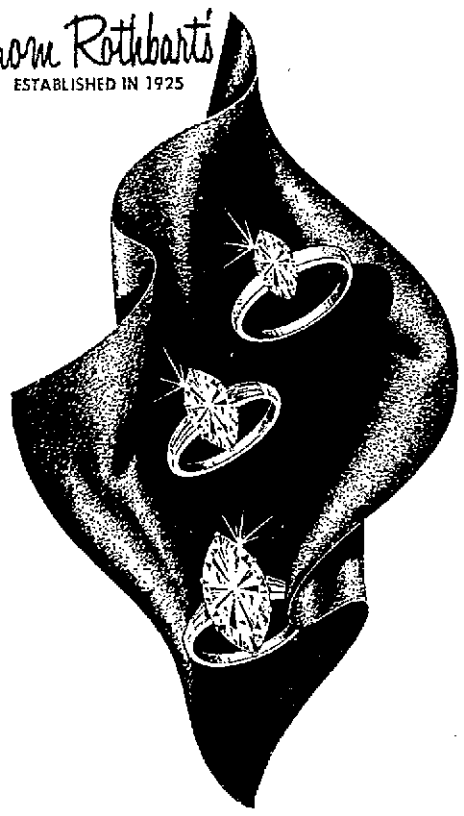

Cleaner silver

A cotton swab dipped in silver cleaner cleans the decorative work on silver platters or serving bowls. The swab does the job better than a cloth — especially when it comes to getting into the tiny crevices.

Baked potatoes

When baking potatoes, put each potato in one of the holes in a muffin tin. They're easier to remove and the tin prevents the potatoes from rolling around or dropping through the cracks in the oven.

In planning your vacation wardrobe, which comes first — your pattern or your fabric? We suggest that you browse through the fabric department, making mental or written notes about those that really appeal to you, keeping your wardrobe plan in mind.

Then, as you pour over the pattern catalogs, take a good, long look at the lines of the styles you like. Select ones with lines that will really do something for you . . . not just style for style's sake.

Laying out and cutting your fabric on grain is probably the most important step in achieving the well-made rather than the homemade look in the fashions you will be creating. If you sew a crooked seam, it can be ripped out, but you can rarely correct a cutting error.

ALTHOUGH NOT absolutely necessary, we feel that a pattern cutting board, marked off in one-inch squares with bias and straight lines, is an extremely valuable aid to the home seamstress.

Without a doubt, the most important words in sewing are "straight of grain." All fabrics, whether woven or knitted, have a crosswise and lengthwise grain. No matter what the weave, the threads cross each other in two directions at right angles. That is what is meant by grain.

Every pattern has arrows or similar markings to indicate how the pattern piece should lie in relation to the grain of the fabric. If you fail to straighten your fabric or ignore the grain markings on the pattern pieces, don't be surprised if your garment hangs badly.

Be sure your fabric is well-pressed and straight. If it does not tear readily on the crosswise grain, straighten it by pulling a thread and then cutting along the thread space. To do this, snip the selvage and pull one thread all across the width of the fabric.

Some, but not all, knitted fabrics can be straightened by pulling a thread. If that doesn't work on your fabric, you may be able to straighten it by cutting along a ridge. In a future column, we will cover more thoroughly the cutting and sewing of the various types of knits.

Examine your pattern layout and determine whether the fabric is to be on a lengthwise or crosswise fold. Sometimes, part of the pattern pieces will be laid out one way and other parts will be laid out the other way.

IN ANY CASE, pin crosswise grain ends together and pin selvage edges together. Pin the straight edges of the fabric to the straight lines of the cutting board.

If the fabric will not smooth out grain-perfect, it may have to be stretched or shrunk slightly until it will. Frequently this can be done with a steam iron while the material is pinned to the cutting board. Steam won't hurt your board. While you are steaming (literally or figuratively), a gentle pulling on the diagonal from corner to corner may be all that is needed.

Wisdoms announce Deborah's troth

Dr. and Mrs. William R. Wisdom, former Long Beach residents now residing in Palos Verdes Estates, announced the engagement of their daughter, Deborah, to Allen Weaver Johnson.

Miss Wisdom, a third-generation Californian, is an alumna of Marymount High School, Palos Verdes, and will graduate in June from Loyola-Marymount College. A theater arts major, she has been on the Dean's List.

The future bridegroom, son of Mrs. Donald E. Fuller of Palos Verdes and the late Mr. William Ellis Johnson, was graduated from Palos Verdes High School and is currently completing work towards a degree in mathematics at California State College at Long Beach. He was formerly a member of the Palos Verdes Players.

An afternoon Nuptial Mass will be celebrated June 20th in St. Lawrence Martyr Catholic Church, Redondo Beach.

Letter wins bunny hug for Robin

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN
Women's Editor

"Groovy," said Robin.

"Groovies!!" said the judges.

"Oh, my gosh," said Playboy Bunny Kathy Foster as she deplaned from Hugh Hefner's Big Bunny and learned she had been named Belmont Shore's "grooviest mother of the year."

Responsible was a letter submitted by her 7-year-old daughter in a Belmont Shore Business Association sponsored contest which promised boys and girls in the area, "your big chance to thank your Mother in a BOSS way for all the GROOVY things she does for you all year.

"Just write a one page letter describing in your own words why your Mom is the grooviest Mom in the Belmont Shore area."

A first grader at Naples Elementary School, Robin wrote her letter, enclosed some pictures, then sat back and waited.

"She's sneaky about things like this," said her mother and best friend, "she didn't say a word about the contest."

LEARNING HER LETTER had won, however, Robin exploded with little girl glee, bunny hopped into the air and cried, "I knew we'd win. I just knew I had the grooviest mama. I just had to tell them!"

A postscript to Robin's letter implored contest judges, "May I please have these piccers back. My mom does not know I took them and she mite kneed them."

The judges, with a sigh, have done so.

Newlywed Kovals on San Francisco trip

Rita Frances Newon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Newon, 6628 Centralia St., Lakewood, exchanged nuptial vows with Michael Edgar Koval Friday in St. Cornelius Catholic Church.

The bride wore a formal gown of tulle and lace, trimmed with pink ribbons and roses for her marriage to the son of Mrs. Edgar Koval of El Dorado, Ill., and the late Mr. Koval.

Gail Newon was her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaids included Christina Walsh, Sharyn Duffy and Rose Close. Kelly Koval, the bridegroom's niece, and Richard Harpham were flower girl and ring bearer.

The bridegroom asked Roy Kessler to be best man. Ushering duties were shared by Ronald Lassiter, Dominick Pescarolo and Robert Newon, the bride's brother.

Following a reception in St. Anthony High School Cafeteria, the newlyweds departed on a honeymoon trip to San Francisco. They plan to live in Long Beach.

Vows read in church

During a ceremony in St. Barnabas Catholic Church, Dorothea Ann Hollingsworth exchanged vows with Michael W. Burns.

For her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Burns, 4561 Elm Ave., the bride chose a formal white satin gown trimmed with brocade flowers and sewn with seed pearls.

Patricia Burns, the bridegroom's sister, was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Sandy Gould, Chris Borman and Teresa Wolf.

Robert Burns was his nephew's best man, Clifford B. Hollingsworth Jr. and Jeffrey Hollingsworth, the bride's brothers, seated guests.

Following a buffet reception at Sir George's Smorgasbord Restaurant, Huntington Beach, the newlyweds departed on a honeymoon trip to San Francisco. They plan to live in Panorama City.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford B. Hollingsworth Sr., of Huntington Beach was graduated from Marina High School, and attended Golden West Junior College. Her husband, an alumnus of Jordan High, was graduated from California State College at Long Beach, where he was a member of the varsity baseball team.

'Games people play' are not for him

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: It all began when three families were good friends. The husband of one and the wife of another had an "affair." Then the wronged wife and wronged husband decided to even the score, so they had an affair.

It was a very messy scandal which got to the point of where both couples were asking for divorces, with one man accusing the other man of fathering his last child.

The third family (mine) was not involved, except that we were friends of both.

Well, they patched up their differences, and, believe it or not, these two families took all their kids and vacationed together!

My husband says he doesn't want anything more to do with these people as he thinks there is still something going on between one man and the other man's wife. I say, it's none of our business. I still like them. Abby, what is your opinion? I don't feel that I should sit in judgment of anyone.—SMALL TOWN, OHIO

DEAR SMALL TOWN: If your husband doesn't want to pal around with these two couples, I don't blame him. Find other friends. It's not a matter of "sitting in judgment"—it's respecting the wishes of a mate who can hardly be blamed for putting the kibbosh on couples who play musical beds.

DEAR ABBY: Five years ago I was given a license by the state of California to marry my stepbrother. We were married in a Christian church ceremony and have two beautiful children who are baptized in the church. I am sure there must be hundreds of other married couples who used to be stepbrother and stepsister.

In your column you called a woman who married her stepbrother a "weirdo." If you are suggesting that there is something either immoral or illegal about such marriages, please retract it, as that kind of statement can hurt a lot of people.—EX-STEPSISTER NOW WIFE AND MOTHER

DEAR EX: The "weirdo" in my column was referred to as a "weirdo" not because she married her stepbrother, but because she married him while she was still married to her husband, which made her a bigamist!

DEAR ABBY: I could just cry! For two weeks we've been looking for a house to rent and have had no luck at all. We've seen several homes that would be ideal for us, but as soon as we tell them we have six children they say, "Sorry, we want adults only."

It just makes me sick, Abby. What are we supposed to do with our children? Drown them?—COULD CRY

DEAR COULD: I understand your problem and sympathize with you. But if you were a property owner whose property had been damaged by children, you'd be reluctant to rent to families with children, too. Not everyone with six children owns a home. Keep looking.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "OLD ADAM": Your beautiful daughter who has been around a great deal geographically is "21"—plus eight. If she chooses to visit the apartments of her gentlemen friends, she will go. But if she is as "mature" and carefully brought up as you say she is, you need not be as concerned about her welfare as you appear to be, Daddy.

Karpin on bridge

by Fred L. Karpin

One of the world's most widely read mystery-story writers is Agatha Christie, of Great Britain.

Miss Christie is also a bridge player. Back in 1936 she wrote a book called "Cards on the Table," in which "dummy" was murdered during a bridge game. Hercule Poirot, her favorite detective, as well as a master bridge player, was able to deduce the identity of the murderer, who received his just desserts.

In today's deal, our expert South declarer was guilty of a crime against the fair name of bridge.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

After declarer had captured the opening lead with his ace of diamonds, he led the king of clubs. When play had ended, declarer had lost one club, two diamonds, and a heart.

First, we question the wisdom of declarer attacking the club suit. Since deception was required to fulfill the contract — declarer had four sure losers — his better play would have been to enter dummy via the trump king in order to lead a low heart. If East possessed the ace of hearts (as he did) and declined to play it, South would have avoided the loss of a heart trick.

But, if one accepts South's attacking of the club suit at trick two, surely he should not have led the king. Instead, he should have led the nine-spot, in the hope that West possessed the ace.

NOW, OF COURSE, neither you nor I, nor Hercule Poirot, will ever know whether West would have been inclined to "waste" the club ace on a lonely nine-spot. If he didn't, the nine would win. Next would come the king, the jack, and the ace of trumps, gathering in the outstanding pieces.

Now the king of clubs would be led, and West's ace would be ambushed. Whether he covered the king with the ace or not, South would not lose a club trick

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

AT WIT'S END

Up from the depths of a shocking dream

By ERMA BOMBECK

I had a dream the other night that my husband ran away with my modern kitchen and was living in sin with it in an apartment in New Jersey.

"What kind of wife is this?" I asked, storming into his room without knocking.

"The best kind," he said. "When I come home, Phyllis, the electric cocktail stirrer, has a drink for me; Iris, the oven, has hot hors d'oeuvres on her shelf; Evelyn, the broiler, has a steak going and Margaret, the electric percolator, has fresh, hot coffee brewing."

"I always had fresh coffee brewing."

"Yeah, but you brewed it in the mornings so that by the time I got home it was in a solid state. Besides, Roberta, the stereo, has soft music going and when I'm finished Bertha, the disposer, does away with my leftovers neat and tidy."

"You're not being fair," I sobbed.

"Oh, but I am. Elsa, the dishwasher, never grabs my plate out from under me before I am finished. And Toni, the refrigerator, works day and night to keep me in ice cubes."

"You're pretty cute, aren't you?" I said, "But what about your laundry?"

"Meet the twins, Shirley and Selma. Shirley washes my clothes to perfection. Never have I had to wear pink underwear or use faded peach handkerchiefs. And Selma, God love her, dries my clothes smooth and knows enough to keep her lint trap shut when I am tired."

"But who listens to your your jokes?"

"I've got Sophie, a portable tape recorder, and Bunny, a toaster that snickers," he smirked. "Really, my dear, you are wasting your time here. What could I possibly have with a real live wife that 'my girls' cannot do with maddening efficiency?"

I woke up suddenly, and shook him out of a sound sleep.

"If you wanted a girl with a clock in her navel, why didn't you marry one!" I shouted. Boy, did I marry a weirdie.

Honeymooners visit exotic areas

MRS. JAMES H. AIKEN

Aiken-Smith

Dawn Alana Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen McKenzie Smith, 4457 Maury Ave., exchanged nuptial vows with James Harold Aiken during a Saturday afternoon ceremony in West Lakewood Baptist Church.

Jill Smith was maid of honor for her sister, who chose a traditional gown of organdy and lace for her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Edgar Aiken II, 2432 Daneland St., Lakewood.

Bridesmaids included Robin Smith, the bride's sister, Nancy Aiken, sister of the bridegroom, Patricia Beaver and Kathleen Reisweber.

The bridegroom asked his brother, Gilbert Edgar Aiken III, to be best man and 200 guests were ushered by Zero Crabtree, John Northrup, David Wengert and Roy White.

Following a reception in the church hall, the newlyweds departed on a honeymoon trip to Mexico. They plan to live in Long Beach.

The bride was graduated from Jordan High School and Whittier College, where she was a member of Phi Beta. She is currently teaching at Longfellow Elementary School, Long Beach. Her husband, who recently completed a four-year tour of duty with the U.S. Navy, was graduated from Lakewood High and attended Long Beach City Colege.

MRS. R. M. STIRLING

Stirling-Pycha

Janet Lynn Pycha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Pycha, 229 Stanford Lane, Seal Beach, became the bride of Raymond Martin Stirling during a Saturday afternoon ceremony in Bethany Lutheran Church.

Lt. Charles F. Stirling, USAF, and Mrs. Stirling, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, were best man and matron of honor.

Also preceding the bride to the altar were Paula Shepherd, maid of honor, Linda Stewart and Patricia McRae, flower girl.

Kenneth Puotinen and Christopher Holmgren shared ushering duties.

For her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Stirling, 1148 E. First St., the bride chose a formal Chantilly lace empire gown designed with silk organza panel, Victorian neckline and bishop sleeves.

Following a reception for 200 guests in the church hall, the newlyweds departed on a honeymoon trip to Lake Tahoe. They plan to live in Long Beach.

The bride, a Wilson High School graduate, attended Long Beach City College. Her husband was graduated from Long Beach Polytechnic High, where he was a member of Key Club and served as senior class graduation speaker. He is currently attending California State College at Long Beach and is a member of the Association of American Geographers.

Holt-Wetzel

Touring Greece, Germany and France following their marriage Saturday at St. Francis Episcopal Church in Palos Verdes Estates are the new Mr. and Mrs. William Byron Holt (Sally Caroline Wetzel).

Attired in a floor-length gown of ivory silk satin with high ring neck and short cap sleeves accented with lace, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Wetzel of Palos Verdes Estates was attended by Carla Meibergen, maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Katie Welzel, Margaret Rogers, Julia Rogers, Malanie Morgan and Mary Griffith.

Raymond Holt served as his brother's best man and Hank Wetzel, John Welzel, Phil Kribel, Ernie Clayton and Mike Novikoff seated guests. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Holt of Compton.

A luncheon at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. The newlyweds will reside in Santa Monica.

MRS. WILLIAM HOLT

Beard-Mummah

Honeymooning in Hawaii following exchange of nuptial vows Saturday evening in Atlantic Avenue Methodist Church are Lt. Dennis Norman Beard, USA, and Mrs. Beard (Diane Mignon Mummah).

The bride, attired in a formal silk-faced peau de soie gown trimmed with Guipure lace, was attended by her sister, Mrs. John M. Young, matron of honor.

Donna Doan, Sheila Grogan, Mary Hartung, Debra Beard, the bridegroom's sister, and Tami Lund completed the entourage.

James H. Phillip was best man for his cousin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman P. Beard of Long Beach.

Steven E. Abel, Ronald R. Robbins and John M. Young ushered guests.

The newlyweds, who were feted during a reception in the church Fellowship Hall, will reside in Long Beach.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Verne R. Mummah, Long Beach, was graduated from Millikan High School and attended Long Beach City College. Her husband, also a Millikan graduate, is an alumnus of California State College at Long Beach.

MRS. DENNIS BEARD

major roles. Marvin Cloyd is Nat, Patricia Zieg is Essie. Betty Kimber Toppen portrays Lily and Ken Dab-Row appears as Sid, the role played by Jackie Gleason on Broadway.

Stepping in for cameo roles are Craig Gardner (Jimmy in "110 in the Shade") and Carolyn Thomson (Daisy in "On a Clear Day").

WHEN TIME came to shoot publicity pictures for the show, CLO general manager Harvey Waggoner remembered the Bembridge house. This is the elegant, stately home at 953 Park Circle, built from 1904 to 1906 by Stephen Green, a world traveler and a man of wealth, culture and taste. Neither time nor money was spared in making the house a show place.

In 1913, several years after Green's death, the house was bought by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rankin and has been in the family continuously. Its owner today is the Rankin's daughter, Dorothy Rankin Bembridge.

Last year, the valiant house — still in excellent condition — survived a mortal threat. The city is expanding Drake Park across the street, and marked the Bembridge house for destruction or relocation. Public outcry was loud and the city modified its plans, adding land behind the house for park expansion. Today, park development is underway and when completed, the landscaping will add new beauty to the landmark residence.

WITH MRS. BEMBRIDGE'S consent, Waggoner took the cast to the splendid house — and it was as though these were the people who inhabited it at the turn of the century. The crystal chandeliers, the fine furniture, the Italian marble fireplace, the stained glass windows were the perfect background for "Take Me Along."

"The show ought to be played in that house," said Waggoner.

Instead, it will open May 22 at 8:30 p.m. in Jordan Auditorium, 6500 Atlantic Ave. Other performances are scheduled May 23, 29 and 30 at 8:30 p.m. and May 24 and 31 at 2:30 p.m.

Tickets for this recapturing of a time when problems existed but were more manageable, are on sale at the CLO box office, 518 E. Fourth St., and at ticket agencies.—ELISE EMERY

Pooler to conduct 20th century chorale

The 20th Century Chorale of California State College at Long Beach will sing next Sunday at 8 p.m. in California Heights Methodist Church, 3759 Orange Ave. Frank Pooler will direct the concert to which the public is invited without charge.

The chorale was organized last fall to perform music of the 1900s only. Pooler envisioned the choir as an extension of the college music offerings to the community. During his 10 years at CSLB, the professor of music has innovated many choral ideas. He has had two series of contemporary music published and has adjudicated numerous festivals.

On the May 17th concert, music by R. Vaughn Williams, Ron Nelson, Flor Peters and Benjamin Britten will be sung. Other numbers will be two choral etudes by Father Eugene Lindusky.

French play spirited

France's stage director-actor, Jean-Louis Barrault, will star in his production of "Rabelais," which will play in The Music Center's Ahmanson Theater Monday through Saturday.

Taken from the five books of Rabelais, the stage version was formed by Barrault in 1968. Barrault describes the work as "a spectacle which utilizes the complete vocabulary of modern theater — speech, pantomime, drama, ballet, song, comedy, masquerades, extravaganza, special effects and music, both classic and rock." Although the performances are in French, he says, its communicative values are explicit. "One doesn't need to understand French to enjoy it thoroughly, to judge from the reaction of London audiences."

FRANCOIS RABELAIS was born in Chinon about 1495. First educated as a Franciscan monk, he later transferred to the Benedictine order. In 1530, he left the religious for civilian life, studying medicine. He became a surgeon, one of the first to dissect a cadaver, wrote his first creative work, sired a son, rejoined the Benedictines, practiced medicine and continued to write. He died in 1553, but not before many of his earthy writings were condemned.

Timely boon for students

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

With the school budget for the art department decreased this year, an opportunity offered to talented art students by Gibraltar Savings and Loan Association is particularly timely.

Pupils in the high schools in the Long Beach Unified School District were eligible for a contest in seven categories.

This week, judges Jason Wong, director of Long Beach Museum of Art; Betty Anne Kirkpatrick, president of Long Beach Art Association; and Elsa Warner, artist and retired chairman of the art department at Polytechnic High School, faced the difficult task of choosing winners.

Sweepstakes prize of $150, they decided, should go to Michael Beech of Wilson for his acrylic painting.

First place winners, each of whom received $35, were David Glasker of Wilson, drawing; Evelyn Caldwell of Polytechnic, watercolor; Celeste Bauer of Polytechnic, mixed media; Charlene Cassingham of Millikan, graphics; Brad Baker of Polytechnic, sculpture and pottery; Dave Shultz of Lakewood, crafts; and Michael Beech, acrylic.

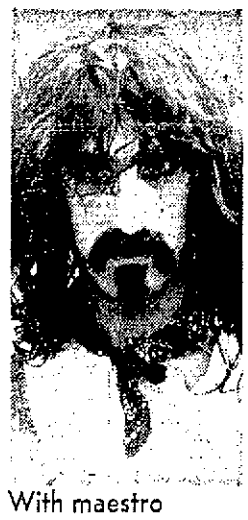

Second place awards of $20 and third place prizes of $10, plus honorable mentions were given in each category.

The exhibit of high school art will hang in the Gibraltar office, 232 Long Beach Blvd., through July 10.

AN IN-DEPTH exhibit of work by pop artist Andy Warhol will open Tuesday at Pasadena Art Museum, Colorado and Orange Grove Boulevards. After the show closes June 21, it will got to Chicago, Eindhoven, Paris, London and the Whitney Museum in New York.

LONG BEACH Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave., will feature art from major Los Angeles and Beverly Hills galleries in a Gala Galleries Art Festival. Hours are 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. next Sunday.

The art show and sale will include works by the masters and by outstanding contemporary artists of local, national and international reputation.

With maestro

. . . Frank Zappa and the Mothers of Invention will join Los Angeles Philharmonic for the third "Contempo '70" concert Friday at 8:30 p.m. in UCLA's Pauley Pavilion. Zubin Mehta will conduct.

Compton Civic closing season

Compton Civic Symphony, conducted by Dr. Hans Lampl, will bring its 23rd concert season to a close next Sunday. The free program will begin at 7 p.m. in Compton High School Auditorium, 601 S. Acacia St.

Lampl will open the concert with Haydn's "Symphony in G Major" ("Military"). He says, "For listeners of our time, there is nothing very martial about this symphony. The term derived simply from the fact that Haydn introduced a bugle call and used a kettle drum rather prominently, as well as a group of percussion instruments."

John Ellis will be soloist for "Rhapsody for Oboe and Strings" by Peter Ilona Korn. Born in Germany, Korn became a citizen of the United States in the 1940s and as a resident of Los Angeles made a name for himself as a composer and conductor. For several years he has been director of the Richard Strauss Conservatory in Munich, Germany.

FOLLOWING intermission, the orchestra will play Dvorak's "Concerto for Violoncello and Orchestra." The soloist, cellist Gabor Rejto, was born in Budapest in 1916. He studied in Spain with Pablo Casals and played with major European orchestras before coming to the United States in 1939. Currently, he is a member of the Alma Trio. From 1949 to 1954, he was head of the cello and chamber music departments at Eastman School of Music; since 1954 he has been chairman of the string department of the school of music at USC.

Renato Laffranchi's show is 'song of joy'

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Father Renato Laffranchi's one-man show at the Arno Gallery in Florence, Italy, was reviewed in this column just two years ago. Now, the artist-priest is having his first U.S. show at the Zachary Waller Gallery, 515 N. La Cienega Blvd., Los Angeles.

Laffranchi's medium should be a restrictive one, but he uses it with joy and freedom. Tempera (egg-based) painting over gesso (very fine plaster of Paris) on wood panel with gold and silver leaf dates back to the Middle Ages.

Before applying pigment or leaf of precious metals, Laffranchi incises "drawing" lines on the smoothly-polished gesso. His latest developments, abstracted florals, angels, and chubby children are done in line as economical and descriptive as Picasso's. Such a one is "The New Moon" which projects the sophisticated sense of play of a Paul Klee.

INTERESTINGLY, the artist has made some sallies into a less-structured composition with freer forms, like "The Angel Over the Blue Flowers." However, the more geometrically-designed compositions like "Notturno" have great impact. In the latter are a reddish Pan with great curving horns and conventionalized moon and flower patterns.

Subject matter in the two years has become more lyrical. There is the addition of flowers, almost everywhere, even held by "The Green Knight" and "The General." The latter, despite his armor, looks as though he might be ready to beat swords into ploughshares.

This show, really a song of joy, continues through May 23, daily from noon to 5 p.m., and Monday evenings.

Colorado showplace of spring splendor

COLORADO, that varied vacationland at the top of the nation, is a good place to fall in love with America all over again. Eternal snows, cradled in rocky gorges, glisten in the bright Colorado sun and glacier-born streams provide a trout anglers' paradise.

Springtime in the Colorado Rockies is a many-splendored experience which offers the winter-weary vacationer a wide range of scenic and recreational pursuit as vibrant and as varied as the season itself.

A spring vacation at the top of the nation can be as exciting as a rollicking trout stream leaping down a snow-etched mountainside or as quiet and reflective as a forest-mirrored pool nestled in a verdant valley.

The arrival of spring at the various elevations in this stairstep state means different things to different people.

However, to each Colorado spring vacationer, be his enjoyment that of a sightseer, fisherman, camper, photographer, horse rider, or hiker, it means leaving behind the confining shackles of winter, the rush of traffic, the burdens of business and homemaking, and coming face to face with the quiet of Nature, with cool forests, the shimmering lakes, majestic mountains, and other scenic splendor to refresh the soul and relax the body.

To the skier, springtime in the Colorado Rockies means an extended opportunity to enjoy schussing in the protected bowls of Colorado's high country which boasts of six times the mountain area of Switzerland. In some rock-bound gorges, glaciers persist throughout the entire year.

In early May, the friendly Colorado sun magically transforms "Ski Country U.S.A." into "See Country U.S.A." with so much to see and so many things to do.

To the fisherman, spring means that some 8,700 miles of Colorado's major trout streams and 2,000 cold-water lakes are ready to yield for the taking their delectable treasure of rainbow, brook, brown, kokanee, and cutthroat to the eager angler. Trout fishing is not difficult, but rather just the enjoyable application of common "fish sense."

As proof, approximately 20 million trout are outsmarted by Colorado anglers annually. If your bag is warm water fishing, try one of Colorado's 62 warm-water lakes or reservoirs which are annually stocked with about 8 million crappie, perch, bass, bullhead, and walleye.

Nonresident fishing license fees are $10 per season or $5 for a ten-day renewable permit. Colorado also boasts several large lakes for the boating enthusiast to enjoy his favorite sport.

Spring is a time for camping at many of Colorado's easily accessible campgrounds or for making plans for a summer campout at the more secluded areas at higher elevations. Colorado camping, either rugged or refined, is a vacation experience the entire family will long remember.

There are more than 350 federal or state campgrounds with facilities ranging from shelter houses, piped water, fire grates, and sanitation facilities to nature's own rustic accommodations. There are also excellent private campgrounds and trailer parks throughout Colorado.

Colorado mountainsides become a kaleidoscopic array of floral splendor as Nature awakens from her winter's beauty nap. More than 1,000 varieties of wildflowers paint Colorado's crimson soil canvas with variegated psychedelic patterns.

Among the unique floral specimens at the top of the nation are the gently nodding fields of the Colorado state flower, the Rocky Mountain Columbine. Among domestic flowers forming colorful crazy-quilt patterns in practically every Colorado community are roses, zinnias, iris, gladiola, and the famous Colorado Carnation.

Colorful Colorado is naturally camera country. Be sure and bring your camera and plenty of color film to forever capture on film this high, wide, and wonderful world which reaches through fleecy clouds to touch the sun. When photographing, keep Colorado's sunny disposition in mind and take care not to overexpose the film.

What greater adventure for the spring motorist than to tour Colorado ghost towns. There is an almost irresistable lure to these old abandoned villages which still echo the tumult of the gold rush days when fortunes were made and lost overnight.

Some of the most accessible and interesting are Ashcroft near Aspen, Tincup near Gunnison, St. Elmo near Buena Vista, and Nevadaville near Central City. Some of Colorado's ghost towns hibernate until mid-summer and put out the welcome mat for jeepsters only in July and August. Better check before you try to tackle them in the family car.

While magnificent vistas unfold at every turn along Colorado's air-conditioned skyways, some of the most spectacular scenery is accessible by foot, on horseback, or via a four-wheel-drive vehicle.

There are many hiking trails throughout Colorado's national forests. Several areas offer guided jeep tours, "drive-it-yourself" jeep rentals, and rentals of horses.

The rock hound can find a treasure of excellent mineral specimens, fossils, and Indian artifacts in many areas of the Centennial State.

On a Colorado dude or guest ranch, you get the extra enjoyment of some of the world's most beautiful scenery. You ride gentle trail-wise horses through primitive forests of quaking aspen, majestic spruce and stately pine, framed by towering marshmallow-topped peaks.

There's magic in the crystal-clear mountain air which is dry and cool even at midday. If you like informality and are interested in relaxation and recreation as well as good fellowship with other vacationers, you will really enjoy your stay on a Colorado dude ranch. Colorado is also "Kid's Country" and offers more than sixty summer camps for the young set.

Rodeo, opera, melodrama, square dancing, or historical tours your vacation entertainment choice? You will find all of them offered in Colorado when it's springtime in the Rockies.

Spring vacation fun doesn't set with the sun in Colorado. Night life in hundreds of unique restaurants, nightspots, galleries, and theatres throughout the state, provides exciting evening entertainment for every taste in food and fun.

There are so many things to see and do in this vast and varied vacationland that the spring vacationer is often puzzled at where to start. Many families return year after year to enjoy the timeless beauty of the Rockies and the wide variety of Colorado's recreation fare.

Within this 104,000-square-mile playground are two national parks, four major national monuments, 11 national forests, and hundreds of campgrounds, recreational areas, and historical sites.

The Colorado visitor can be as active as he likes at camping, fishing, boating, hiking, jeeping, or golfing, or he may choose to take it easy and completely relax

DICKENS IN ENGLAND

This year is the 100th anniversary of Charles Dickens' death. Festivals and Royal observances are planned. Here are some of the Dickens sights in Britain. At top left, the Old Curiosity Shop, London, on which Dickens based a novel. At top right, the Leather Bottle Inn, Cobham, near Dickens' home. Lower left, Dickens himself. Lower right, Bleak House, where he lived and went to sea at Broadstairs. The town turns into Dickens Land in June each year for 10 days.

Use of nat'l parks up eight per cent

The Department of the Interior's National Park Service counted 163,990,000 visits to its natural, recreational and historical areas in 1969, an increase of 8.7 per cent over the previous year, and a new record high. The 1968 total of 150,835,600 established the previous record.

Public use statistics, released by Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife, Parks, and Marine Resources, show that visits to recreation areas and seashores increased 22.3 per cent.

It was the second consecutive year that the increase in the rate of use of recreation areas more than doubled that of the National Park System as a whole.

Britain commemorates the great Boz

Britain is preparing to commemorate Charles Dickens, the great and inimitable "Boz." When he died suddenly on June 9, 1870, his homeland was stunned, and so was the large part of the world which had fallen under the spell of his magic pen. Queen Victoria telegraphed her sorrow from Balmoral; the newspapers wrote that few men would be regarded with more honor, and that as time passed his greatness would grow.

All true. The name "Boz" (from his first book Sketches by Boz) is famed.

At his burial place in Westminster Abbey, a great centenary memorial service will be held at noon on June 9 this year.

Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother will be there, members of the Dickens family, and members of the Dickens Fellowship, from various parts of the world. Passages will be read by Sir John Gielgud and Emlyn Williams, and scarlet geraniums, the novelist's favorite, will be placed on the grave.

At the chief "shrine," Dickens House, 48 Doughty Street, visitors this summer can see the house's own prized volumes and sentimental relics, such as the knocker from the Bayham Street home. Also a pot like those which the pathetic young Charles wept over as he pasted labels on them in the blacking factory.

The house is open to the public throughout the year. Here Dickens, passing the porter in mulberry-colored livery at the street gates, brought his young wife Catherine and their first-born. Here, between 1837 and 1839, he wrote "Oliver Twist," "Nicholas Nickleby," some of "Barnaby Rudge," and part of "Pickwick Papers" (the first number of the serialized Pickwick had appeared two days before his marriage in 1836). In the very room in which he worked, you can see the grandfather clock from the Bath coaching office of Moses Pickwick, whose surname he so profitably borrowed.

A special exhibition at Doughty Street will be on view from June 1 to September 12, and the program at the house will include a reading from Dickens' letters and prose.

On exhibit at the Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington, will be manuscripts of 10 of the major novels, plus original notes, and corrected proofs. There will also be an important exhibition at the British Museum; 204 miles north at the Harrogate Festival of Arts and Sciences (August 4-15) there will be discussions and lectures.

Dickens was born, February 7, 1812, at Portsmouth, the son of an impecunious navy pay clerk on whom he based the immortal (always "waiting for something to turn up") Micawber. June 12, the Birthplace Museum is being reopened in Commercial Road. Visitors will be able to see the room in which "Boz" was born and — prized possession — the couch on which he died at Gad's Hill Place, Rochester.

The Portsmouth events include performances of Dickens' play "The Strange Gentleman." Victorian horse-drawn vehicles will carry children in Dickensian costume around the city.

Some of the marvelous characters from the books come to life in assemblies — and the garden parties during the Dickens Festival (June 13-20) at Broadstairs. This was the author's seaside holiday retreat on the Kent coast 76 miles southeast of London.

There's Scrooge, maybe, strolling about with a smile on his face, a lovely Rachael Wardle on his arm; Bill Sikes chatting amiably with Sarah Gamp; Alfred Jingle flirting with Clara Peggotty. The garden party is held at Bleak House, originally Fort House, the author's best-loved Broadstairs residence.

At Dickens House he was a friend of the owner, Mary Strong, a formidable spinster he used as the prototype of Betsey Trotwood, David Copperfield's great aunt. The green in front of her home was the scene of Miss Trotwood's comic donkey-scaring charges.

Concerts, a stage adaptation of "Great Expectations," a Victorian fashion show, and two oldtime melodramas are also included in the Broadstairs program. Dickens would have loved every bit of it.

Oh, Grandma!

When a U.S. Treasury Customs inspector at San Ysidro, Calif., thought the rear of a car looked unusually heavy, he opened the trunk and discovered seven Mexicans jammed into it. The driver had three of her grandchildren with her and naturally didn't know of the contents of the trunk. She said she drove to Tijuana, Mexico, with a man who told her she would find the car waiting to return her to Los Angeles. She found the car and the Customs officers found the aliens.

Yellowstone volcanic wonderland

VISTA of Grand Canyon through Yellowstone shows the rugged canyon walls. Few visitors to park leave without seeing the canyon.

MORE than 10,000 geysers, mudpots, hot springs, cauldrons and other thermal phenomenon are concentrated in this strange former volcanic wonderland.

A WRANGLER in Yellowstone Park leads a member of a back country trip into camp beside a high mountain lake. This is first season in decades that trips like this are available to visitors. Ninety-five per cent of park is away from developed areas so this is the only way to really see most of it.

Youngest matador

The appearance of Currito Rivera, Mexico's popular teenage matador will mark the opening of the 1970 bullfight season on Sunday, May 17, at the downtown bullring in Tijuana.

A total of 16 Sunday bullfights will be offered this year, according to Angel Vazquez, general manager of Diversiones y Espectaculos, the company which operates most of Mexico's major bullrings.

Vazquez, who will personally direct the Tijuana season this year said the first eight corridas will be held at the downtown area, and the last eight at seaside Plaza Monumental.

The year's second corrida is set for Sunday, May 31. Action will continue every Sunday thereafter through Labor Day Sept. 6. The schedule will shift to the Bullring-by-the-Sea on July 19, about the time inland temperatures begin to climb. Starting time for all corridas will be 4 p.m.

Rivera, who is only 18 had held the rank of matador for more than a year and was rated Mexico's No. 1 attraction last summer. He enjoyed more success locally than any matador in history. In six Tijuana appearances he never failed to earn awards and won ears and tail in his last two corridas.

Top matadors from Spain, Mexico, and South America have been booked for Tijuana performances, Vazquez said. Aficionados will be treated to the "New Breed" of bold young bullfighters as well as the established stars, he added.

French West Indies slash summer rates to attract 'tight money' vacationers

Tight money is a fact of life in 1970, and it calls for some fresh new ideas regarding those two or three weeks of vacation coming up this summer. What to do without spending a bundle; where to go that's a world away from home, yet cheap?

To help resolve the vacation dilemma confronting many people right now, including those with champagne tastes and beer budgets, here is a suggestion: consider the French West Indies.

They're foreign, they're friendly, they're "in," but in the nicest way. No crowds, no pink curlers at poolside. The weather is ideal: day-time temperatures in summer are in the low 80s and cooled at night by sea breezes.

The islands are still honest-to-goodness exotic, despite their easy accessibility — less than four hours by jet from New York. Although the larger new hotels are modern, air-conditioned and designed to pamper every tourist whim, there are, comme toujours, the old favorites Alec Waugh used to write about, except now their plumbing works. The food remains the best in the Caribbean, a combination of French and Creole dishes that tempt even the most jaded of palates.

But the biggest summertime lure here, especially for the "tight money" market, is price. From now through autumn, one of the best buys around is a hotel room in Martinique and Guadeloupe. Rates have been reduced by 30 per cent and 40 per cent in some cases, by even more in others. Why? Simply to put them in good competitive position vis-a-vis the popular summer resorts of Europe, the U.S., Canada, and elsewhere.

A seaside double room at the beautiful Bakoua Beach in Martinique, for example, is now available for as little as $12 per person, including full American-style breakfast and multi-course dinner. Larger, more luxurious doubles start at $19 a day per person, under the same plan.

All of Martinique's hotels have followed suit: at the spanking-new Hilton, MAP doubles cost $18 to $21 per person; at the Diamond Roc, they're $18 and $19, down about 40 per cent from winter prices. And at the island's charming small inns, such as La Vallee Heureuse, a couple can have a grand holiday at $10 each a day, including breakfast, lunch and dinner, plus wine at no additional cost.

On Guadeloupe, the renowned Caravelle, which sits on a magnificent mile-long white sand beach, is offering summer MAP specials from $18 to $20 per person for a double room. Children under 12 may stay with their parents under the same plan for a mere $10 a day.

The Auberge de la Vieille Tour, outside Pointe-a-Pitre, Guadeloupe's principal city, has priced its doubles at $18 a day per person, including breakfast and sumptuous dinner prepared by a master chef. Groups of eight staying at least one week are charged a low $10.50 MAP rate daily per person, double, or $16 single.

On both islands there are Club Mediterranees which have devised summer packages that are among the most economically interesting vacations anywhere. From a peak-season high of $225 per person, a week's stay drops to $130 until June 26, then goes up $20 more until Sept. 4. And what a package this is! It includes all meals, French wines, all sports activities and instructions. (Scuba lessons, free at the Clubs, can cost up to $25 a day at some Caribbean resorts.) And tipping is not allowed. In brief, the package price covers everything except drinks at the bar, excursions around the islands, and personal purchases.

But prices aren't the only summertime attraction in the French West Indies. The tourist scene in Martinique and Guadeloupe takes on a special international look during the summer, when Europeans travel. Each season, the islands attract more and more sun-seekers from Sweden, Denmark, Belgium and Germany. And, of course, Frenchmen from all parts of la mere patrie. For them, a vacation on "home ground" that's some 5,000 miles away from home is almost as foreign-flavored as it is for visitors from the U.S. and Canada.

Events listed

A free 1970 calendar of events listing more than 300 fairs, fishing derbies, art shows, sportsfests and competitions, outdoor concerts and other events of regional, local and national interest which will take place in the nine counties of the Redwood Empire is available from the Redwood Empire Association, 476 Post St., San Francisco 94102.

Bold maneuver

At the peak of the swashbuckling era, the ships of such notorious buccaneers as "Blackbeard" (Edward Teach) and Calico Jack Rackham lay confidently at anchor in New Providence harbor between forays on the high seas.

Twice as many Americans to take two-week European vacations in '70

The number of Americans taking two-week vacations in Europe will probably double in 1970, according to Andrew Marti, president of Camino Tours of New York.

Marti said the estimate was based on bookings placed with Camino, a major operator of escorted European tours. He recently added two itineraries to his 1970 program to meet the greater demand for two-week trips.

"In recent years, the 22-day tour has dominated the marketplace," Marti explained. "Once an American invested in the cost of air transportation, he wanted to spend three weeks in Europe.

"But package prices have now dropped to the point where Americans are willing to go on two-week trips. Also, they no longer consider a European vacation a once-in-a-lifetime experience for which they must reserve enough time to see everything. Today the average traveler is planning to return to Europe."

Marti said 16-day itineraries (two weeks, with departure on Saturday and return on Sunday) now account for about 20 per cent of his European volume. "In terms of bodies, this represents twice as many persons as last year," he observed.

One of the 16-day itineraries added by Camino is priced at $499, including transportation on a scheduled airline, hotel room, continental breakfast and sightseeing. Tour stops include Paris, London, Zurich, Lucerne, Altdorf, Lugano, Florence and Rome.

The other two-week itinerary is priced at $549 and includes three meals daily in most cities. Tour stops: Paris, London, Zurich, Lucerne, Liechtenstein, Innsbruck, Cortina, Venice, Bologna, Florence, Sorrento, Capri, Pompeii and Rome.

The operator offers four other 16-day itineraries. A catalog of the 1970 program may be obtained by writing Camino Tours, 1140 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10036.

Freedom is on the 'Horizon'

Story and Photos
By BILL EMERY
Associate Auto Editor

It's a beach house! It's a mountain cabin! It's a week-end cottage in the high or low desert! The Horizon Motorhome could even be your inland yacht if you put it on a barge and floated it down a river or across a lake.

We borrowed a completely self-contained 26-foot Horizon motorhome from Queen City Motor Homes at 1848 E. Pacific Coast Hiway in Lomita and chose as our destination one of the best close-to-home campsites in the Southwest for atmosphere, activity and charm . . . as well as privacy.

Not too many know about Timberline Meadows, less than one and a half hour's drive north of Long Beach and 7 miles north of Lake Hughes. The regular vacation travelers up there like it that way!

It's a perfect spot to rough it in a tent, trailer or a motorhome and we found it a most relaxing and all too short week-end trip.

Our home on wheels would sleep six in private comfort, or a family of nine. It includes an air conditioning unit that works off a separate generator whether the engine of the motorhome is on or off.

Lights and power outlets also operate off the same generator making the unit completely self-contained. However, should you pull into a campsite where 110-volt AC electricity is available, a simple switch in the power converts the entire system, saving your batteries. Timberline Meadows offered this power, however, we prefered to pick an isolated campsite and operate the systems as if we were 1000 miles from civilization.

Just the fact that burning gas can heat water for a shower on one side of the unit and burning gas can make ice cubes and cool a refrigerator in another compartment shatters all logic for reason.

However, even more impressive is the perfection of functional design of every inch of space inside and out. It is a labor of love and a study of efficiency.

One double bed takes up only 3 or 4 inches of space over the driving compartment where it is completely out of sight when not in use.

Separating the dining-sleeping area and the rear sleeping room, is a hallway that can be closed off at both ends for complete privacy in the Pullman lavatory, shower and dressing room area.

A huge wardrobe is in the same dressing room area for a most efficient use of space and related compartments.

Storage room is everywhere . . . under the divan-beds, overhead and even in the outside trunk area. Visibility is a 360 degree picture window, or for privacy, decorator drapes shut out the sun and the world.

Obviously, there is too much to describe about so versatile a vehicle in a limited report; however, the comfort, ease of driving on freeways and over narrow mountain roads and the complete feel of freedom makes this one of the great innovations of modern man.

This fact is even more evident when enviable campers swarm around to see what "modern man" has recently developed for traveling royalty.

Timberline Meadows occupies a fertile green valley at 4300 feet elevation surrounded by ponderosa timber and a large variety of pines, oaks, shrubs and bushes.

Chosen for development 10 years ago by Hal Kaiser, a man who can head up a pack train of deer hunters or lecture students, the resort is a balance of luxury facilities, spaciousness, esthetic beauty and a camper's paradise.

It is an oasis in a remote, almost desert area just across the highway bordering the property. The mountain ridge behind is abundant in vegetation and trees . . . full of miles and miles of trails both for horseback riders and trail bikes with spark-arresting exhausts.

The little portable Go-Devil scooter that is given with the purchase of a Horizon, turned out to be hours of fun climbing the rugged trails around the camp. Its power and ease of handling came as a pleasant surprise.

The valley has an artesian spring that keeps everything green and growing, including the game fish in the private lake. A swimming area is also filled from this spring to keep the bathers separate from those fishing.

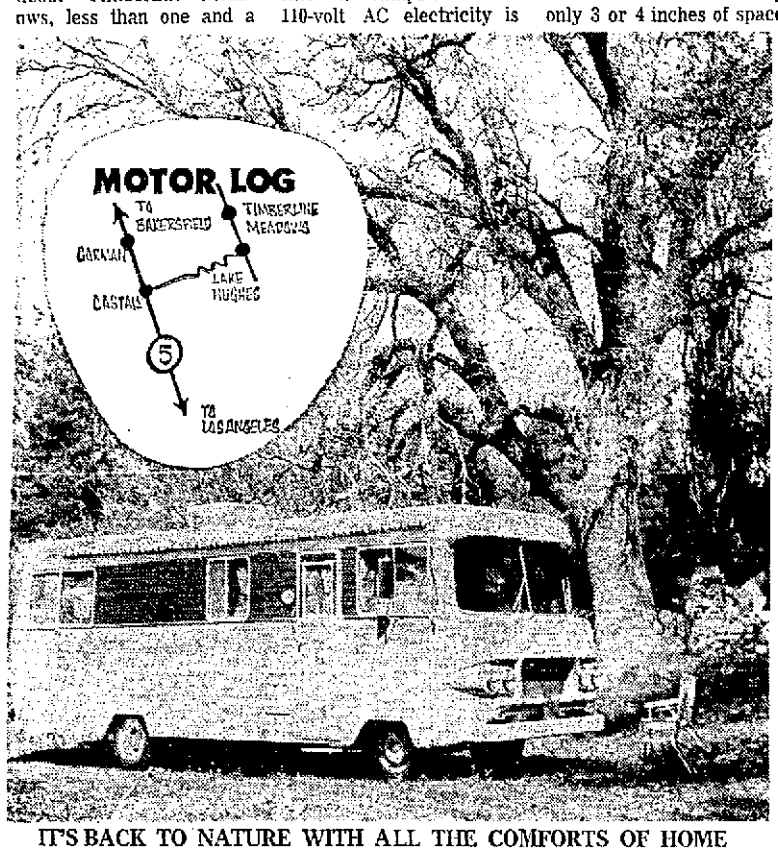

The resort is divided into three areas. One is for campers who like to pitch a tent or park a trailer or camper and rough it with outside facilities for cooking and eating.

Another area offers electricity and all the comforts of hookups for mobile rigs. Both areas offer the use of hot showers and laundry facilities. A clubhouse is available at no extra charge to clubs on a first come basis.

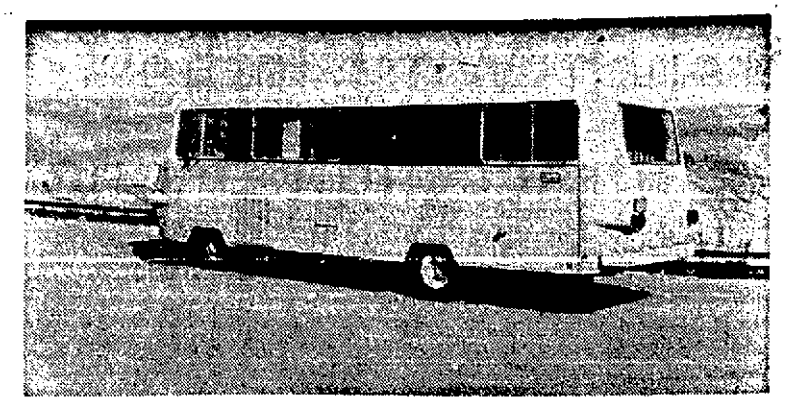

The third area is for mobile homes for those who prefer to park it, plug it in and leave it as a week-end retreat or to live in it permanently. The air is fresh, the night sky alive with brilliant stars and as far as the eye can see is wilderness.

Meadow horseback rides, mountain rides and pack-in trips are available at very reasonable fees. Other activities include a shooting range, kiddie playground, volleyball ping-pong, tetherball, horseshoes, hiking and dancing.

Very few areas in the United States are not accessible by dialing yourself on the phone. Timberline Meadow, less than 90 miles from Long Beach, can only be called by asking the operator to "ring Lake Hughes 4022." It's remote, but just over the horizon in a motorhome!

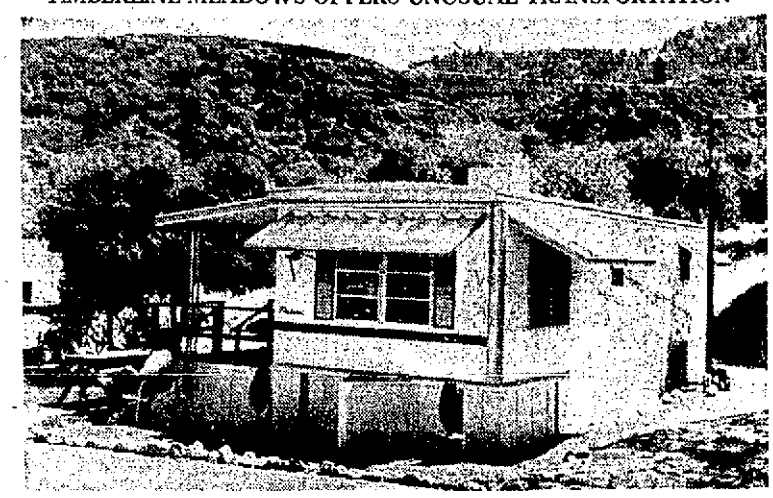

IT'S BACK TO NATURE WITH ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME . . . the Horizon 26-foot Motorhome rests under an ancient oak tree at Timberline Meadows Resort.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

TETON County, Idaho. It means little in Long Beach except to that brave little band of people who read Epley's Sunday column.

Last Sunday I published a letter I wrote to the Sheriff at Driggs, Idaho. I recalled that 15 years ago when I visited his Teton County I learned that it was virtually without crime — two persons in jail in the course of a year, for instance.

Was it still that way? I asked today's sheriff, recalling that the 1955 sheriff told me his population was 96 per cent Mormon and that Mormons are law-abiding. The situation seems to show that religious training, temperance, family discipline, etc., are helpful answers to the crime problem.

I WAS overjoyed at getting a quick reply from Sheriff S. A. Stevens, which I think you'll find entertaining as well as significant:

DEAR MR. EPLEY:

"This is a reply to your recent letter in which you ask if our Teton County, Idaho, is still a crime-free county. Yes, Mr. Epley, this is very much the same crime-free spot in our country.

"We have no dope to contend with. However, we did have some glue sniffers, which we rapidly put a stop to.

"Then we had a man, his wife and 13-year-old daughter who broke into a home last summer. We apprehended them in about a month. The fellow was sent to the state penitentiary at Boise. His wife was found guilty and sentenced to five years in Boise, then paroled. She got a divorce from her felon husband, married the same day and went on a honeymoon. The teen-age girl was sent to a state training school.

"Some people call this justice when one goes to jail, one goes to reform school, and one goes on a honeymoon, when they were all in on the same job.

"We had a horse thief in jail one night, holding him for Wyoming. We had an army deserter for about 20 days. We have had a few overnight drunks in jail the past year and a bad check writer for a couple of days. That's about it. We have no one in jail now.

"I have only one full-time deputy and others I can call in an emergency. We do not keep the office open at night or on Saturdays or Sunday but we are on full-time call.

"I am glad that you were impressed by our beautiful country. We have a new ski area that adds to our worries but so far not to our work. Our schools are generally orderly and everyone pretty well tends to his own business.

"Yes, Mr. Epley, we have a fine community, we have fine people and lovely surroundings . . . We hope you will come and see us soon.

"S. A. STEVENS, Sheriff."

SO much for crime in Teton County. Unfortunately, the situation is vastly different elsewhere.

Bad as are the formal statistics on crime in the country, what has been happening recently makes them woefully inadequate as an indication of the entire picture. They're just a weak reflection.

At every major violent demonstration, dozens if not hundreds of felonies occur. (Arson is a felony, for instance.) Yet relatively few arrests are made. Huge numbers of actual offenses and violations never get into the crime statistics.

All of which, of course, makes Teton County sound even more like some sort of paradise. Having visited it, let me say it is just that, in more ways than one.

No Kent State Disaster Here, Generals Say

By GEORGE LAINE
Staff Writer

The confrontation which saw four students from Kent State University in Ohio killed by National Guard rifle fire will not be duplicated on any California campuses, the commanding general of the Long Beach-based 40th Infantry Brigade has declared.

But, Brig. Gen. Thomas O. Lawson said, neither will the men of the California National Guard be required to withstand indiscriminate rock and bottle throwing or other physical abuse.

"I just can't visualize it happening here," said General Lawson. "The basic reason for this is that we — unlike the Ohio National Guard — don't give our men ammunition in this sort of situation."

Gen. Lawson — a Long Beach product who was student body president at Jordan High when he was a resident here — said that the California National Guard learned some hard lessons in the Watts rioting of 1965.

The indiscriminate use of weaponry in that situation was characterized by the general as "unwise."

"Now, we don't give our men ammunition. We have the ammunition, and it's easy to issue. But when we do decide that the time to issue it has arrived, it is still under command control."

THE ORDER TO ISSUE the ammunition to California guardsmen must come from command and be followed by an order to use it. Only then can the soldiers fire their weapons, Gen. Lawson said.

"As far as the actual firing of the weapons goes," said the general, "I just don't plan to do it. On the other hand — as a brigade commander — I won't tolerate for a moment my men coming under attack."

There are other means of dissuading protesters, the general believes. All of them are preferable to resort to the trigger finger.

"The ammunition we do possess is for a specific purpose," said Gen. Lawson. "It is certainly not for use in attacks upon students."

Gen. Lawson's boss — Maj. Gen. Glenn Ames, commanding general of the California National Guard — sees most facets of the situation in the same way.

"I don't think there is a state that has given as much attention to this problem as has California," he said. "We have consistently upgraded our capabilities."

Beyond the determination that the state's National Guard does not use weaponry indiscriminately, General Ames also issued a warning of sorts.

"WE HAVE AN OVERALL strength of about 27,000 men," he said. "This strength is built around three brigades located throughout the state, of which the 40th Infantry in Long Beach is one."

Subtracting truck drivers, cooks, maintenance and other service troops from the 27,000 figure, the strength of the action force is closer to 15,000.

These troops, Ames said, are well-trained, well-equipped and highly mobile.

The troops, he said, are fully trained in keeping with the Department of Defense 1967 antiriot procedures. The men in the three brigades know riot drills, use of CS gas, disciplined use of force and other techniques.

The California National Guard is now in an Alpha condition — the first of three pre-intervention conditions — as a result of the campus backlash produced in the wake of President Nixon's Cambodian intervention and the subsequent shooting of four students at Kent State. Gen. Lawson said that the condition allowed for a general state of readiness, with at least one man stationed at each of the state's headquarters units.

"I haven't seen the latest intelligence reports," said the general. "Still, I'm hopeful we will be able to stay out of this thing."

Gen. Lawson cited the performance of National Guard units in situations involving students.

"GUARDSMEN, SO FAR, have not antagonized crowds," he said. "As a result, demonstrators haven't looked upon the Guard as their enemies."

The general cited incidents at Berkeley, Santa Barbara and other locales and said that "generally speaking," the demonstrators were "in rapport with the Guardsmen."

"This Ohio thing — the shootings — could do a great deal of damage to that sort of feeling," said Gen. Lawson. "It's really too bad."

He said that the police image — officers wearing guns, helmets, clubs, Mace, handcuffs and a variety of other restraining devices — is "sort of inflammatory."

"It's much different with a soldier," said Gen. Lawson. "The soldier has his 'pot' (helmet) on but he has none of the restraining devices. We've had a good reception wherever we've gone. In fact, we were cheered when we went into Watts in 1965."

"I wasn't at Berkeley. But from the reports I received, the people there were not angry with the Guard; they were mad at the police.

"THIS HAS REALLY BEEN a large part of our effectiveness. We've been a sort of middleman, an almost neutral party in these situations."

"Now, with the four deaths at Kent State, maybe we're not regarded as neutral anymore.

"Still, I hope that feeling will wear off after a while," he said, "maybe it will work itself out."

Both Gen. Ames and Gen. Lawson are hopeful about the future here.

"All I can say is that I'm optimistic," said Lawson. He cited the availability of sheriff's, highway patrol and municipal forces as positive factors.

Gen. Ames said that decisions to send the Guard in for intervention in certain situations was based largely on intelligence provided the organization.

"We have a rather large intelligence effort," he said. But intelligence is always frustrating because you have to evaluate it.

"WE HAVE SOURCES in national, state and local agencies and we have our own military advisers. We have a fulltime intelligence adviser and we spend a lot of time with it. It has been a big help.

"With national intelligence we can trace a lot of these revolutionaries. There are patterns. They may be in New Haven for two days, then they go to Orangeburg, S.C., for two days and then they'll show up at Berkeley. By this kind of intelligence, the potential becomes clear."

The National Guard understands what moves the militants. In some cases it is a higher morality. In others, it is a simple matter of money.

"Money is an important thing," said Gen. Ames. "They've got to have it.

"About a year ago, there was this Third World Liberation Front at Berkeley. It was going very violent for a time but the thing that really cooled it off was they ran out of bail money.

MANY OF THESE militants aren't martyrs. They don't want to go to jail. If there's no money there to bail them out, they'd just as soon forget the whole thing."

Gen. Ames said the conduct of Guardsmen in other California crises substantiated the claim that the California units were well-drilled.

Behind it all, he said, is the notion that Guardsmen must be cognizant of the situation they face. The Guard is called in California, Gen. Ames said, only after exhausting all local remedies.

Local law enforcement agencies must be satisfied that they cannot control a situation, the general said. Then, other local authorities must be asked to intervene. If no resolution results after these pleas are used, he said, the affected party can then go to the governor. The governor normally responds with the state's Highway Patrol, a well-trained force, ideally suited to disturbance situations.

"If that isn't sufficient," Gen. Ames said, "the governor may then call on part — or all — of the National Guard."

GUARD CALL-UPS, Gen. Ames said, are not as easily accomplished as might be thought.

"There's a very strong tradition in our country that federal troops do not come into a state and get involved in state business. That would amount to federal government."

The Constitutional questions, he said, are clear cut.

"In fact," said Gen. Ames, "it is a crime for a commander of federal troops to get involved in a local situation unless specifically ordered to do so under the guidelines."

Each of the Guard's combat troops is given a minimum of eight hours of riot-control training. That includes most of the 40th Infantry Brigade.

"We don't put a man on the street until he has completed the minimum hours."

WITHIN THE GUARD strength, there is a competence for CS gas dispersal and sniper suppression, and there are grenade launchers, explosive demolition teams, ar-

Sleep-In Student Pays Police Tribute

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

"The people of Long Beach should be very proud of their policemen and the way they handled themselves during the state college 'sleep-in' Wednesday night . . ."

The student talking to me was earnest, with not a trace of sarcasm.

"They" — Long Beach and campus officers — "came out and talked with us, explained logically and rationally what they were doing on-campus . . . until we finally went home of our own choice, without any coercion or 'roust-ing'."

An unusual endorsement in a week when students and police found themselves in sometimes violent confrontation across the nation.

First confirmation of the student's remarks came, unsolicited, from CSLB dean John W. Shainline, present during most of the Wednesday night-Thursday morning protest against an enforced campus closing, the deaths in Ohio of four Kent State University students and the war in Southeast Asia.

"The cooperation those officers gave . . . and the wisdom they displayed in actions on this campus all year made much progress toward proving to our students that they are very human and competent people.

"My hat is off to (campus) Chief Lee Chandler, Lt. Fred DeBlanc and Sgt. Glenn Branson and their officers," Shainline concluded.

His approval was understandable because he felt deft police work had played a major part in preventing violence of a type so common elsewhere.

But what of the student voice? Was it a minority view from the "Hill"? Or are there changes in the making on the state college system's largest campus?

To probe more deeply, I spent five hours Saturday talking with Sgt. Branson of the Long Beach Police intelligence unit, Officer Gary Colvin and a "rational radical" student named Roy Jeys, 20, who "sorta found myself in a leadership role" during a long, sleepless night.

Over uncountable cups of coffee we examined a situation that could have ended in tragedy — but didn't, largely because opposing forces have learned at least one lesson from the recent, bitter past: each side must talk with the other.

Each, in this instance, had a very definite viewpoint.

Branson and Colvin knew that justice must be served impartially. So did the other 35 officers who sealed the campus at 1 a.m.

Jeys, and those in sleeping bags on a concrete patio adjoining the bookstore, were equally convinced they had to forcefully but non-violently protest at a time when Gov. Ronald Reagan had ordered all public 4-year campuses closed. More than 400 began the vigil, with about 100 left when it was called off by majority vote at 5:30 a.m.

This, in Jey's words, "was the first time I can recall that students here were in violation of the law and the police were willing to talk first, before taking action."

But, said Jeys, who decided to talk for publication only after discussing it with friends, "I want to tell you exactly what happened:

"There was no confrontation and no one was 'sent packing' from the campus."

That night there was little of the obscenity and other usual displays of temper, the three agreed. There were only a few trash fires.

Students were credited by Branson and Colvin with keeping one from spreading into a highly inflammable new-construction area. No damage was done as the fires burned themselves out.

Only one person, reportedly a non-student, was booked by police, on charges of drug intoxication.

Early in the evening many were camped in tents pitched on the grassy area in front of the bookstore. At 11 p.m. an automatic clock device turned on an underground watering system, washing out the campers, who moved onto the concrete patio. It was the first of three tense moments that developed during the night, Jeys said.

During these events Branson and Colvin, who resemble slightly over-age undergraduates, circulated through the crowd talking with students, assessing the situation.

"The 'I-Squad' function is misunderstood by many people," Colvin said earnestly. "We're not bogeymen, not a CIA skulking around spying on people.

"We get out and talk to people so that we can assess the danger in a situation and feed the right recommendations to the field commanders, who must make the decisions.

"It's nothing new," he added, "we've been doing this for years; people just don't know about it.

Sgt. Branson, whose chief, Lt. Ray Henry, then was attending a police officials' convention in Arizona, made his recommendation just before midnight.

"Seal off the campus," he told field officers standing by at Studebaker and Anaheim Roads or in the nearby Los Altos shopping center parking lot. Several carloads of young people and their camping gear later would be turned away.

Shainline shortly after midnight told the crowd they must leave — "the second tense moment," said Jeys. When and how were questions left to police after a majority among the 400 then remaining voted to stay.

Branson and Colvin, the only Long Beach officers on-campus before 1 a.m., continued to talk with students. When reinforcements arrived, the newcomers patrolled major campus buildings or congregated away from the protestors.

Part of Branson's recommendations, a piece of information the students were not to learn until after it was all over, was that 7 a.m. was the departure deadline.

Any remaining would be arrested. But the last of the crowd began leaving at 5:30.

During the long night hours, individuals or small groups of students talked to officers patrolling the Long Beach can count on Navy

Conflicting reports have brought confusion over the future of the Navy in Long Beach.

There is little evidence of a need for concern. Some reduction of force at the Navy base and shipyard should be expected as in the long range our commitments in the Far East are reduced. However, the community has been assured by Congressman Craig Hosmer that we will not be handicapped by more than our share of such reductions.

The Long Beach base is a major housekeeper for the Pacific fleet and the shipyard is the key armorer on the West Coast for modernizing warships. It is also a bastion of the nuclear surface fleet, which is the nation's principal reliance for peacekeeping on the seven seas.

This is no time for alarmism. It is a time to make the Navy and its leaders feel welcome and secure here and to seize every opportunity to integrate the men in uniform into the web of community life.

It is a time for a show of appreciation for their many contributions. A single example is the consistent leadership of the Navy in donations to the United Crusade campaign.

It is a time to do our bit toward helping the Navy in its budget battles in Washington.

Congressman Hosmer is the ranking minority member of the House-Senate Joint Committee on Atomic Energy and a Navy Reserve captain whose selection as rear admiral awaits Senate confirmation. He is in a singular position to serve both this area and the Navy to their mutual advantage. He may be relied upon to work diligently and successfully to keep the Navy in a strong posture here.

Signal achievement in billboard control?

It is in the nature of the outdoor advertising business to try to reach as many people as possible by making each customer's sign bigger and gaudier than his competitor's.

And the more billboards a company puts up and the cheaper it does it, the more customers it serves and the more money it makes.

There is nothing reprehensible about that. At Times Square in New York the effect is delightful. Generally, the results are a screaming assault on landscape, cityscape and the serenity of us all.

Now the Signal Hill City Council proposes to do something about it. Planning Director Libb Winn urges an ordinance that would limit billboard heights to 24 feet, require 100 square feet of landscaping and decoration of the steel sign supports, and keep the signs at least 660 feet apart.

A billboard industry representative has told the council the regulations would force the signs out of the city.

Maybe. But the history of outdoor advertising is that sign makers have managed to make and sell signs even when size limits were set in inches rather than feet, and even when a city required that signs be flat against buildings.

It is possible' after all, for advertisers to compete in cleverness rather than size, in attractiveness that promotes good will rather than gaudiness that merely catches the eye. Some good billboards do that now and could do it just as effectively in a smaller size if all other billboards in the area had to be smaller too.

Even if the billboard industry were to dismantle its signs and silently steal away, we doubt that Signal Hill would slip back into the Dark Ages. It might endeed be recognized as having done almost as much to improve the environment as have the smog fighters.

So we hope the Signal Hill councilmen will keep up the good fight. And we hope other cities will join it.

Did campaign promise come true at last?

It is said there came a time one day when George Wallace got a chance to make good on a campaign promise, even without being elected.

The promise was that if a demonstrator lay down in front of Wallace's car it would be the last car he lay in front of.

Sure enough, a demonstrator did. Sure enough, Wallace's chauffeur started the engine.

Whereupon, it is reported, Wallace put his hand on the chauffeur's shoulder and shouted, "My God, man! What do you think you're doing?"

It was perhaps too bad Ole George wasn't in the Los Angeles police car that UCLA Associate Professor Geoffrey Simcox tried to block the other day. Simcox was thrown from the hood of the car and suffered a head injury.

Perhaps the Los Angeles police ought to be advised that if anyone is going to make good on old Wallace campaign promises they ought to let George do it.

Wallace party flexes muscle for another go

ONE CAN'T MEASURE the zeal of the American Independent Party, Los Angeles County, by its cash balance — $259.16 as of May 5.

Better indexes are the words of its protagonists — intraparty and interpersonal — as catalogued at AIP's monthly central committee meeting last Tuesday in Room 1138, State Building, Los Angeles, to wit:

Bob Walters, a principal in the party's current hassle over which of two factions of George Wallace's original AIP is the legitimate branch, "is a Greene man."

THIS REFERENCE by one AIP candidate at the L.A. meeting was to Keith H. Greene, of San Francisco, an AIP candidate for governor and the man recognized by California's secretary of state as AIP's true state chairman. But the L.A. central committee meeting was the faction loyal to William K. Shearer, of San Diego, also a candidate for governor and claimant to the state chairmanship.

So, this AIP candidate referred to Walters as "a Greene man," and added, "He's also a rat."

Shearer's group had invited candidates of the other faction to address last Tuesday's meeting. One of them, Board of Equalization candidate Ray Wulfe, of San Fernando, sent his message by letter. J. Richard Abshear, county AIP chairman, read Wulfe's charge: "You are NOT the American Independent Party — you are running a con game."

So much for the intraparty billetdoux.

THE SHEARER slate candidates spoke next. One of them made reference to "the kept press," which may account for the lack of coverage of their meetings. I may have been the only reporter there, so these minutes will have to suffice as a refresher on what the AIP is talking about these days.

John Ortman, U.S. Senate candidate from Yorba Linda, and a non-Shearer AIP member, charged the federal government for which the U.S. Flag stands "has disappeared from the face of the earth," just as "that beautiful flag of the Confederacy . . . and people still cling to the belief that the government in Washington is an American government!"

SENATE candidate Charles C. Ripley, San Jose, and a Shearer man, charged President Nixon is "a self-admitted, one-world advocate . . . is guilty of treason for trade and aid with the enemy killing Americans . . . is a traitor to his Constitution and his country . . . is guilty of murder" for not using the full powers of the U.S. to defeat its adversaries while American lives are being lost.

Merwyn H. Hemp, Pacific Palisades, candidate for lieutenant governor, would phase out all welfare programs and turn them over to private local agencies and "any person on welfare would have his privilege of voting removed." (Cheers); names and addresses of welfare recipients would be made public; the government would end its subsidization of illegitimacy.

Abshear added a post script. He would not only make welfare rolls public but would offer a $500 bounty for information leading to persons guilty of welfare fraud.

Shearer spoke last. He opened by attacking court coddling of criminals, government-fostered job favoritism to minorities, the "forced housing laws." People who take exception to these things, as well as those "who don't think it's a federal offense to say a prayer . . are a majority in the nation," Shearer said.

HE HOPED George Wallace would be elected governor of Alabama but said Wallace erred in running on the Democratic Party ticket and forsaking the Third Party he used for his 1968 presidential candidacy.

Campus trouble won't be straightened out, he said, by "the nambypamby, Caspar Milquetoast approach of Ronald Reagan."

Shearer would cut University of California appropriations by 20 per cent a year — to zero at the end of five years — until all known Communists were removed and the present administrators replaced. He would end welfare waste, work for the Liberty Amendment (to repeal the income tax,) work for repeal of forced housing laws, end FEPC (Fair Employment Practices Commission) and defend the constitutional right to keep firearms: "If I get into office we may need them."

Without a declaration of war, said Shearer, he would interpose the will of the state against the federal government "to make it darned hard for them to get our boys in the boats and over there."

Next month: Debate on a resolution which would give a 24-hour ultimatum for the release of Americans held as war prisoners by other governments. If they failed to release the prisoners at the end of 24 hours, the Congress would declare war against them.

What threatens tax relief?

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — California is going to require something in the order of $6.5 billion in 1970-71 to pay for the services it will render its citizens. Five years from now, considering only the anticipated "normal" growth and not implementation of new services or the improving of present services, the budget figures to be about $8.5 billion.

BOB SCHMIDT

Added to these costs of state government are the costs of local governments, namely counties, cities and school and other districts.

There is no uncertainty about where the money will come from; it will come from California taxpayers in one way or another.

BUT THERE IS uncertainty about who is going to be paying how much.

There is general agreement that the homeowner is shouldering too large a share of the tax burden. There is also concern because of the homeowner's vulnerability. It is to the homeowner that local governmental entities turn when they need more tax revenue, and he rarely can protect himself.

Governments intent on providing property tax relief for the homeowner can do one or a combination of three things:

They can reduce their services or the quality of their services, thereby needing less money and consequently being able to lower taxes.

They can maintain the same service, ease the burden on property taxpayers, and make up the difference by increasing other taxes.

They can maintain the same services, ease the burden on property taxpayers, and impose new taxes to make up the difference.

Governor Reagan's solution, primarily, is the second method.

He would collect less income taxes from property taxpayers, and match that lost revenue by increasing other taxes, and by reducing exemptions which allow some taxpayers to pay less than they would pay if the exemptions did not exist.

BUT HE ALSO would like to reduce services, particularly in the area of welfare and Medi-Cal. And he would like to impose a minimum income tax to collect something from people who take advantage of various tax laws to escape all or almost all of the state income tax.

His main proposal to accomplish what he calls tax "reforms" has been rejected by Assembly Democrats. They contend that the relief for homeowners and renters is inadequate, that what relief is provided is given at the expense of the consumer, and that business and the wealthy do not pay a fair share of that relief.

They complain also about the lack of provision for new school money, with particular reference to the teachers' strike in Los Angeles which enters its fifth week Monday.

And they say loopholes remaining in the state's tax law will continue to permit wealthy individuals and big business to escape their fair share of taxes.

The governor's tax plan, as it stood when Democrats twice last week declined to vote for it, would increase the homeowner's exemption on his state income tax return from $750 to $1,000. Renters would be able to deduct $50 from their income tax; they now get no extra allowance.

Businesses would be permitted to exempt 50 per cent of the value of their inventory from state taxation; they now can exempt 30 per cent.

SENIOR CITIZENS would be permitted to claim an additional tax credit, its size dependent upon the size of their income.

The state, under Reagan's plan, would also assume a larger share of the costs of welfare and Medi-Cal, thereby reducing the counties' share and, theoretically, permitting lower property taxes.

As an incentive to encourage preservation of open-space lands, on which there is no development, counties, cities and schools would be reimbursed by the state for the taxes those entities would have collected if such land was developed and the assessed value increased.

The cost to the state of all these features by 1973-74 would be $993 million.

To make up for that drain on the budget, Reagan proposed increasing the sales tax by one cent, raising the bank and corporations tax by one-half per cent, implementing the withholding method of collecting the state income tax, taxing capital gains (investment income) more heavily, adding new brackets to the income tax structure for incomes over $32,000, and conforming to federal tax laws in a number of areas, including the imposition of a minimum income tax.

The governor also proposed reducing the tax break given oil companies, but the amount of this reduction was lowered by a bipartisan vote in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

THE TOTAL NEW revenue produced by these changes would be $990 million by 1973-74, meaning that there would be a virtual "wash," that is, the new revenue would just about equal the revenue lost by the relief provisions.

Despite the criticisms from Assembly minority leader John J. Miller of Berkeley, lower house Democrats think the plan is generally a pretty good one. They are unhappy with the sales tax hike (the wealthy consumer doesn't feel its impact as much as the lower-income consumer), and they believe more could be done to close the loopholes through which wealthy individuals and prosperous business firms evade many taxes.

But their main objection is to the lack of provision for the financial problems of public schools.

They believe the governor's tax proposal is the only vehicle which can be used to provide more money for schools, and they feel that if they can't get school money in this bill they won't get it in any bill.

THE GOVERNOR SAYS adamantly, however, that he will not permit the addition of a school financing provision in his plan.

And there the matter sets. Unless some compromise is reached, there will be no relief for homeowners or renters or businessmen, or for starving school districts. The matter has now become a partisan issue, and partisan compromise in an election year is a rare and difficult thing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Readers speak on Cambodia, Kent State slayings

(Editor's note: The following letters represent a cross-section of views on student protest and the Vietnam situation after U.S. troops moved into Cambodia and after the shootings at Kent State University.)

EDITOR:

I am a student. Four young Ohio students are now dead, their lives snuffed out by fellow Americans — soldiers — with a different point of view. Eleven others are in hospital beds. They have all been shot down for something I disagree with but they believed in.

According to law, once a man with a megaphone declares a gathering to be an "unlawful assembly," they have the right to forcibly disperse the group. In this case, they succeeded, and two young women and two young men will never again take it upon themselves to protest any of President Nixon's policies.

Shortly after what Governor Reagan would term a "bloodbath" occurred, President Nixon stated, "This should remind us all once again that when dissent turns to violence, it invites tragedy."

The paradox of President Nixon's statement is that those he accused of violence never presumed to take a human life. In contrast, the Ohio National Guard did not hesitate to snuff out four lives.

Is human life worth less than property? Was Kevin Moran's life worth less than the Bank of America?

I do not accuse the National Guard of murder, but I do accuse the American people, with their preoccupation with violence, of standing behind the sights and coolly pulling the trigger.

Long Beach F. SCOTT MORRIS

I AM IRATE at what is happening on the campuses and especially those such as Berkeley and Kent State. I am sick and tired of hearing of student rights. Education is a privilege and should be treated as such.

Where does a student — or anyone else, for that matter — get the right to burn down public or private property?

I am upset at President Nixon's decision to go into Cambodia, too, but the way to get rid of him is to vote him out next election, not burn cars and banks and create hell and hope he'll throw up his hands and quit.

If I was a National Guardsman, you can bet I'd shoot every person who threw a rock at me or spit on me.

It is time they learned that other people have rights too and that the school was not put there just for their use.

I am sorry that those kids were killed, but if they had been in class studying they would still be alive today.

Newport Beach R. M. LA RUE

A TOTAL PULLOUT from Vietnam would mean the end of this nation.

The outlook for this country in Southeast Asia is not rosy, with Red China able to field a space program, with a belligerent North Korea and war in Indochina. Topping off all these woes, the colleges are in turmoil. These students who demonstrate have never seen war. They choose to go against their own government. In many cases, these students are led by left-wing agitators, whose total aim is well known.

I wish I could give some support to these students. I wish I could say I am sorry that four of them were shot down after students threw rocks and bottles at the National Guard. I cannot.

The fact is, these students are as dangerous as the enemy our soldiers must face in Indochina. When they burn down our ROTC buildings, when they firebomb many of our campuses, led in many instances by left-wing professors, I cannot even show pity. I will not.

Compton GEORGE C. NELSON

IN MARCH 1770, a company of British soldiers stationed in Boston for the protection of British officials became panicky and opened fire on a disorderly mob.

When the smoke had cleared, five Americans lay dead. This event was the celebrated Boston Massacre.

At Kent University 100 soldiers fired upon 400 peace demonstrators. Afterwards, four lay dead — including two coeds.

I consider these students patriots for peace and freedom in a country that condones the very opposite. Further, I consider their deaths murder. Our country is today full of omens, and the albatross hangs dead and stinking around our neck; I think a grand lady is about to perish.

Long Beach FRANK B. KYLE

IT IS MOST REGRETTABLE that four apparently rational students at Kent State University were killed.

It would have been regrettable even if all four had been the obvious radical type.

On the other hand, it certainly does not deserve being blown up into martyrdom for them.

Rather, it should serve as a warning to all students. If you insist on associating with murderers and anarchists, you can only expect to be treated like them.

The idea of eulogizing these so-called model students is ridiculous.

Where was that bleeding-heart father mourning the loss of his daughter during previous confrontations when students were out breaking windows, burning schools and assaulting, even to the point of serious physical injury, both the police and the National Guard?

Long Beach JOHN MITCHELL

ALTHOUGH WE CAN'T see how President Nixon's recent action in sending American troops into Cambodia can be explained or condoned, in all the diatribe about this it appears the basic issue is largely being overlooked. This issue should deeply and actively concern all Americans, whether they agree or disagree with the Cambodian action.

Certainly no one man, regardless of his position, should have the sole power to commit U.S. troops to this kind of action.

If this is constitutional, steps should be taken immediately to amend the Constitution on this issue. If what President Nixon has done isn't constitutional, then Congress should immediately see that his action is rescinded and that he is severely censured.

Long Beach WILLARD S. KEITH
FLORENCE E. KEITH

PRESIDENT NIXON'S recent decision to invade the military strongholds of Cambodia represent to me another clear example of American imperialism in Southeast Asia.

It is time the people of this country come to the simple conclusion that the war, which has been going on for slightly less than one-third of my life, is not a war of America trying to save the world from communism but a war of American imperialism, false pride, business interests and the present military complex.

I am a Wilson High graduate. As a member of the University of California Berkeley campus community, I am deeply concerned and involved with activities in protest of the Vietnam war and the Cambodian invasion.

The Berkeley campus, as a symbol of protest to the President's decision, is on strike. Faculty and students alike realize the seriousness of the President's decision.

Four Kent State University students are dead, murdered by the National Guard, due to their defiance of the war effort.

This tragic affair only further indicates to me the increasing conservative and repressive techniques our government is employing to smash dissent.

The whole affair smells of fascism.

However, my form of protest is not militant action. Smashing windows, burning buildings, throwing rocks only furthers the hate, provokes the trigger-happy police department and culminates in tragic occurrences like the one of Kent State.

Violence only breeds violence. Escalation never leads to peace — only to the destruction of one of the sides.

Berkeley DAVID GOLDIN

THE KENT STATE KILLINGS and the wave of violence triggered by the Cambodian decision made by President Nixon seem to me to epitomize the net result of years of almost total abdication of administrative authority.

The norm of behavior has been to grant ludicrous amnesties to the most flagrant violators and to subserviently give in to the most preposterous slates of unrealizable demands.

I submit that a bandwagon effect has been created by this long chain of direct appeasement procedures, and now the sorry harvest is being reaped in full on a nationwide scale.

The fine balance that must be maintained by the courts in relation to individual rights and public rights involving the vital area of public safety has been skewed to the degree that many protestors feel a sense of security from rightful penalties under existing laws for willful transgressions. Until a balanced perspective is once again established, I feel the motivating factors for continued violence in our society will escalate still further.

The communications media are, in my opinion, a tremendous catalytic agent in fostering a climate wherein the disruptions tearing at the roots of our institutions and symbols of our society are constantly assured a front stage position.

It would once in awhile be refreshing to hear some of the demonstrators rightfully termed "young anarchists" rather than "young children" after a debris — and rock-throwing attack against authority symbols such as police or guardsmen.

Los Alamitos FRANK R. WYNNE

I HAVE JUST read the article from the Associated Press concerning the turmoil in the campuses in protest against our troops entering Cambodia.

The article states that the American flag was lowered to half mast over the Statehouse in Boston. The only time the flag may be properly half-masted without a proclamation from the President is on Memorial Day, from sunrise until noon.

The U.S. flag belongs to the nation. It belongs to all the people. It is half-masted only to honor a person the nation mourns. City, state and other flags may be lowered by local consent. But our national flag flies in all its glory, proud and tall at full mast, unless so ordered by the President.

If the infiltration of people from other countries, who are opposed to our United States, could reach such a momentum to arouse a dangerous uprising in our country, who would be the first to yell for Uncle to protect them? Right! The very ones who are today causing us such havoc with their protests, their marches, destruction, cruelty.

It would seem that a few hindquarters should have been warmed a bit by father's strong hand before they reached the age of supposedly young adults. A little education is a dangerous thing.

L. A. C. SAYS

Variable interest for home buyers

THE VARIABLE interest rate plan is being used by an increasing number of home buyers and lending institutions. The plan calls for raising or lowering interest rates on loans according to the fluctuations of the money market. It is favored by saving and loan associations and apparently by the Nixon administration.

A chart in U.S. News shows average interest rates for new home mortgages were 5.8 per cent in 1965. Latest rates shown are 8.5 per cent. That means an increase of 46 per cent in five years. Loans on a straight interest basis would have to pay this higher interest rate for the 30-year mortgage period.

The chart gives these examples based on an 8 per cent interest rate on a $25,000 mortgage for 30 years. The payments would be $183 a month. If interest rates should go to 10 per cent the monthly payment would be $211 a month. But if interest rates dropped to 5.5 per cent the payments would drop to $158 a month. Interest rates have changed by these amounts in many past period of inflation and recessions.

Under the variable interest plan the changes would be made every five years. The changes would be based on some formula such as the interest being paid on three to five-year government securities — or the Federal Reserve rates at the time.

IT SEEMS A complicated method. But it is the only way a borrower and the lender can adjust rates in a changing interest rate system. The home buyer who waits for lower interest rates may find many years will pass before they are reduced to a level that appears attractive. On the other hand if he borrows the money now he may find himself paying even higher interest rates. It is a gamble on what the cost will be. But it is the only way you can borrow money for a home today and have a chance that you might lower payments in future years.

The plan, as explained, says the home owner may wish his monthly payments reduced if interest rates are lowered — or he can continue the starting payment and thereby pay off the principal at a faster pace. The younger people may feel they can afford the higher payment if interest rates advance because they expect to be in a higher income bracket.

THE NEED OF many more new homes is one of our greatest housing problems.

There is little hope that construction costs will ever be much lower than at present. This is because of the constant increase in cost of labor and materials. It is therefore more difficult for young families to buy their own home. If they are in position to do so now they may find the value of the property increased as the years go by. If they wait for lower prices it may be they will never own their home.

The variable interest plan is being used to provide an incentive for borrowing the money now with the hope the interest rate will be lower later on. If the cost of interest goes higher the borrower will have to pay the additional amount. It is a decision each family must make based on the hope for lower monthly costs—or their willingness and ability to pay the added cost if interest rates go higher.

SAVED BABY'S LIFE

Scout Hero Up for Award

When 14-year-old Carl Thomas Peach, a student at Bellflower's Roosevelt Junior High School, participates in the June 6 Long Beach area Scout-O-Rama, his thoughts are sure to go back to that almost fateful night of March 17.

It was on that date that Carl, who goes by the name "Tommy," responded to an emergency in the best traditions of the Boy Scouts. He is credited with saving the life of a neighbor's infant son.

AND TOMMY, of 9508 Cedar St., stands a good chance of winning the Boy Scout National Life Saving Award for administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to little Brian Dennis, then two weeks old, who was choking on an excessive amount of phlegm.

"My husband, William, works nights, and I was home with Brian and my older son, Jerry," said Mrs. Donna Dennis, 24, of 9509½ Cedar St., Bellflower.

"I was in the kitchen making some oatmeal when I heard a funny, gurgling noise. I ran out to the dining room, where I had left Brian and saw him lying there turning blue and choking.

"There was a lot of mucus in Brian's mouth. I cleaned it out, but he was still choking. I sent Jerry (who is five years old) to get a neighbor who's a registered nurse, and at the same time called the sheriff's department.

"The nurse wasn't home and I was really getting panicky when Jerry came back with Tommy.

"TOMMY SAVED Brian's life. He gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until the firemen arrived."

Capt. Charles R. Rayhawk, of the county's Fire Station 23 in Bellflower, agrees with Mrs. Dennis about Tommy's heroism.

"By the time Engine 23 got to the scene, Brian was breathing well and was back to his normal color," Capt. Rayhawk said in a letter to the Long Beach Council, Boy Scouts of America, recommending Tommy for commendation.

"(Brian) was rushed to Kaiser Hospital in (a) sheriff's car with a fireman administering oxygen from an inhalator," the letter continued.

"Our response time to that part of Bellflower is about three minutes. Surely, without Tommy's help Brian would not be alive today."

Tommy remembers the night of March 17 well: "I held the baby and gave him a few short breaths and he responded. It was a few minutes until the firemen arrived, and I spent that time giving Brian mouth-to-mouth resuscitation like we were taught in life saving class.

"I'VE NEVER been involved in a situation like that before, and I hope I never am again. But if I am I'll know what to do because of my Boy Scout training."

Tommy, the son of Carl and Shirley Peach, is a member of Boy Scout Troop 85 of Lakewood.

He and his troop will be participating in Scout-O-Rama, which begins at noon June 6 with a parade from Del Amo Boulevard and Clark Avenue to the Veterans Memorial Stadium, 5000 Lew Davis St.

Following opening ceremonies at the stadium, Scout-O-Rama's displays and exhibits of scout handicrafts, equipment and abilities will be held until 8 p.m.

Some 40 scout units from Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill, Bellflower and Dominguez, the Ft. MacArthur Army band, Grand Marshal O.J. Simpson and other entries will march in the parade, according to Bill Hayes, assistant Long Beach Council scout executive.

Tickets for Scout-O-Rama are on sale at the council's office, 401 E. 37th St., or from any Cub Scout, Boy Scout or Explorer Scout, or can be purchased at the stadium gate, he said.

Y Leader Plans Hawaii Camping Trip for July

By ANNE HOWE
Staff Writer

Lots of YMCA directors take youngsters camping during the summer, but few are willing to take them as far as Hawaii.

Fritz Warmbrodt, executive director of the North Community YMCA, thinks Long Beach youngsters should see the unspoiled spots in the Hawaiian Islands, not just the tourist sights, and he's just the man to direct a proposed trip.

He has been a YMCA director in Hawaii for a year-and-a-half before coming to North Long Beach; he knows the Islands.

"To see the real Hawaii, you have to camp out and travel by van or jeep," he said. "There are miles of beautiful beaches on the island of Oahu and around the big island of Hawaii, the surfs always up and the weather's ideal."

The idea of a Hawaiian summer trip isn't new. Other YMCAs in Southern California have tried it, but the kids always stayed in hotels in Honolulu and saw just a small portion of the more commercial areas near the city.

"We want to do something different. Our plans include mud sliding and surfing around Hanama Bay on Oahu, and a visit to the black sands beach on the Kona coast," Warmbrodt said.

His group will leave July 13, and the nine-day itinerary includes eight days camping and a one-night stay in a Honolulu Hotel.

"I plan to visit some of my former Y friends while in Hawaii, giving our Long Beach kids a chance to exchange ideas with these Japanese, Chinese and Philippine Y members," he added.

The trip is open to all boys and girls of high school or college age from the greater Long Beach area. Adult chaperons, including Mrs. Warmbrodt, will be provided for each seven youngsters. The $250 cost for Y members or the $260 fee for nonmembers includes all air transportation, food and lodging for the trip.

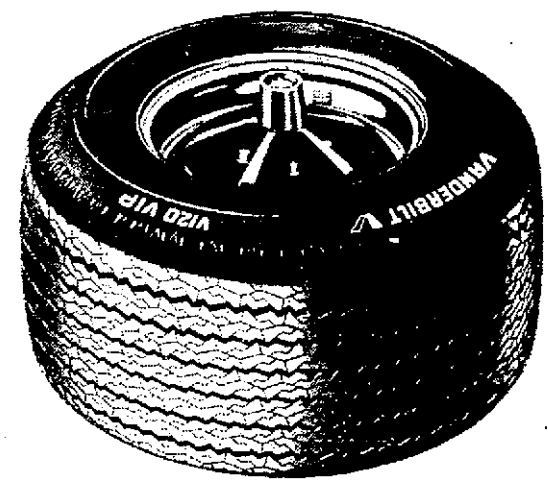

Reservations may be made at the North Community YMCA, 61st and Orange Ave., North Long Beach.

mored personnel carriers, air observation teams and other equipment and personnel.

Gen. Lawson said anti-riot training had produced no recalcitrance on the part of National Guard units. Even the Guardsmen working as militants in exercises are eager.

"Some of the rioters in our exercises are Guardsmen. They're in training, too.

"So we tell a bunch of guys, 'OK, you're the rioters — you're the dissidents.'

"Then the first thing you know, we have to get them off in a corner — and you can see the lieutenants really shaking them up — because they just get carried away with the idea.

"There's something to it that really brings out the evil in a guy."

THE SITUATION in the California National Guard is good and getting better, Gen. Ames believes.

"The entire theory of controlling civil disturbances is by displaying massed, trained and disciplined troops," he said, "all of them under control and all of them under tight leadership.

"In some ways we're better structured than the police to secure order. That's because we act in groups while the police act individually."

Bombings are a major fear in the National Guard leadership, principally because there is no way of identifying the bomber.

"The bombings have given us concern," said Gen. Ames. "Our own armories — their security — is a problem.

"We very quickly traced some of this activity to the Weatherman faction of SDS but there is really no way to trace a bomber unless you catch him in the act."

WHEN HIGH TENSION lines were bombed in the Berkeley area two years ago, the Guard took a role in the probe.

"We didn't know what to think," said Gen. Ames.

"Were there Black Panthers involved? Some other organization?

"Or was it just some guy who didn't like the last bill he got from the electric company?"

The bombings at various locations in California have been impossible to pin down. One — in front of the Oakland police station — was actually blamed on a reserve police officer bent on ingratiating himself to his superiors and hopeful of stirring up resentment against the Black Panthers in the community.

Despite the incidents, Gen. Ames, like Gen. Lawson, is inclined to believe that the problems that normally result in Guard callups are on the wane.

"We feel things are a little bit better this year," said the state's top Guardsman.

"THIS IS LARGELY due to a lack of support for revolutionary goals by some campus extremists. And we're aware that the situation could change at any time."

PAULA SHIELDS
Her Frog the Best

Frog's 13-Foot Hop Wins

Five-year-old Paula Kay Shields and a frog named Paniho proved an unbeatable combination Saturday when Buena Park staged its annual frog-jump.

Together, they won the sweepstakes trophy — and the honor of representing their home town in the famed Calaveras County Frog Jumping Contest at Angel's Camp.

Paula was not surprised at the performance of her pet. He hopped an amazing 13 feet, one inch, in the jump-off at Knott's Berry Farm lagoon.

But she was overwhelmed when they gave her a trophy—which was almost as big as she is and which weighed almost as much.

WITH THE dignity of a sweepstakes win to her credit, Paula and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Shields of 7929 San Rafael Drive, Buena Park, will wear Buena Park's colors in the Angels Camp classic.

There's some doubt that Pancho, a nondescript creature, can make it. He's on the lazy side, and he croaked his disapproval of exerting so much energy to jump so far.

Nudes on Stage in Orange Co.

Nude dancers performed this weekend at three Orange County bars under the protection of a Superior Court order which forbids their arrest under certain conditions.

The word was out shortly after Judge Robert L. Corfman issued a temporary injunction against Santa Ana police and the Orange County's Sheriff's office, that more bars would recruit nude dancers, and so mushroom this type of show.

Judge Corfman slapped three restrictions on his temporary order, made returnable for arguments May 19.

He decreed that only one nude woman can appear at a time on any bar's dance platform, that any unclothed dancer must cover herself while off stage, and that they can be arrested if they do not confine themselves to dancing or posing in the nude.

HIS ORDER applies to the Sarong Gals bar, 701 N. Harbor Blvd., Santa Ana and the Chee Chee bar at 1109 N. Harbor Blvd., both in Santa Ana; and the Tuscan Room, 14211 Newport Ave., in county territory.

Attorney Berrien Moore claimed that officers had harassed the bar owners and dancers for the past two months, making a series of arrests for alleged indecent performances.

campus. Expressed over and over were fears of a violent confrontation with a determination to remain.

"We told them they were in violation of the closing ruling and definitely would have to leave the campus," Branson said. "Many asked if we would rush in and arrest them all.

"They were advised that we would, if it became necessary, declare this to be an unlawful assembly. Then, after a reasonable time to walk away, we would begin to make arrests.

"How would these arrests be made?" was another frequently-asked question, he said.

"If there's no resistance, I replied, we'll carry you away like babies." Police assumed many would be stretched out or seated at that final minute.

Dean Shainline and Jeys talked again at 3 a.m., Jeys recalled. "He asked how we would react if Long Beach officers moved on us, and I replied we wanted very much to continue talking with them," the student said.

This was the third and final tense moment in a night when "I at least, felt guarded optimism that we could actually protest in a non-violent manner," Jeys added.

Anti-climax marked the last hours. Most slept while others talked quietly. Those awake voted by 5:30 to go.

Jeys, who had wanted to stay, "fell into a leadership role" at midnight, when some students left. He is a third-year political science student, committed, he said, to non-violence.

"If we want to end the South Asia war, the solution is not in taking a college building or confronting the police. The solution lies within the dominant community, and it's there we must work . . . by using every available tool of political - economic - social persuasion.

"But no violence!"

His beliefs stem in part from the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Gandhi and, strangely, mid-19th Century English philosopher John Stuart Mill. Mill, a strong supporter of capitalism, also preached a doctrine of "social utility" — will this or that measure work to improve society?

Emerging from the long night, the young student believes, "is the potential for cooperation between students and police."

"We've perhaps gained some rapport we didn't have before," Branson said. "Valuable lines of communication were opened up when meaningful, two-way talks took place," Colvin put in.

The officers left and Jeys got the last, significant word.

I repeated my first quote: "The people of Long Beach should be proud of their policemen."

"Would you agree?"

Jeys thought briefly. "Yes, I would," he finally replied, "but don't forget to credit the students for their part in making this a non-violent confrontation.

"We didn't want another Kent State, but we were determined to stay."

Kids' Pictures Show What Mom's All About

EIGHT-YEAR-OLD'S VISION OF HER MOMMY'S SMILE
Happy Eyes, Pink Cheeks and 38 Teeth — All in Front

By ARLINE SHERER
Staff Writer

To a newborn, a mother is a warm presence that fulfills his needs. To an older child, a mother can be a friend, a teacher, a nurse, a cleaning lady, a naysayer and a loved one.

As a Mother's Day tribute, 74 childrens' visual impressions of their mothers are being displayed until 5 p.m. today on the second floor of the Broadway Department store, 2100 Bellflower Blvd., Long Beach.

The exhibit, "A Picture of My Mom," is sponsored by the Long Beach Department of Recreation. The pictures were done by children, ages 3 to 14, in park and school crafts classes.

BESIDES THE USUAL mediums of crayon and paints, the children portrayed their mothers by using yarn, pipe cleaners, feathers, felt, and photographs.

Blonde and black were the most common colors used for mothers' hair. But Lisa Gomez, age 6, from Ramona Park Playground, got carried away and showed her mother as having red, pink and yellow hair.

Occasionally, a child put a comment on a picture. Cynthia Milford, 7, of Veterans Park, depicted her mother out in the garden with the sun shining. On the side of the picture, were the words, "Let's Make a Dile," proving that television does influence children.

The exhibit drew comment from many shoppers. Three elderly ladies remarked at how "darling" the pictures were. A young mother said she was amazed at the imagination and skill the children displayed.

For the junior artists, the pictures were just fun to draw. Clayton Strehlow, 5, of College Estates Park, portrayed his mother as having a round pink body, pop eyes and golden hair.

WHEN ASKED ABOUT his mother, he said, "She looks like a plain mother."

For Clayton, a mother is a cook, a washer woman and someone who helps him make his bed.

Laura Thornquist, 7, of Wardlow Park, drew a crayon picture showing her mother with a wide smile and a large set of teeth.

"I'm going to give my mother a flower for Mother's Day," she said proudly.

Mrs. Helen Palomo, who saw her son's picture at the park, remarked, "I never looked so good."

Christine Bennett, 10, of Ramona Park, was proud of the picture she drew of her mother, but even prouder of her mother:

"She's what a mother should be — a nice lady who takes care of you and helps you grow up right."

Inventors Say Minerals From Sea Water Could Make L.B. Wealthy

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

A group of Southern California inventors claim they can build a plant using sunshine to distill sea water and produce enough wealth to:

Eliminate all Long Beach City taxes.

Finance operation of the state school system for 1,000 years.

Provide free tuition for all students.

Supply all students' books and supplies.

Pay for construction of all needed new buildings.

Allow for a pay increase for all teachers, instructors, and professors.

Bernie Bergevin, chief engineer for Solar Laser Water Corporation, claims a pilot plant costing about $2 million and using the sun's rays 12 hours per day would produce $45,600 per day in recovered gold, silver, and other precious metals.

Using pre-heated mercury vapor and operating 24 hours per day would double the revenue, he said.

"The plant would pay for itself in a little more than four months," Bergevin claims.

The Rolling Hills engineer says he and his associates have been working on the process for more than 20 years.

He wants the city to build a pilot plant at Pier J.

A CUBIC MILE of sea water contains minerals worth $7 trillion, according to U. S. government figures, Bergevin says.

Cost of producing the fresh water, according to Bergevin, would be about $114 per acre foot. This compares with $49 per acre foot which the city now pays for imported water delivered to its reservoirs. The higher cost of producing the fresh water would be offset by the value of minerals recovered during the distillation process, the inventor says.

The process is described in U.S. Patent No. 3,338,797 granted to Bergevin and to Nicolai T. Hermansen, a retired National Technical School teacher now living in Leisure World, Seal Beach.

The distilling plant would work like this:

Thirty Pyrex lenses, three feet in diameter, are focused on the surface of the sea water in titanium-lined steel tanks 10 feet high, 10 feet wide, and 60 feet long.

The sun's rays, focused to a point at the water surface, produce a heat of more than 7,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

AS THE SEA water evaporates, the dissolved platinum in the water is attracted to the titanium lining by electrolytic action.

"It can be scraped off the sides with a putty knife," Bergevin claims. Current price for platinum is $243 per ounce.

The design and dimensions of the evaporating tanks were selected so that they can be transported on railway flatcars. Several tanks can be linked together to boost the output of fresh water.

Operating on solar energy alone, each tank can produce 38,000 gallons of fresh water per hour.

During the night or on overcast days, the brine is maintained at 259 degrees, the most efficient vaporizing temperature, by preheated mercury vapor.

The use of laser beams helps boost the heat produced by the solar energy.

The moisture-laden air from the solar tanks is pumped into a condensing unit. Sea water is used to cool the condenser which causes the vaporized water to turn to liquid.

The produced water is pumped into a high-standing tank then dropped into hydro-generators which create electricity to operate the plant and heat the mercury.

"SOUNDS LIKE perpetual motion," the inventor admits.

"But it works because the energy input is solar heat, the same heat used to energize solar batteries used on satellites," Bergevin points out.

The system would produce great quantities of salt (after the extraction of the minerals). Two methods of utilizing the salt have been suggested by the inventors.

One use would be to compress the salt, cover it with a colored plastic and make it into inter-locking, mortarless building blocks.

Bergevin suggests the produced salt — as much as 350 tons per day — in its sand-like form could be used as fill in place of dirt to build up freeway overpasses.

The Solar Laser Water Corp. method is a two-step process; production of fresh water from sea water and isolation of metals from the slurry which remains.

A CHEMIST, working in association with Solar Laser engineers, and operating in a converted garage laboratory in a rural community 100 miles from Long Beach, claims he has developed the technique for extracting the valuable minerals from the salt slurry.

This writer visited that homemade lab a short time ago. Until that time the most gold I had ever held in my hands was a pair of his-and-her wedding bands 27 years ago.

From a shelf in an old glass-doored china cabinet, our chemist-host took out two six inch-high metal ingots; one triangular in shape, the other cylindrical.

One was very heavy. It hefted like gold. It looked like gold. The chemist said it was gold.

He said it weighed "about 15 pounds."

At the current price jewelers are paying for gold, $150 per ounce, I was holding $36,000!

The other ingot was an unpolished black mass of metal.

Silver.

IT WEIGHED about 12 pounds. At $2 an ounce, the ingot was worth about $768.

The chemist told me to hold out my hand. With a small hammer he knocked off the top of the silver ingot a small quantity of metal into my palm.

"That's osmium. Worth $213 an ounce," he said.

He said he had extracted the metals from a quantity of salt produced by a well in the Salton Sea area.

He said that while the chunk of Salton Sea salt was rich in metal, the sea water was even richer.

Using a half gallon of ocean water which I personally dipped from Long Beach Harbor, the chemist in a matter of minutes produced silver — about as much as you would sprinkle on a salad if it were ground pepper.

A few days later, on a sunny afternoon on the lawn in front of his Leisure World apartment, Nicolai demonstrated how fresh water could be produced from sea water in a portable distilling plant.

Again I furnished the sea water.

Aerial Tramway Planner at Ports O'Call Village

Visitors to the Ports O' Call Village will be able to arrive in an aerial tramway then step into a "revolving donut" for a ride up a needle-like tower 32 stories high for a gull's-eye view of Los Angeles Harbor and beyond.

Plans for a $2-million privately financed expansion of the recreational facilities at the waterfront attraction were revealed this week by William A. Nott, vice president of Speciality Restaurant Corp.

APPEARING before the Los Angeles Board of Harbor Commissioners, Nott said his company will spend $425,000 to construct the tower and $325,000 to beautify the entrance to the sky ride with winding paths, waterfalls, and reflecting pools.

The company, operators of the village and the adjacent Whaler's Wharf, will spend an average of $400,000 per year for the next five years to develop the recreational facilities along the harbor's main channel, according to Nott.

The company's plans won commission approval.

The aerial tramway, similar to Sea World's in San Diego, would carry passengers in gondolas 70 feet in the air. The tramway would link the Ports O' Call Village, the sky tower, and the company's Rum Runner restaurant adjacent to the old Ferry Building.

CONSTRUCTION of the tower would start this month with an estimated completion date sometime in January.

Construction of the tramway would start in January.

Nott said present "thinking" among his executives is to create an entertainment complex with a Japanese theme in the area now occupied by Norm's Sport Fishing Landing.

"The development, as we now plan it, would be an entertainment center as opposed to a shopping village," Nott said.

"WE PLAN TO have animal acts and people acts with a variety of sophisticated rides," he added.

He said Economic Research Associates are currently working on a feasibility study of the project.

The sky tower will occupy an area equivalent to 36 stalls in the parking lot near the entrance to the village and Whaler's Wharf.

The 328-foot high tower, eight feet in diameter, would be ringed by two-tiered capsule 22 feet in diameter. The capsule, capable of carrying 60 persons, would make one-and-half revolutions while ascending 244 feet. It would make two complete revolutions at the top, providing riders with a 360-degree panoramic view of a large area of Southern California. It would make another one-and-a-half turns during descent.

NOTT SAID the capsule could make 11 round trips per hour.

The commission also approved a readjustment of the rental payable by Ports O' Call Restaurant Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Specialty Restaurant Corp., for a 10-year period retroactive to March 1, 1970.

Port officials estimate the new rental agreement is expected to produce about $4.5 million in revenue for the Harbor Department during the lease period.

Frank C. Sullivan, vice president of the commission, pointed out that based on estimated yearly revenue to the department from the gross sales the Ports O' Call complex will increase each year from $213,500 during 1969-70 to $488,000 in 1978-79.

BARBARA HERDT POINTS TO ARTIST'S VIEW OF SKY TOWER
Planned For Construction at Ports O' Call Village

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: There is just enough challenge in the coming year to keep you on your toes as you increase what you know into a much greater and thriving life-enterprise. The world at this stage in your life should look to you like a large oyster awaiting your efforts to pry it open. More restonsible status comes your way with constant endeavor.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): With everything going normally, put in a solid day's work. New people now attract your attention and possibly affections. Remember, however, to express your feelings for your loved ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Bright ideas and original moves lay off in all directions. Be consistent so others will see where to offer their share of the action.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Odd arrangements come as naturally as any, with great likelihood of success. Intellectual action brings much satisfaction. Considerable movement, short trips, hasty errands are likely required today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You find yourself a minority of one, with a conservative viewpoint, while everybody else is rushing to speculate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Strangers are mixed in with your regular cronies and neighbors. This gives you something to think about, perhaps an insight into how much you take for granted about the people working with and around you most of the time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Confidential connections now bring more help than you can use, but give you a good idea of what comes next.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friends rally around you; shared cooperation and vivid experience now come easily. Express yourself; strive vigorously to bring your secret hopes into reality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Opposition to your leadership and example now fades, and a field day is in the offing. The freshness of your approach determines further opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Think and act big. Take direct action to achieve the goals you have worked out lately; reach for more.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make inquiries, frame good questions, file petitions and official papers of all sorts. Novel shortcuts take competitors by surprise and give you a head start.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Teamwork achieved now brings in results, some of them unexpectedly good.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Serious experimenting is probably in order. Your standing improves because of your diligence and dependability.

City Library Caters to 380,000 Literary Tastes

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Amid the turn-of-the-century grandeur of the main Long Beach Library in staid, tree-lined Lincoln Park, a staff of more than 100 librarians and their assistants fill citizens' desires for everything from vicarious romance to borrowed oil paintings.

The library's cornerstone shows the huge stone block structure was erected in 1906 — "a gift from Andrew Carnegie" — and the words "public library" are chiseled in old Roman lettering.

BUT INSIDE, while the atmosphere is that of the typical musty scholar's lair, the latest in modern library services supplement the established custom of lending books:

Magazines, photographs, record albums, musical scores and films may be checked out. Film service was recently extended to the library's North Branch.

It is still offered through the main library, where, in the art department, prints and oil reproductions — with frames — are available to patrons who temporarily want to add some color to the walls of their homes.

Checkpoint for all these services in the main library, the hub of the city's 12-library system, not counting one traveling branch, the bookmobile, which is responsible for feeding more than 380,000 Long Beach residents their massive daily diet of reading matter.

But the 1900s aura about the main library is fitting, according to librarians there, for it is also the agency of historical record for the City of Long Beach.

CRAMPED FOR space to house its massive collection of books, the library has also had to find room for stacks of government and city documents.

"This is basically a research library," said Leslie Swadling, a general librarian in the main floor's literature department. "Most main libraries are, because they have the responsibility of collecting so many of the city's records."

The city's 11 other branch libraries generally also complain of lack of space, although their problem is housing books of general interest.

In the main library's musty mezzanine is stored volume upon volume of plain-jacketed government documents and records, marking decades of progress by federal bureaus and committees.

AND IN Swadling's literature department, file cabinets of yellowing pictures and stacks of books trace the growth of Long Beach from its infancy as Willmore City.

Only one branch in the city's library system carries as heavy a concentration of historical data as the main library.

In North Long Beach, one branch is located in the Los Cerritos Ranch House, site of a Spanish rancho in California's early days.

There, an extensive collection of material from the rancho's era is kept, according to Mrs. Beulah Nelson one of the city's librarians, but the rarity of the books prohibits lending them.

BEYOND THE historical documentation in the city's library system are the tons of books kept in stock for the general interest of the average Long Beach reader.

And, Swadling indicated, if the library's offering to the public has expanded to keep pace with the times, the call for reading matter continues to follow established trends.

The escapist following, as always, is very heavy, he said. "Mysteries, science-fiction — they're all very popular." Non-fiction is well-read, as are the bestsellers, stocked as soon as possible after they make the lists.

But a trend is developing in the amount of sex appearing in popular books, Swadling believes. "We get lots of inquiries about things like 'Naked Came the Stranger,' or 'Valley of the Dolls'" — anything to do with sex.

"AND WHEN articles are published about books with the banned-in-Boston approach, it brings people out who don't normally use the library," he said.

Swadling, who prefers non-fiction and biographies, believes the inclusion of sexy passages for sales sake has even filtered into the works of some noted authors whose earlier books had no prurient appeal.

Has that lowered the quality of any authors' works? "I think it has," he said, "but I wouldn't like to say which ones."

Films and TV, the book's competitors for leisure time, have also created a trend in reading, said Swadling. "Whenever a popular movie comes out, we get calls for the books. Lately we've had several requests for a book on 'They Shoot Horses, Don't They?'"

Mrs. Lorna Kugler, children's librarian at the North Branch, has also noted the effect of TV on young students reading habits.

AN EDUCATIONAL TV program for pre-school and grade-school children, Sesame Street, often induces children to seek books by spotlighting them with readings on the air, she said.

The saturation of today's typical home with a variety of entertaining and educational TV shows is also helping to build another trend among the youngsters of Long Beach, added Mrs. Kugler.

"You know, with so much TV, it seems to me that kids now have all kinds of adult interests." She explained that recently the North Branch received a colorful book on motorcycling, with a great number of illustrations, geared by its writer for seventh and eighth graders.

"You know who's reading that book?" she asked. "The little ones down in the first grade."

YET MRS. KUGLER — who visits each of the nine schools in North's area each year to entice children to use the library, admits that such influences as TV do not come to bear on all the children.

The North Branch, at 5571 Orange Ave., is located nearly one mile from the heart of the Carmelitos Housing Project, an island of county land in North Long Beach and the site of a county-administered low-income residential tract.

"We get quite a few kids from Carmelitos," Mrs. Kugler said, "yet not so many as from other areas because it's so far to come."

(The specialized, elegant Rancho Los Cerritos Branch is equally near the Carmelitos Project in the center of the exclusive Virginia Country Club home tract.)

DISTANCE is not the only problem youngsters from Carmelitos must overcome, however, said Mrs. Kugler. At home, she believes, the children are not inspired to use the library by their parents, and "it is true that the fines are a real problem."

A five-cent fine is levied against a borrower for each day a book is late.

"But we're trying other things to bring them in," Mrs. Kegler added. There is a story hour on Saturday mornings, she explained, when children may come to listen.

Also, while she has time for only one visit to each school during the spring, that visit is given the added punch of a continuing campaign promoting the library through school bulletin boards and classrooms, she said.

"This year our campaign is built around the Peanuts cartoon character of Snoopy," she said. "It's working pretty well. It's all part of the regular service."

THE PENNEY STORY

How does Penney's do it?

By ROBERTA NASH

"How can you offer such consistent value?" a customer asked me.

I put the question to a Penney manager: "The answer may sound too simple. (1) We buy only first quality goods. (2) We buy them at lowest possible prices. (3) We make only a reasonable profit.

"But the real trick is in knowing how. Our buyers are acknowledged the very best in the business. We are known as the world's thriftiest storekeepers. And our ironclad policy is to pass the savings on to our customers."

Goldwyn Hopes to Make Crime Pay Off in Movies

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Samuel Goldwyn Jr. is determined to make crime pay. "Cotton Comes to Harlem," the young producer's cops and robbers comedy, will open soon, and now he has announced his plan to film "The Bloody Benders" Robert H. Adleman's not-so-comic book about an actual murder case, which Stein and Day will publish May 29.

"The Bloody Benders" dramatizes the careers of the notorious Benders, a family that opened an inn in Kansas around 1807 and, during the next three years, proceeded to rob and murder more than 15 unsuspecting, prosperous guests," said Goldwyn.

CHECKING THE LINEUP

Susan Ladner, Miss Mississippi, left, checks the lineup of Miss U.S.A. Beauty Pageant contestants as they were about to have their official picture taken. The pageant is now being held at Miami Beach and will conclude Saturday.

Brazil Trade Rises

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazilian exports increased 17.5 per cent in the first three months of this year over the same quarter of 1969, the Brazilian Central Bank reported.

EARL WILSON'S BROADWAY

Tucker Has His Best Financial Year

NEW YORK — "I'm getting so old-fashioined, I ride trains."

Forrest Tucker, at 51 and after coming out of a so-called retirement, has had his best financial year in the 35 he's been an actor. It makes him think the old-fashioneds may be coming back.

"I ride trains so I can relax and read," he said. "I took the Broadway Limited and the Super Chief this trip. I think you've got to stop this whirl you're on all the time to let your body catch up with your brain. I like to have dinner on the train, sit around the club car, play cards with my wife Marilyn, when I get sleepy, go to bed. Not many people do that any more. I'm a big man to put down in one little seat for six hours, so when I go to London, I take the ship."

"TUCK" GOT on the old-fashioned theme because he thinks there's a good old-fashioned movie to be made about Toots Shor based on Bob Considine's book, "Toots."

"You got the Leon & Eddie's story for openers," he said. "How this guy rose from bouncer to impresario or whatever Toots is today. I don't think it's too old-fashioned.

"But I admit I'm not in touch with today.

"In my day it would never have occurred to me to call an officer of the law 'a pig.' I have a 26-year-old daughter who's married and has a baby, and I try to communicate with her but I can't.

"We're going to come back to old-fashioned pictures. We're not going to have movies about sex in the streets forever. They're going to run out of that. Pay TV is going to put everybody back on its feet, and you can't put that stuff on TV."

"Tuck" has made a movie called "Barquero," which means bargeman or boatman, playing a character called "Mountain Phil," which is old-fashioned enough for almost anybody. And he's going to play "Life With Father" for 8 weeks at the Chicago Drury Lane — a chore he relishes because it goes back to the old-fashioned days when father was a power in the home — or at least thought he was.

"I practice what I preach," Tucker said.

"When TV began hurtin' the movies, I told my agent to bring down my salary. I put my salary down to where I was a bargain. I said, 'Get my salary down to where they can't afford not to hire me.' I made five or 6 pictures while some of my pals were playing golf because they wouldn't lower their salaries."

HE FINISHED A pictures with John Wayne ("Chisum"), about the time Wayne was winning his Oscar. He says Wayne kept doubting he'd get one, and saying, "No chance."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: No matter where you go, you'll always find somebody who'll tell you that by taking another route you could have gotten there 45 minutes sooner.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Bobby Vinton defined "nose" as "the shortest distance between two race horses."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: Fred Allen once described an unsavory character: "He has a heart that'll fit in a pistachio shell — and rattle."

EARL'S PEARLS: The company that published, "The Wit and Wisdom of Spiro T. Agnew" — a book of blank pages — has another "empty" volume ready: "What I Know About Wall St. After 25 Years' Experience."

Sammy Davis kidded the Tony Curtis-marijuana stories at his Latin Casino show, announcing, "I'm a little late tonight, because I've been out giving back my 'I Quit' buttons." THAT'S EARL, BROTHER.

Feminists Scored by Pamela Mason

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Pamela Mason, never a female to hide her opinions, directed a barrage of invective against strident feminists and the Women's Liberation Front.

"They are squandering all the advantages of being females," she said, "for the dubious distinction of being a man's equal.

"We're a good deal more than equal, thank you," said the actress-television personality. "We have the best of both worlds right now.

"I'm against the Women's Liberation Front because they would deny the good things and pleasures of being a woman, including motherhood. They accuse men of creating the situation in which women now find themselves. Nonsense. Women are women by instinct.

"These females who cry out for equality lack the very instincts of being feminine. Women must keep the nest while men bring home the bacon."

THE FORMER Mrs. James Mason does both. In addition to raising daughter, Portland, and son, Morgan, she works regularly in television and motion pictures.

Currently she is developing a new television series, "The World of Pleasure," fittingly enough based in Las Vegas.

"We hope to syndicate the show across the country," Pamela said enthusiastically. "It'll be an hour of exploring the things that absorb leisure time — fishing, sky-diving, horse shows, sailing, golf, tennis, adult night courses in interesting subjects. Even cooking.

"We'll go on location to shooting interesting people involved in a variety of hobbies and activities. Then we'll interview an authority in the field."

AS MIGHT BE expected, Pamela will provide a few of her own observations to add spice to the series.

Even as a working mother she does not believe women deserve equal pay in the same jobs men hold.

"Everyone knows most women take a job to find a husband, or to help support her own spouse," Pamela said. "That's not really fair, is it?

"Once the working girl finds her husband, she quits, leaving her boss without help — usually after he's spent a fortune training her for the job.

"Women are not only unfair to men, they are just as uncharitable to other females. That's why there are so few feminine emcees on television today.

"WOMEN KEEP other women off the air because they'd rather see a man talking to them or selling them soap instead of another female. It's a ridiculous situation.

"I think Betsy Palmer and her girl talk show is about the only recent example of a television program on a national basis with a female running things.

"Research has shown women don't like to hear another female's voice because the range is too high. Well, a sufficiency of vodka has lowered my voice considerably and it may be one of the reasons why I'll be doing this new show."

Pamela lifted a cup of tea, an old British habit, and concluded, "If the truth were known it is the men who should be shouting for equality!"

GEN. S. C. PHILLIPS
Torrance Speaker

Chamber to Hear General

The commander of the Air Force Space and Missile Systems Organization (SAMSO) will be the speaker for the Torrance Area Chamber of Commerce membership luncheon meeting at noon Thursday in Sam's Cafe, 3210 Sepulveda Blvd.

Lt. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips will speak on "Aerospace Power for the National Defense — 1970" as the official kickoff for the Armed Forces weekend in Torrance Friday and Saturday.

Prior to assuming command at SAMSO in September Gen. Phillips was assigned to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as director of the Apollo manned lunar landing program.

HE HAS TAKEN part also in the development of the B52 and Falcon, Bomarc and Minuteman missiles.

Robert L. Reis, the chamber's vice president for membership affairs, said a big turnout was expected.

The 11th annual Armed Forces Day Parade, the largest in the nation, will get under way at 10 a.m. Saturday, followed by a luncheon at the Los Angeles Air Force Station Officers Club.

James D. Hittle, assistant secretary of the Navy for manpower and reserve affairs, will be the parade grand marshal and luncheon speaker.

Awards to Be Presented at 'Y' Installation Dinner in Lakewood

Les Humphrey, former International President of the Y's Mens and 45-year member of the YMCA, will be installed as chairman of the Lakewood YMCA Board of Directors at the Y's annual dinner Wednesday at the Lakewood Country Club.

William Teague, Orange County businessman, will be featured speaker for the event. Awards will be presented to the "Outstanding Man and Woman" in the Lakewbod area.

Two special awards and two youth awards will be presented by George McLuckie, executive director of the Lakewood Y.

Other new members of the Board of Directors being installed include Pat Milano, John Cummings, Bruce Penrose, John Overmyer and Bud Ekstrand.

The public is cordially invited to attend the 7 p.m. event. Reservations may be made at the Lakewood YMCA, 5425 Centralia Ave.

Tax Incentives Urged for Charity

CHICAGO (UPI) — An independent study commission recommended Saturday that new tax incentives for charitable gifts be introduced to "democratize philanthropy and spread the giving among more people."

The recommendation was based on a study of 51 Chicago charitable institutions, done by the Commission on Foundations and Private Philantrophy.

American Baptists to Hold Convention

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ecology, population control and dissent will be among issues considered by the 63rd annual meeting of the American Baptist Convention to be held here May 13-17.

The gathering is expected to attract 8,000 persons from 6,200 Baptist churches throughout the United Sates.

Birth Control Time Running Out

By CHARLES HINCH
Staff Writer

Imagine the entire habitable surface of the earth with a population density similar to Los Angeles — no forests, no place for large farms, solitude virtually unattainable.

Such a possibility, the certainty, confronts man in about 200 years if the present birth rate continue, Dr. Roger Revelle, director of the Harvard Center for Population Studies, told the Independent, Press-Telegram.

The population of the world, he said, is doubling every 35 years. Present population is 3.6 billion. In the year 2005, it will be 7.2 billion; in 2040, 14.4 billion; in 2075, 28.8 billion; in 2110, 57.6 billion and so on.

"There's no way," he said, "that you can feed 50 billion people, much less supply them with the power and necessities for a civilized existence.

Dr. Revelle was attending the Conference on Technological Change and Population Growth at Caltech in Pasadena.

Conference speaker, Dr. Minoru Muramatsu, of the Institute of Public Health in Tokyo, said the most unprecedented birth decline in the history of nations has taken place in recent years in Japan, partially because of the profound psychological effects of that country's defeat in World War II.

Dr. Carl Djerassi, professor of chemistry at Stanford University, said three theories currently dominate speculation on future birth control measures: a "once a month" pill for the female, a pill for the male and an additive to the public water supply. Male reservations about decreasing their fertility, he said, and public objection to the "Orwellian" idea of a sterilant in water, probably means a "once a month" pill for the women of the future.

THE BIRTH RATE in the U.S. Dr. Revelle said, has declined in the past 10 years from about 25 per year per 1,000 persons to 18, a reduction attributable to "fertility behaviour factors." He cited the growing use of contraceptives and the increasingly active role of women in business and other male endeavors and the increasing development of ways of life, such as urbanization, which discourage large families.

Man, Dr. Nevelle said, is faced with three alternatives:

— He can continue to multiply, in which case he will ultimately expire from problems of congestion.

— He can blunder into a nuclear war, in which case there will be only a few left on earth and they and their successors will live in a state of barbarity for an indefinite period.

— Or, man can "balance" his birth rate with his death rate, stabilize the world population and live a more fruitful existence.

Dr. Revelle said he was not pessimistic.

"I think we'll reach 10 billion or so in about 110 or 120 years. I don't see how we can escape it. It will be crowded, but we can manage and things should level off then.

HE DOESN'T foresee any food problem.

"Technology will take care of that."

Dr. Muramatsu listed several reasons besides wartime defeat for the decline in births in Japan.

The rate fell from 34 per year per 1,000 persons in 1947 to 17 per thousand in 1957, a reduction that has taken a century or more in most Western countries.

A primary cause, he said, is the Japanese people's unusual acceptance of abortion. In centuries past, he said, peasants practiced abortion in times of famine and the procedure has an historic meaning there.

He cited the nation's land mass, so small for its population of 100 million and — "for good or ill" — the Japanese, comparatively speaking, have no strong religious beliefs.

The decisive factors occurred in 1948 and 1952, however, he said. In 1948 a law legalizing abortion was passed and in 1952 a natonwide, government sponsored program was undertaken to encourage the use of contraceptives.

As a result, he said, Japan is now a nation of one and two children families. Rarely, he said, do you see a family with more.

About 1.3 billion people live in the developed countries, Dr. Revelle said, and about 2.3 billion in the poorer, developing countries.

There are, said Dr. Bernard Berelson, president of the Population Council in Washington, D. C., about 55 developing countries, and birth control programs have gained a foothold in almost half of them.

Twenty-three have birth control policies and programs, he said, while 16 support the idea but have no policy. Another 16 do not support it and have no policy or program.

Eleven he says achieved measurable goals in the 1960's. South Korea had the best record. About 1.4 million persons "converted" to the use of one kind of contraceptive or another during the decade, causing an estimated 10 per cent decline in the birth rate.

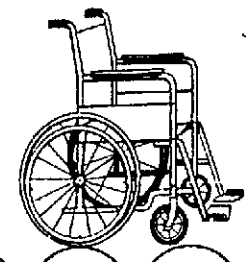

Dr. Berelson listed "convert" figures for others, but did not estimate the possible birth rate decline. His figures included India, about 10 million; Taiwan, 600,000; Pakistan, 4 million; Malaysia, 90,500; Ceylon, 225,000; Singapore, 62,000; Turkey, 800,000; Morocco, 114,500; and the Dominican Republic, 54,000.

The meeting ended Friday.

Girl Killed When Car Hits Engine

LIVERMORE (UPI) — Ruth Youmans, 18, of Reedsport, Ore., was killed Saturday when the car in which she was a passenger crashed into the side of a moving locomotive.

The driver, Anthony Higgins, 19, of Ft. Lewis, Wash., was seriously injured. Both are students at the Pentecostal Bible College here.

Navy Tests Oil Spill Skimmer

The U.S. Navy is testing a new method of picking up small oil spills developed at the San Pedro Fuel Depot.

Three civil service employes, James Johnson, John Rasmussen and Les Clayton, developed the oil skimmer which works much like a vacuum cleaner.

The vacuum rides on two floats which keeps its intake head slightly above the surface of the water. The vacuum sucks oil and water in through a hose, and then pumps it into a tank where it can be separated.

At present the fuel depot is using a fire hose to drive oil towards the vacuum skimmer. The skimmer is very useful in confined areas, the Navy said. It is not designed for use in open seas or rough water.

LBCC Offers Printed Schedules of Classes

Printed schedules for Long Beach City College's 1970 day and evening summer sessions are now available at all LBCC campuses and public libraries, college officials have announced.

Opening on June 22 will be a six-week day session which ends July 31 and an eight-week evening session which continues through Aug. 14. Summer classes are scheduled at both the Business and Technology Campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway, and the Liberal Arts Campus, 4901 East Carson St.

A second-day session, scheduled only at the Liberal Arts Campus, opens Aug. 3 and will continue through Sept. 10, including Saturday, Aug. 8.

Students not currently enrolled at Long Beach City College may make appointments to register for summer classes at the Student Personnel Office on June 8, 9, 10, 11, 15, 16 or 17 at the appropriate campus. Printed schedules include class offerings and complete registration information.

CON MEN OPERATING IN L.B.

'Bargain' TV Sets Turn Out to Be Boxes Full of Rocks

By CHUCK CHEATHAM
Staff Writer

Fast talking con men are offering great "bargains" in color television sets, Sgts. Wesley W. Bertz, Ralph W. Abraham and Carthel S. Roberson, Long Beach Police Department bunco-fraud detectives, reported Saturday.

Only trouble is the buyer never gets the set or sets he pays for, the sergeants added.

SCORES OF business men in this area have recently parted with an average of $1,000 each and the most any received for his money was a cardboard box loaded with worthless rocks, Sgts. Abraham, Bertz and Roberson said.

In almost every instance the victim was called at his place of business by a man who introduced himself only by his first name and asked "are you interested in a color television set like your friend, Al, told me? If you are I can save you a lot of money."

If the man is at all interested the bunco artist then tells one of several plausable stories.

IN SOME instances he pretends to be a deliveryman for a well known store and declares the store in overstocked with color televisions which must be sold before inventory time.

Another man meets the victim near the delivery dock of the store and shows him a brochure describing the sets and quotes bargain prices.

After the buyer selects his set or sets, the seller, usually dressed in deliveryman type clothing, takes the money and tells the victim to wait at the delivery ramp until he goes inside and gets the merchandise.

Needless to say, the man never returns.

Other purchasers are met on the parking lot of the store after they have selected a model and part with their cash when a box with the model number on it is placed in their auto.

WHEN THE bargain buyer opens the box he finds only rocks.

Biggest economy news since Maverick. All-new Falcon.

FORD

1970 Maverick. Still $1995.* America's biggest selling small car.

Meet the leader of your Ford Dealer's Economy Drive. Maverick's economical Six rivals the imports in gas mileage, yet delivers 105 horsepower. Maverick can U-turn in a tighter circle than the leading import. The Maverick Owner's Manual gives you 24 pages of instruction for routine maintenance jobs you can do yourself. Maverick needs fewer oil changes, fewer lubrications. The 1970 Maverick . . . the Simple Machine. Simple to drive, park, maintain, service and own.

*Ford's suggested retail price for the base Maverick model. Of course, you'll have to add $37 for the Fuel Evaporative Emission Control System required by the State, and $108.75 for transportation charges. White sidewall tires are not included, they are $30 extra. Dealer preparation charges, if any, state and local taxes are not included.

Join your Ford Dealer's Economy Drive.

All-new Falcon. No car so big costs so little.

Now your Ford Dealer brings you three new versions of America's all-time economy champ. The new Falcon line includes a stylish 4-door sedan, 2-door sedan and a roomy station wagon. More comfort and convenience than ever before. Falcon offers lots of riding room for all your passengers. Now you get 30% more luggage space—over 16 cubic feet. And the smooth power and top economy of Ford's reliable 155-hp 250 CID Six are standard. Falcon offers many economical Twice-a-Year Maintenance features, such as 6,000 miles between oil changes, 36,000 miles between chassis lubrications. L.B. Participation Urged in Hire a Veteran Week

It's a good bet to hire a vet!

This week opens Hire a Veteran Week in California, and Long Beach Mayor Edwin W. Wade had so proclaimed it for Long Beach.

George McArthur, veterans employment representative for the Department of Human Resources Development, Saturday cited five reasons why veterans can qualify occupationally:

"Maturity, training, skill and experience, education and stability are key factors for employers these days and veterans are fine examples of this."

He added that these "young but mature men possess the training plus technical skills, discipline and attitudes that offer productive assets to business and industry."

Vietnam veterans are returning to the work force daily, McArthur reported, and his office is concentrating efforts to increase job listings for this week.

Employers wishing to interview these men, prescreened to meet job specifications, are asked to contract the Department of Human Resources Development, Job Information Center, 1313 Pine Ave.

BRUNDAGE BLASTS 'HYPOCRISY'

'...For the Glory of Sport, Honour of Country...' (But Which One?)

Combined News Services

The International Olympic Committee, which has been described by an admirer as a "self-perpetuating oligarchy," will decide Tuesday on the site of the 1976 Olympic Games.

The leading candidates are Los Angeles and Moscow, and IOC-watchers maintain that the decision will have nothing to do with logic and little to do with the expensive promotional campaigns each city has mounted.

Friendships, the byzantine politics of the 70-odd oligarchs, and a sense of what is "best for the Olympic movement" will make the ultimate choice.

Friendships among the generally elderly and wealthy internationalists, many of whom have been convening together in the more comfortable capitals for decades, are hard to figure. The group's politics run to such narrow and complex matters as preparation for the selection of president Avery Brundage's successor in 1972. But what is "best for the Olympic movement" clearly comes down to matters of money, prestige and convenience.

Los Angeles has come on strong about money, prompting the Soviets to charge the Americans with unfairly using "commercial lures."

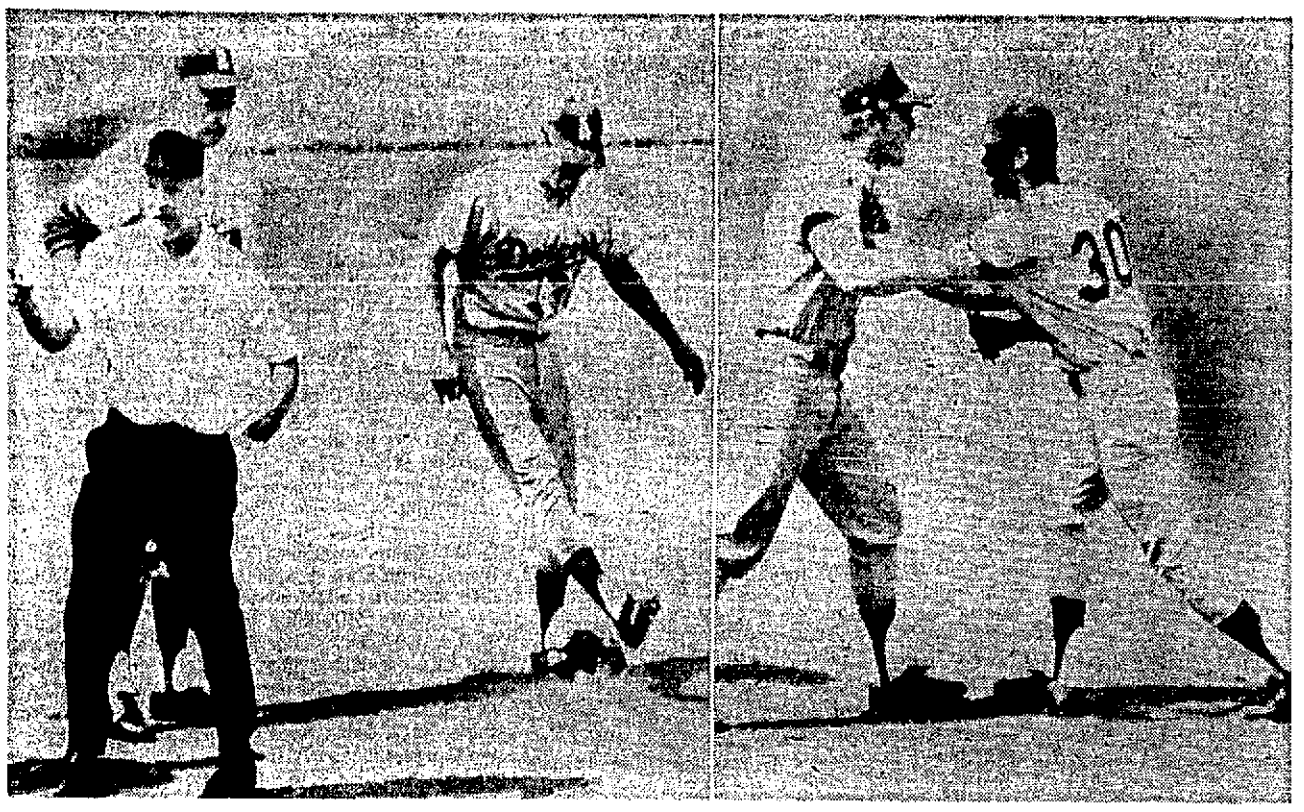

Brundage declared Saturday that "Alpine skiing does not belong to the Olympic program" and warned that the Olympic Games could be "doomed" if commercialism continued.

Brundage, the octogenarian American president of the IOC, called commercialism a "poisonous cancer" of various Olympic winter sports, which must be eliminated without delay. Brundage has had a running verbal fight with Alpine skiing federations over commercialism in their sport. Now he has one with ice hockey, which also has said it will become open.

Brundage, addressing the delegates from the international sports federations, said "ice hockey, football, basketball and alpine skiing" are problems.

"We'll be sorry to have them go, but they are the victims of the materialistic times in which we live," he added. "The public will no longer support hypocrisy. Don't forget that tennis, a popular sport all over the world, is no longer on the Olympic program."

Brundage also touched on boxing and figure skating because most medalists immediately turn professional after successful showings at the Games.

IT WILL ALWAYS BE A BAD CALL TO MAURY

Dodger shortstop Maury Wills kicks dirt in anger after being ejected from Saturday's game in Philadelphia by Shag Crawford. Manager Walter Alston tried to calm down Wills fiery infielder (right). Running bases in second inning, Wills (left) and third baseman Bill Sudakis physically restrained was hit by relay throw and ruled out for interference.

36,353 See Angels Swing on Bat Night --Belt Yanks, 11-3

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

After years of agony and declining revenue, this was the night the turnstiles clicked and it brought a look of ecstasy to the old cowboy, Gene Autry.

Autry, who has encountered more than his share of red ink since the birth of the Angels in 1961, stood proudly in the press box and gazed out over the sea of faces at the Big A — and it was indeed a sea.

Empty seats, for a change, were at a premium and Autry smiled and said, "It's a sight for sore eyes."

A trite phrase, perhaps, but it summed up the mood of the Angel organization — long renowned only as "the other team in town."

The lure on this Saturday evening in Orange County was "bat night" and it is an axiom of baseball these days that you must not only offer baseball as bait but also decorate the season with several Madison Ave. promotions in order to attract the blase citizenry.

To celebrate the occasion, the Angels also staged a private bat night of their own — much to the delight of 36,353, the largest crowd in California this season and the largest turnout at Anaheim Stadium since July of 1967.

The Angels rattled the New York Yankees with 18 hits, their highest total of the season, and battered the visitors 11-3 for their fourth successive success.

Back-to-back home runs by catcher Tom Egan and pitcher Andy Messersmith capped a four-run second inning that wiped out a 3-0 New York lead and sent the Angels away and winging.

Messersmith coasted to his fourth victory of the year, striking out eight, walking two and allowing six hits — only three after a shaky second inning.

The huge crowd gave the Angels 159,148 customers for 14 dates this year and sent them 22,000 ahead of last year's rather inept attendance pace.

The mob scene was gratifying because attendance has been a sore subject in Anaheim for the last year — and more — because of the steadily dwindling numbers game at the Big A.

The Angels had both going for them Saturday.

After the New Yorkers had taken a 3-0 lead in the top of the second, the Angels swarmed back with a

BEAT PHILS IN 14TH

Dodgers Use Late Lightning, 9-4

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

PHILADELPHIA — The Dodgers have developed quite an art for blowing a late-inning lead and then coming back to win in extra innings.

They did it again Saturday, first seeing a 4-2 lead over Philadelphia disappear in the ninth inning, then winning it in the 14th, 9-4.

It was the Dodgers' third win in a row — all in extra innings and their sixth win in their last seven starts.

Saturday's victory, though, received a rather large assist from the umpires on a controversial play in the second inning and prevented the Phillies from possibly winning in regulation time.

The Dodgers had scored two runs in the first inning on a single by Manny Mota, a walk and a double by Andy Kosco.

In the second, Sandy Vance and Maury Wills got aboard on walks from Woody Fryman. Then Mota, who had four hits including two triples during the long afternoon, lined a single to left.

Vance rounded third and headed for home as Wills raced toward third. But Jim Hutton's throw from leftfield struck Wills' and umprie Shag Crawford ruled that Maury had intentionally interfered and was the third out of the inning.

Even then the umpires permitted Vance to score, despite the fact he was 15 feet from the plate when Wills allegedly interfered.

"I'm not going to say one way or the other," manager Walter Alston said. "I just know I've never seen Maury so mad in my life. And I've never seen a play like that in all the years I've been managing."

Wills, who was thumbed out of the game arguing that he hadn't interfered and was just trying to dodge the ball, said he didn't see where Vance was when the ball hit him.

"I wish I was that good," he said, his cool restored. "I wish I could see the ball, the runner and know where I'm at, but I can't. No, I didn't do it on purpose. But I realize the umpire can only call it the way he sees it, and I'm not down on Shag because of it."

The umpire refused to comment.

The fact Vance was allowed the score even after the interference altered the Phillies' strategy. After they finally got to Vance for a run in the seventh, they still trailed by two instead of one and had to play for the big inning rather than a single run.

And when Mota, on his biggest day of 1970, tripled and stole home in the eighth, the Dodgers owned a 4-1 advantage.

As it was, though, the Phils caught up anyway on an unearned run in the

Saldivar Outpoints Famechon

Combined News Services

ROME — Vicente Saldivar of Mexico came out of retirement Saturday night and recaptured his world feather weight title, using a blazing left hook to outpoint champion Johnny Famechon of Australia in a 15-round World Boxing Council title fight.

The 27-year-old Mexican, who held the World Boxing Assn. version of the title for three years until his retirement in 1967, started strong and survived a late rush by Famechon to win a unanimous decision.

There was only one knockdown. A looping, pushing left by Saldivar in the eight round decked Famechon for a mandatory eight-count.

Saldivar, who weighed 126 pounds, had a puffed right eye from the 10th round on. That was the only mark on either man.

For Famechon, 124¼ pounds, it was his first defeat since 1965 and came in his third defense of the title he won last year.

It was the 34th win in Saldivar's professional career against one defeat. The French-born Famechon's record's 56 wins, five defeats and six draws.

British referee Harry Gibbs, who scored the fight 71-68 for Saldivar, cautioned both men for heeling, low punching and holding but the fight was clean and fast paced.

Hoyt Ready for 1,000th Pitching Stint Today

ATLANTA (AP) — Veteran Hoyt Wilhelm, the 46-year-old knuckleballer who saved Atlanta's 11th consecutive victory with his 999th appearance Saturday night, says he could pitch today if manager Luman Harris needs him.

If the ageless righthander makes an appearance against St. Louis in the final game of the Braves' home stand, he would become the first player in history to pitch in 1,000 games.

And Harris says, "You're darn right I might use him if I need to get Allen or Torre out in the ninth."

Wilhelm fanned Richie Allen and Joe Torre, two Cardinal sluggers, twice each Saturday night during his three-inning relief stint. On each occasion, St. Louis had the winning or tying runs on base.

Wilhelm's heroics gave Atlanta a 5-3 victory, its 11th in a row to equal a Braves record set in 1956.

"I had the best knuckleball tonight I've ever had, control-wise and otherwise," Wilhelm said.

Noting the jams he worked out of in the seventh and ninth innings, Wilhelm said, "I couldn't have been much tougher."

Bob Didier, the second-year catcher who handles Atlanta's knuckleball pitchers, sported bruises on both arms from catching Wilhelm's dancer.

Didier revealed that Wilhelm loves to hit someone trying to catch his knuckler during practice but added that he paid Hoyt back Saturday night.

"While Hoyt was warming up, I threw a knuckler back at him and it hit him in the leg," Didier said, smiling.

SCATS--Our Globetrotting Glamor Girls

The Long Beach SCATS, this country's premier girls' gymnastic team, never cease to be amazing.

The darlings are on the verge of becoming the first U.S. team in 122 years' history of the sport to win BOTH national championships. They already have put the U.S.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

All-American Championship trophy in their showcase and will be striving to capture the National AAU Championship May 27-31 in Miami.

Two SCATS also will participate in the World Games in October in Lubjana, Yugoslavia. And I hope that Paul Salata and Steve Kral will excuse me if I spelled the name of that township incorrectly.

Those young ladies would be Cathy Rigby, age 17, and Wendy Cluff, 18, U.S. Olympians who placed first and second in four gruelling days of All-American competition at Las Vegas last month.

WENDY CLUFF . . . 'Work, work, work'

Our country's top six all-around gymnasts in the women's field will represent the U.S. in the World Games and for the first time two girls from the same team, Cathy and Wendy, rank first and second in national competition.

The SCATS' coach, Bud Marquette, seems to have been around for the 122 years of the sport, but his remarkable job keeps improving. The L.B. SCATS are in such demand that they will perform in 40 cities nationwide next spring.

ASKED HOW he keeps coming through with remarkable performers, Marquette wasn't stuck for an answer.

"It's work, work, work," said the fiery Frenchman. "You also have to have both talented and dedicated girls. We have both."

Yet another feather in the Marquette cap is that his SCATS won their third consecutive national championship. They remind you of the old New York Yankees.

Like swimmers, gymnastic people sometimes burn out early. But Marquette has some excellent ones on his farm club.

CATHY RIGBY
. . . 'Barbie Doll'

There's Stephanie Stromer, a newcomer. This young lady is 15 years old and has earned herself a spot on the World Games trial team by placing 10th in the All-American Championship.

Along with her are Sandy Gross, age 14, and Gale Wyckoff, 12. Of Gale, Marquette remarks: "She's far ahead of Cathy at her ago." Quite a compliment since Cathy only is the best in the country today.

Bud figures that Cathy and Wendy will be able to represent the nation in the 1972 Olympic Games, with the others getting prepared for 1976, whether the events will be staged in Los Angeles or Moscow.

CATHY RIGBY, whose performance was termed dazzling in Las Vegas, earned the nickname of Barbie Doll. Wendy Cluff was called Dynamo Wendy. Anyway, those simply are two indications of how our girls performed and what others thought of them.

Marquette mentioned a thing of interest about the World Games which some people in better authority than this writer might investigate.

"This is THE thing in gymnastics," pointed out Bud. "Many of those fine people from other nations aim for this event, but they won't try for the Olympic Games. I guess it's because gymnastics during the Olympic Games don't get their just due. At any rate, those World Games next October in Yugoslavia are the top thing for the gymnasts."

Reminds you of a team in the NFL which would rather win its division than the Super Bowl, eh?

BASEBALL COMMISSIONER Bowie Kuhn must have been thinking in his sleep when he set up the new formula for selecting the players who will participate in this year's All-Star Game.

He made two giant mistakes, both of which probably are haunting him right now. First, he returned the vote to the fans. Mr. Kuhn certainly must recall the reason the vote was taken away from the fans. Cincinnati fans stuffed the ballot box for their Redlegs several seasons ago and the starting N.L. team virtually was the entire Cincy ball club.

Then he made the most monstrous mistake of all. He drew up a list of players for the game IN THE MIDDLE OF WINTER! As Don Merry pointed out in our Friday editions, two Angels should have been on the list had it been drawn up as early as May 1. That would be Alex Johnson (.347) and Jim Spencer (.367).

They can get a few votes as write-in candidates, but can you name a write-in candidate who won an election, or even an All-Star Game berth?

Another point to back our stand against Kuhn's action is in the person of Al Kaline (.344), Detroit's leading hitter. Kaline is not included on the list of eligibles.

Among some of the stalwarts named on the American League ballot during the winter were the following with their current averages: Sal Bando (.143), Reggie Jackson (.145), George Mitterwald (.163), Bert Campaneris (.200), Rich Reese (.210), Norm Cash (.213), Ted Uhlaender (.227), Dick Green (.233), Ken McMullen (.224), Mike Andrews (.234), Leo Cardenas (.236) and several others who also don't deserve to get All-Star recognition.

The commissioner must realize one thing at this time: You can't select an all-star team in December. It's the hope here that he rectifies his mistake.

MARSHALL LEADS MET ROUT

8-Run Inning Buries Giants

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets sent 14 men to the plate, collected nine hits and tied a club record of eight runs in the fifth inning Saturday then went on to rout the San Francisco Giants, 14-5, and give Jerry Koosman his first victory of the season.

With the score tied 4-4 in the fifth, Art Shamsky led off with a double, moved to third on Ken Boswell's single and scored on Donn Clendenon's single. Boswell raced home when catcher Dick Dietz was charged with a passed ball.

After Duffy Dyer struck out, Koosman singled to score Clendenon, and Tommie Agee then extended his hitting streak to 20 games with a run-scoring single. Bud Harrelson's infield single loaded the bases and Dave Marshall drilled a single to left to knock in two more runs. Shamsky then delivered his second hit of the inning, a two-run single.

After Clendenon singled for his second hit of the inning, Dyer tied a major league record by striking out for the second time in the frame to end the rally. Joe Foy also tied a major league record by drawing two walks in the big fifth.

Marshall, a former Giant, had three hits for the Mets and drove in four runs while Shamsky slammed three hits, including his first homer of the year, and drove in three runs.

barrage of extra base hits. Alex Johnson, who along with Jarvis Tatum collected four hits for the night, opened with a triple.

Yankee starter Mike Kekich disposed of the next two hitters but Tatum slapped a double to right before Egan and Messersmith sent the crowd into various stages of delerium with their back-to-back blasts into the leftfield seats.

The homer was Egan's first of the year and for Messersmith, it was the first of his career.

Five consecutive hits drove Kekich from the mound in the fourth inning. Jim Spencer, Tatum, Egan and Messersmith all singled for two runs before Sandy Alomar doubled in a pair. Johnson's double off reliever Joe Verbanic gave the Angels their fifth run of the inning.

Alomar gathered three hits in five trips and drove in three runs, matching his total for the first 26 games of the season.

Only Roger Repoz failed to gather a hit and his roommate, Bill Voss, hung an appropriate sign on his locker after the one-sided game.

"Nice going everybody," it read, "Except Roger."

Repoz just winked because this was not a time for sadness.

Despite a few bad side effects, Dick Walsh, the general manager, was beaming alongside Autry.

"This is fun," Walsh said. "There is nothing like a large crowd and a winning team."

ANGEL ANGLES: Members of the Angels have rejected the latest offer by major league owners . . . The team voted in secret session prior to Friday night's game but player representative Jim Fregosi's only comment on the balloting was a succinct: "The majority of us rejected the offer" . . . Improved pension benefits, an increase in daily meal money, spring training pay and added television revenue are among the key items of the player-owner dispute . . . Final results of the balloting involving all major league teams are expected to be made public later this week . . . Reliefer Ken Tatum has been selected "Fireman of 1969" by the California State Forestry Dept. and will receive an award prior to Monday night's game with Boston.

Rudy May, who lost a heartbreaking 1-0 decision to the Yanks earlier in New York, will face the Bronx Bombers again today in a 1 p.m. meeting . . . His opposition will be Stan Bahnsen, the winner of that 1-0 duel.

Orioles' Streak at Five

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Brooks Robinson's two-run homer capped a four-run rally in the sixth inning Saturday and sparked the Baltimore Orioles to their fifth consecutive triumph, a 4-3 decision over the Chicago White Sox.

Robinson's 200th career homer and his fourth of the season scored Boog Powell from third base after an error and two singles off southpaw Tommy John produced the first two runs of the inning.

Tom Phoebus, 3-1, took the victory, while John, 3-6, absorbed the defeat.

Clemente's 4 Hits Helps Beat Astros

HOUSTON (UPI) — Roberto Clemente, returning to the lineup after missing four games with a foot injury, hammered out four successive hits to drive in one and run and score another Saturday while leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

Bob Moose, who had an 0-3 record and an 11.57 earned run average entering the game, scattered 10 hits and struck out eight in a route-going performance for the Pirates. He has a 5-0 career record against Houston.

Ratliff (?) Homer Propels Twins Past Indians, 5-3

FIRST SINCE 1963

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Paul Ratliff, who hit his last major league homer in 1963, belted a two-run homer in the ninth inning Saturday to give the Minnesota Twins a 5-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Ratliff's homer came off reliever Dennis Higgins after Leo Cardenas had led off the inning by drawing a walk. Ron Perranoski benefitted from the blast to record his first victory of the season.

The Indians had tied the score at 3-3 with two runs in the eighth off Luis Tiant, an ex-teammate. Tiant, seeking his sixth triumph, gave up a leadoff homer to Roy Foster in the eighth and was replaced by Perranoski. Jack Heidemann greeted Perranoski with a triple and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ted Uhlaender to tie the score.

Banks' 499th HR Sparks Cub Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Hickman's three-run homer and Ernie Banks' 499th of his career spurred the Chicago Cubs to an 8-1 victory over Cincinnati Saturday in a battle between the National League's division leaders.

Hickman's fifth homer highlighted a four-run second inning and Banks' second of the season came with two out in the seventh after Johnny Callison had singled for his third hit of the game.

Bill Hands, boosting his record to 5-1, contained the hard-hitting Reds but lost his shutout in the second when Lee May slammed his seventh homer of the year for a short-lived 1-0 lead.

The Cubs showed little respect for starter Gary Nolan, who came in with a 5-0 record. They rapped him for four runs in the second and only a fine relief stint by Ray Washburn with the bases loaded and one out kept the Cubs in check.

With two out in the seventh, Callison singled and Banks, seeking to become the ninth man in history to hit 500 home runs, brought the crowd of 33,168 roaring to its feet when he slugged a Don Gullett pitch over the left field catwalk.

It was Cincinnati's second consecutive defeat

RICH ROBERTS

The Sweetest Lemon of the Lot

"I brought up a winner. I don't know if it's my fault, but I always say I grew the biggest lemon there ever was." — Mom Lemon.

Once upon a time there were no radios and no televisions and people used to stand outside telegraph offices to "watch" the World Series on a scoreboard.

But if you were really a fan you went to someplace with (wow!) an electric scoreboard that followed the action, pitch by pitch, in flashing lights. Man, that was it.

"She started me out pretty young," says Bob Lemon. "She took me to the 1920 World Series when they had an electric scoreboard. I was in a basket. She got excited and I got the colic. I guess I was about six weeks old."

"He was only two weeks old," Mom Lemon confesses, "and we went to the San Bernardino Opera House. That year Cleveland played Brooklyn. There was a little writeup in the San Bernardino Sun that 'Mr. and Mrs. Lemon took Robert to see the World Series and give him a little instruction, hoping that someday he will play in the major leagues.'

"And 28 years after that he was in the World Series . . . and Cleveland won that year, too!

"We went back, his dad and I. It was really a dream come true. I think it went seven games and Bob won two of the bunch. Feller pitched the first game and lost 1-0 and Bob pitched the second game and got credit for the win after Bearden came in to relieve him. But I'm getting so old — I'm 77 now — I don't recall the details."

MOTHERS DAY, 1970, finds spunky Mom Lemon at Memorial West fighting back from two outs in the bottom of the ninth.

"I've got one foot out the back door now," she says. "I had a ruptured appendix and was right near death's door but I've had a lot of good things happen to me. I've got a lot to be thankful for.

"Bob came to see me about six times in the three days he was here and that was quite a lift. I tell him when he goes away, 'Now, Bob, you don't have to write me a long letter, but whenever you see a free postcard in the hotel just address it to Mom.' "

Bob, the Indians' former seven-time 20-game winner, is now the Kansas City Royals' pitching coach on the teatime side of a baseball career that got its start in pre-war Long Beach.

"All summer we played from daylight till dark," Bob recalls. "Anytime Mom and Pop weren't working they were at the ballgame. Both of 'em worked hard and we didn't have a lot, but anytime we needed a glove or a ball it seemed like we could always get it."

The way Bob remembers it, "Sports came first. If I didn't do my chores but I was playing ball I got away with it."

That isn't the way Mom tells it.

"He had a method," she says. "We told him he'd have to mow the lawn and take care of the yard 'cause we both worked. He'd say, 'Can I go play baseball?' and we'd say, 'Not till your work is done.'

"Well, Saturday mornings he'd sit on the front porch till the kids came by. They'd say, 'C'mon, let's go play ball,' and he'd say, 'Can't go till I get my lawn done.' So then they would help him — Vernie Stephens, Jack Graham, Bob Sturgeon and the whole bunch."

ALL OF THAT GANG played pro ball. Bob recalls that "they all hung around the house and everybody called her 'mom.' "

Later on it was the gas station that Earl (Pop) Lemon ran at Fourth and Termino and where, according to Mom, "Bob used to work in the off-season and get his hands dirty once in awhile."

Bob's first organized sport was a softball league based at Recreation Park, now Blair Field.

"There was always somebody on me, but I was too young to look up there and see who it was," Bob says. "It took me a couple of years to find out. I was telling my mother about it one day and she said, 'Well, that's your father!' "

Mom likes to remember that after Bob signed with Cleveland "the first game he got credit for winning was on his father's birthday."

During Bob's big years with the Indians he bought a ranch near Barstow where his parents lived until Pop died 10 years ago. It had been a happy, hardworking life since a pretty girl named Ruth West arrived from Oklahoma and met a man with the funny name of Lemon.

"That was in 1913 — 57 years ago," says Mom, marvelling at the years.

NOW ONE OF BOB'S three sons — her grandson, Jim — plays for Long Beach City College. Since a stroke in 1960, she has had to walk with a cane and doesn't "get around to see the kids like I used to. But I always watch the newspapers. I keep up on it. I know they're tied with Bakersfield."

Her family despaired long ago at trying to keep her quiet.

"I was always known as a pie baker," she says proudly. "We used to run the College Club near Wilson High School before the earthquake and I worked around different places. Out in the desert I made pies 5½ years for a coffee shop . . . 75 and a hundred a day. That's all I've known is work. That's why I've lived so long."

Longtime friends are always embarrassed when they realize they don't know Mom's real first name is Ruth.

"I'd rather be known that way," she says. "I'm just Mom Lemon to everybody."

McGee's Second 9.1 Too Windy

Combined News Services

Willie McGee, an Alcorn A&M freshman from Hattiesburg, Miss., ran the 100-yard dash in 9.1 seconds for the second time in two nights Saturday at the Southwestern Athletic Conference track meet in Houston.

McGee's first 9.1 during Friday's semifinals was under the 4.74-mile per hour wind allowance but his world record tying time in the finals was aided by a 5.13-mph breeze. He had never run faster than 9.4 prior to this weekend.

Lincoln High of Dallas smashed its own state and national high school 440 relay records at the Texas prep championships.

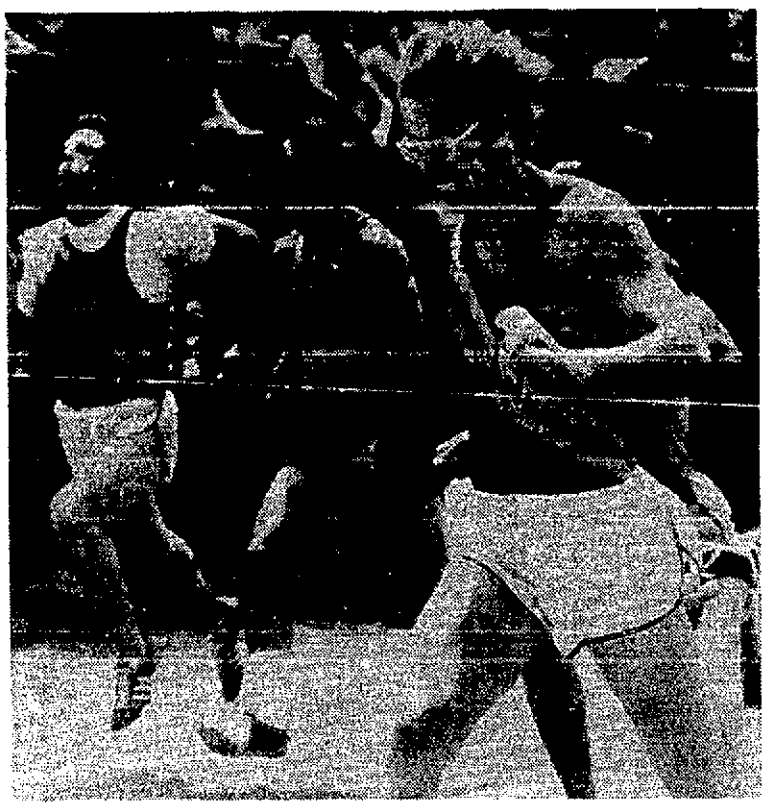

A quartet of John Delley, Joe Pouncy, Rufus Shaw and Gene Pouncy ran 40.2, eclipsing its year-old standard of 40.7.

Oregon won the Pacific-8 Northern Division relays in Seattle by a 21½-point margin over Washington State.

South African John Van Reenen of Washington State won the shotput at 62-2¼.

Oregon State's Bob Reader and John Radetich smashed relays and stadium marks in the triple jump (50-8) and high jump (7-0) respectively

Defending champion Columbia won the 36th Heptagonal outdoor track championship at Yale but it was incidental after the Army and Navy teams were pulled out of the meet because the service academies did not subscribe to a statement issued by captains of the eight competing Ivy League schools.

NOT DAY FOR LONGSHOTS

Bruin Barmeyer, Rabbits Rule Moore Track Finals

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Form chart followers had a hard time trying to find any longshot payoffs at Saturday's Moore League track finals at El Rancho High in Pico Rivera.

Wilson sprinter Bob Barmeyer and a multitude of Poly performers stole the show for the second year in a row as athletes had to finish at least third in an event to prolong their season.

Barmeyer, a 4-0 student who plans to be a pre-med major at Stanford this time next year, won the 100 and 220, then provided the day's one mild surprise by anchoring a Bruin upset victory over Poly in the 440 relay.

Even the relay "upset" wasn't a complete surprise since Poly sprinter Orlando Ellison (9.8-22.3) came up lame in practice Wednesday and had to be scratched.

With no Ellison, the result was a poor handoff between Poly's first two men and it was all Bill Cecil, Ed Laing, Paul Nees and Barmeyer needed to run a smooth season best of 42.6.

Barmeyer then won the 100 in 9.8 and 220 at 22.3 with Poly's James Coates runnerup both times.

"I've done a lot of work on my start with a harness and heavy shoes," said the bespectacled Bruin. "The 220 time should have been better since I ran 21.9 in the prelims and had hoped to do at least that again."

An anticipated fast two-mile time failed to materialize. Poly's Jim Chaffin was content to let Larry Greer of Lakewood set the pace, then make his move on the last lap.

"I had a pre-race strategy plan in hopes of getting a fast time, but then decided to just stay behind him when the pace slowed down," said Chaffin, who won in 9:22.3.

Greer faded to 9:27.1, far off previous bests of 9:06.4 and 9:12.8 earlier.

Poly's Andrew Gaither powered to a 14.2 win in the 120 high hurdles, then saw teammate Leroy Blount take the lows in 19.2 as Gaither finished second in the same time.

The day's best race was the half-mile where Jim Hailey of Wilson finished fourth in a non-qualifying 1:58.4.

Winner was Lakewood's Glenn Harmatz who had to catch Pierre Robinson of Poly twice, then came on strong on the outside in the final 50 yards to win in 1:55.7. Robinson was second at 1:56.2 with Millikan's Eric Nielson posting a season best 1:57.5 for third.

Iron man honors belonged to Poly's Fred Batiste, who placed in three events and ran a 49.5 leadoff leg for the Jackrabbits in the mile relay.

The Jackrabbits qualified 19 places for the quarter-finals next Saturday at Wilson which equalled Morningside's totals in the Sky League finals Friday night.

"They'll still be tough to beat," according to Poly coach Ron Allice. "We lost only one man today I thought would place, but I was happy with the way a lot of them performed."

CROSSBAR CRISIS

Poly High School's Ron St. Clair won pole vault (13-0) in Moore League finals at El Rancho on Saturday but he did have his ups and downs. One of his downs came when he was still trying to go up. Although he failed to reach crossbar on this attempt, his 13-0 leap did get him into CIF quarter-finals. —Staff Photo

Laker Shakeup Near; Schaus Seeks Hazzard

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Will the Lakers try to swing a deal for Walt Hazzard or Jimmy Walker?

Have they exposed starting guard Dick Garrett or Happy Hairston, the mid-year sensation, in the expansion draft which is Monday?

SCHAUS

Speculation was rife Saturday as the team returned from its inglorious defeat by New York Friday night, and the talk was more about trading and expansion than their drubbing by the Knicks.

Eight of the 12 Lakers are unsure who their employer will be Monday night. Only Jerry West, Wilt Chamberlain, Elgin Baylor and Keith Erickson definitely are not vulnerable to expansion.

General manager Fred Schaus refused to say he is talking trade, but he didn't hesitate in stating that the Lakers need a penetrating guard who can bring the ball upcourt.

Hazzard's name immediately popped into the conversation and Schaus said: "He would be ideal."

Since Atlanta has signed Pete Maravich, there is little doubt that Hazzard is available. But when the Lakers put Walt in the expansion hopper three years ago he and Jack Kent Cooke did not part on friendly terms.

Schaus also revealed that coach Joe Mullaney wants to acquire Walker, who he coached to stardom at Providence. Walker, now under Bill van Breda Kolff's wing at Detroit, is a superb ballhandler and shooter but does not penetrate.

In trade for either guard, Hairston would be welcome at Atlanta and Mel Counts at both places.

All trading hinges on who the Lakers put in the expansion hopper, and this is a well-guarded secret.

Garrett says he wouldn't be surprised — or care too much — if he is not one of the seven players protected.

"All I'm interested in is making money," he says. "With the Lakers I'm in the shadow of Jerry West. Maybe I would be better off somewhere else."

Hairston does not expect to be in the draft, but he thinks he could be traded. Rick Roberson also does not think the Lakers have exposed him. The draft list was turned in last week.

Roberson's value is stronger than one might think. With Chamberlain injury-prone and nearing the end of his career, the Lakers are reluctant to give up a center who has proven he can play.

"I don't mind being second-string to Wilt," says the 6-9, 240-pounder, "but he never wants to come out of the game. I can't get any playing time unless I go to forward, and we have to run if I'm going to be any good there."

Counts is on the fence. The Lakers lost confidence in him during the New York series and Mel knows this. He wants to stay in Los Angeles but says he would be content in Portland. He is a native Oregonian.

Johnny Egan says he would retire rather than report to another expansion team. John Tresvant doesn't care and Mike Lynn says he doesn't think he would sign with Buffalo or Cleveland.

SHORT SHOTS: West was so despondent over Friday's loss he did not fly home with the team. He told one New York writer that his future is up in the air, but he has said this each of the last three seasons. "Jerry is a highly emotional person," say Schaus. "I think he'll keep playing and that he has at least three more good years."

Jackson Shoots Stars into Finals

Combined News Services

DENVER — Merv Jackson's jump shot with 16 seconds left to play Saturday gave the Stars a 109-107 victory over Denver and the Western Division title in the American Basketball Assn.

The Stars won the best-of-seven series, four games to one, and will meet the Indiana Pacers for the ABA championship.

The battle before a national television audience climaxed a climb from the ABA Western Division cellar for both teams.

The Stars, without a superstar, used a balanced scoring attack to overcome a 37-point performance by Denver's Spencer Haywood, the rookie chosen the ABA's most valuable player.

The Stars had seven players in double figures, led by George Stone with 22 and Jackson with 20. Craig Raymond, Mack Calvin, Tom Washington and Bob Warren each added 14.

The Rockets led after one quarter, 32-34, but, after trailing by as many as 11 points, the Stars roared back for a 56-52 halftime advantage. Denver took an 84-81 lead into the final period.

The Stars broke and 86-all tie and led until Haywood stuffed to give the Rockets a 107-105 edge with 1:57 to play.

Stars coach Bill Sharman called a time out and gave the nod to Jackson who hit a 10-foot jumper to tie the game at 107-all with 1:10 left. The Stars got the ball right back and Sharman called another time to set up the final strategy.

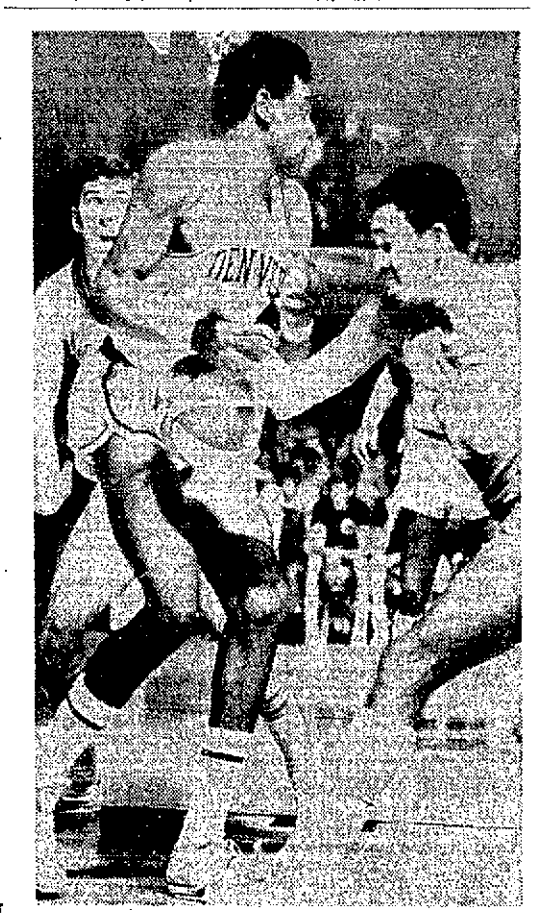

With 16 seconds showing on the clock Jackson pumped the winning shot in from 14 feet out. Denver's Jeff Congdon had one final try to tie the game, but missed.

Haywood got little help from his teammates. Congdon was second high for Denver with 18. Byron Beck had 17 and Larry Jones 15.

Sick Fage Sparks LBCC to State Title

By DAVE DANIEL

Long Beach City College, led by Dale Fage, easily swept to its second consecutive state junior college gymnastics championship in the Viking gym.

With Fage winning two events, placing second in the all-around to be selected as the outstanding performer of the meet, the Vikings totaled 131 points to outdistance runnerup Pasadena for the second year in a row.

"To be truthful," Fage said, "I was sick throughout the entire meet. I've had the flu all week."

The Vikings finished first in five of the six events contested with Fage taking gold medals on the horizontal bar and long horse.

John Draghi, who brought the Vikings to the top of junior college gymnastics in three years, and who ran a flawless meet, said, "we did much better than I thought we would, as the Vikes outdistanced Pasadena by nearly 50 points."

The Vikings started out in grand style, by nearly sweeping the free exercise, led by freshman Steve Gerlach's first-place finish. Fage was a close second and Bob Brumm finished fourth behind Armando Garcia of Pasadena.

Garcia, who has competed internationally for the Mexican Nationals team, was the top all-around performer with 48.90 points. Fage chalked up 46.575 points.

The Vikings had only one entrant on the side horse, considered bymnastic's toughest event, but freshman Mark Loebel won his specialty to add 10 valuable points to LBCC's total.

Fage and Bob Lander finished one-two in the long horse competition to lead the Viking pull away and Bob Mahorney and Steve Diggle finished two-three on the rings behind Metropolitan Conference champion Tom Morgan of Valley to continue the Viking onslaught.

Fage and Chuck Stettler wrapped up the title with a first and fifth finish on the high bar and Stettler led another strong Viking charge on the parallel bars.

Stettler finished on the P-bars and fifth in the all-around as Bob Russ and Mahorney finished third and fourth in the final event.

Fage, a former paratrooper with more than 300 jumps to his credit, said, "free ex is probably my best event, but the high bar is the most fun."

Harbor with 20 men competing, finished with 42½ points to lead a Southern California sweep. Diablo Valley finished fourth with 22 points to lead the NorCal entrants as Metro schools finished fifth (Valley) and eighth and ninth (Pierce and Santa Monica).

FREE EXERCISE — Gerlach (LBCC) 9.1, Fage (LBCC) 9.05, Garcia (Pasadena) 8.9, Brumm (LBCC) 8.8, tie between Abelon (Pasadena) and Quinn (ELA) 8.7.

LONGHORSE — Fage (LBCC) 8.925, Lander (LBCC) 8.875, McGillvery (Pierce) 8.8, Abelon (Pasadena) 8.65, Sterman (Pasadena) 8.6, tie between Glass (Harbor) and Duran (Harbor) 8.45.
RINGS — Morgan (LA Valley) 9.0, Mahorney (LBCC) 8.7, Diggle (LBCC) 8.65, Burr (LA Valley) 8.6, tie between Page (Harbor) and Michihara (Harbor) 8.35.
PARALLEL BARS — Stettler (LBCC) 8.8, Garcia (Pasadena) 8.7, Russ (LBCC) 8.5, Mahorney (LBCC) 8.45, Niles (Diablo Valley) 8.4, Wooley (Sacramento) 8.35.
HORIZONTAL bar — Fage (LBCC) 8.75, Abelon (Pasadena) 8.65, Glass (Harbor) 8.55, Quinn (ELA) 8.50, Stettler (LBCC) 8.45, Saita (Pasadena) 8.4.
All-around — Garcia (Pasadena) 48.90, Fage (LBCC) 46.575, Saita (Pasadena) 46.3, Soans (Fullerton) 44.275, Stettler (LBCC) 44.245, Wooley (Sacramento) 43.725.
Outstanding performer — Dale Fage, Long Beach City College.
Team scores: Long Beach City College 131, Pasadena 88½, Harbor 42½, Diablo Valley 22, L.A. Valley 20, Fullerton 16½, East LA 16½, Pierce 15, Santa Monica 11½, Sacramento 10, Golden West 5, Mt. San Antonio 2.

Fox, Van Dillen Win Semifinals in SoCal Tennis

Top-seeded Allen Fox of Santa Monica, hobbled by a pulled leg muscle, gamely held on Saturday to defeat Marcello Lara and advance to the finals of the Southern California sectional tennis championships.

Fox rallied to edge his Mexico City foe, 1-6, 7-5, 7-5, after Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo moved into a berth of today's finals at the Los Angeles Tennis Club, winning by default over No. 2 seed Haroon Rahim.

Rahim lost the first set 3-6, the second 10-8 and was tied 3-3 in the decider before dizziness forced him out of action.

In the women's semifinal singles, Janet Newberry of La Jolla easily turned back Nancy Ornstein of Beverly Hills, 6-3, 6-3, and Kristien Kemmer of Los Angeles, rebounded to beat Barbara Weigandt, Los Angeles, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Ralston, Okker Gain Net Finals

ATLANTA (UPI) — Dennis Ralston and Dutchman Tom Okker charged into the finals of the Atlanta Tennis Classic Saturday by knocking out favored Australians Ken Rosewall and John Newcombe.

Ralston, once known for his terrible temper but holding it in check this time, thrashed top-seeded Rosewall, 9-7, 6-3, in a spirited semifinal duel. Okker dropped the first set, then roared back to oust third seeded Newcombe, 2-6, 10-8, 6-1.

Stanford Captures 'Big Row' Over Cal

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — Stanford's crew won its fifth consecutive "Big Row" over the University of California Saturday in Redwood City harbor, defeating the Bears by three lengths.

The choppy and windy conditions kept the times down, with Stanford rowing the 2,000-meter course in 6:49 to California's 7:01.

Successful SCATS Capture Gym Titles

The Long Beach SCATS captured both divisions of the Southern California Girls' Gymnastics Championships held Saturday at Lakewood High School.

12-14 — Class 1: Debbie Sike (Kips); Class 2: Rayma Bymum (Kips); Class 3: Louise Lokers (Mid-Valley YMCA).
11-Under — Class 1: Cindy Eastwood (Kips); Class 2: Amy Ruhlman (Mid-valley YMCA); Class 3: Joanne Fields (Mid-Valley YMCA).
Team Scores — 12-14: Scats 128.75; Kips 123.43. 11-under: Scats 125.25; Mid-valley YMCA 120.45.

Shoe Doubles in Split Argo

Jockey Bill Shoemaker, who has a happy habit of winning the Argonaut Stakes, did it twice at Hollywood Park Saturday in the two divisions of the run for 3-year-olds.

Shoemaker, who has been in a riding slump, scored with Western Welcome, a $10 winner, in the first section and followed it on the favorite, Colorado King Jr., in the second division.

Eighteen colts were split evenly into the two sections of the one and one-sixteenth mile run over the lakeside turf course. Each division carried a purse of $44,175 and the winning owners earned $26,125 apiece.

A crowd of 45,000 looked on as Shoemaker registered his fifth and sixth triumph in the Argonaut.

Shoemaker brought lightly weighted Western Welcome in to win the first division by 2¼ lengths over Whittingham, who beat out the betting favorite, Faithful Leader, in a photo finish for second place. Western Welcome had never won or placed in a stakes race.

The winner, with an impost of 112 pounds, 14 less than Whittingham, was held off the pace but closed rapidly from the middle of the track to win easily. The time was 1:42 2-5.

Western Welcome, owned by Bill Foy, paid $10, $6 and $4. Whittingham, a $59.60 winner of a stakes a month ago, was piloted by Don Pierce and paid $8 and $4.60 to place. Faithful Leader, who carried 113 including Wayne Harris, paid $3 to show.

Smuggling George and Faithful Leader ran a pace-setting duel while Shoemaker kept his colt in waiting for the final rush.

Colorado King Jr., whose South African sire, Colorado King, made history at Hollywood Park several years ago, got in by a neck over Hanalei Bay, with Price Nashville threequarters of a length back. The time was 1:42 1-5.

PREAKNESS PRELIM

Hagley Nabs 95th Withers; Fort Marcy in Record Win

Associated Press

Hagley led most of the way for a two-length victory over Delaware Chief Saturday in the 95th running of the $59,700 Withers Stakes at Aqueduct.

The victory may have earned Hagley, ridden by Ron Turcotte and trained by J. Woods Garth, a shot at the $150,000-added Preakness next Saturday at Pimlico.

Hagley, part of an entry with Buzkashi, ran the mile in 1:34⅘ for a payoff of $5.20, $2.60, and $2.20.

Fort Marcy won for the first time this year and in the process set a Pimlico turf record in the $50,000-added Dixie Handicap.

The 6-year-old gelding flashed across the finish line in 2:27⅘ for the 1½ mile under jockey Jorge Velasquez, 124, snapping the former mark of 2:29 set by Flag in November, 1965.

Fort Marcy paid $4.60, $3.20 and $2.60 in winning by 3½ lengths. War Censor paid $8 and $5.40. Jungle Cove was third at $5.

Gallant Moment galloped to a five-length victory in the Louisville Handicap at Churchill Downs.

Cabildo, coupled with Doctor Brocato, finished third, a half length back of Traffic Mark.

Jockey Dave Kassen sent Gallant Moment to the front at the break and the 6-year-old gelding never was headed.

Everett's Last charged to a four-length victory in the $21,850 Crete Handicap for 3-year-olds at Washington Park.

Fast Fellow again lived up to his name and took his second stakes race at Golden Gate Fields by winning the $20,000-added Golden Gate juvenile dinner stakes.

DUST COMMANDER ARRIVES AT PIMLICO

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Robert E. Lehmann's Kentucky Derby winner Dust Commander arrived at Pimlico race course Saturday following a van trip from Churchill Downs.

Trainer Don Combs will handle supervision of the son of Bold Commander-Dust Storm and ready the colt for next Saturday's 95th running of the $150,000-added Preakness Stakes at 1 3-16 miles.

Dust Commander's Preakness status was in doubt for a day or two following his Derby victory when he developed a slight filling in his ankle. The colt now appears to have completely recovered.

Klecker Strikes Out 14, Truckers Trounce S.G.

Ed Klecker, ace pitcher for the V.B. Morgan Truckers, struck out 14 and extended his string of scoreless innings to 108 in a 4-0 win over the South Gate Raiders Saturday.

In the first game of a Mayfair Park doubleheader, Klecker stymied a fourth-inning rally by fanning three consecutive batters. In the next inning he was faced with men on first and third with none out but struck out two Raiders and induced a third to ground out.

Klecker and teammate Matt Bowcutt paced the Truckers at the plate. Klecker slammed a homer and a single while Bowcutt had two doubles.

Hawks, Flames Divide Twin Bill

SAN BERNARDINO — The Long Beach Nitehawks and San Bernardino Flames split a Western Softball Congress doubleheader at Guadalupe Park Saturday night, the Hawks winning the opener 13-4 with the Flames taking the nightcap, 6-4.

Home runs by Don Ballenger, Ralph Smith, Don Fraser and Don Darryl Kamm powered the Hawks' 16-hit attack in the first game.

Long Beach notched 10 hits but was held in check by Bob Todd in the second game. The Hawks are 2-2 in WSC action, San Bernardino 1-2.

BETTY'S ENVOY, reserved just behind the leader and saving ground early, moved up on the outside on the final turn to challenge for the lead, took command under strong urging midway in the drive and was all out to prevail. ENGLISH JACK, well placed early while racing between horses gained his best stride leaving the turn, rallied for the drive but could not set to the winner and held on to deadheat for the place. GO-ANNIE-GO saved ground while being outrun early, swung outside entering the stretch and finished strongly.

VENEKE, prominent from the start, raced wide around the turn, responded to strong urging in the final furlong and was up in time. DUMPTY ANN vied for the lead from between horses early, took command midway in the drive and just failed to last. DAD'S FANCY, outrun early, rallied after entering the stretch and finished with good speed.

Joe Louis: He Had Everything

It was quite a coincidence that the long-range scheduling of late, late movies on television would find "The Joe Louis Story" being shown less than a week after the Brown Bomber had been committed to a psychiatric hospital.

Louis' plight is sad but one can't feel sorry for him.

He was absolute tops in his profession, albeit a violent one. He spent millions of dollars, losing an estimated million to hustlers on the golf course alone. And he has done and seen things that the average man never enjoys in a lifetime.

Even after his income tax troubles, Joe never wanted for anything. He always had plenty of money. His second and third wives were two of the richest Negro women in the country — one being a manufacturer of cosmetics, the other a noted lawyer.

Like most other boxers, Joe was surrounded by parasites rather than true friends. The one man who had his best interests at heart was his first trainer, Jack (Chappy) Blackburn.

Although we had seen the picture mentioned above a couple of times, including the original special preview for the press, we found ourselves watching it again until the wee hours.

Not for the acting, because it wasn't very good, although Coley Wallace, a remarkable look-alike of the Brown Bomber, did a creditable job in the lead role. And certainly not for the storyline because, while they did follow his career fairly well up to a point, they threw in a lot of hokum.

We wanted to watch the actual films of Joe's top fights, which were used throughout the movie.

THEY SHOW HIM WHIPPING PRIMO CARNERO and Max Baer in his first major tests, then the debacle against Max Schmeling in their first bout when the German knocked him out in 12 rounds.

I recall that a replay of films in slow motion right after the fight showed that Schmeling hit Louis with 59 solid straight right hand punches to the jaw in addition to other punishing blows before stopping him. And the one thing Max had was a good right hand.

Joe told us later in a personal interview that he never remembered anything that happened in that fight after being floored for the first time in the fourth round.

Because of that humiliating setback, Joe admitted that Schmeling was the only man he ever hated in the ring . . . and from then on everything else was secondary to gaining revenge in a second meeting.

SETTING UP THAT MATCH took two years and a lot of legal manuevering.

After Jim Braddock upset a poorly conditioned Max Baer to complete his "Cinderella Man" rise to the heavyweight title in 1936, he signed to meet Schmeling in the first defense of his title.

But the fight crowd felt that Max would whip Braddock and then "freeze" the title in Germany and Hitler would use it as propaganda for his Aryan society while completing plans to launch World War II.

Thus Mike Jacobs went to work to get Braddock to bypass Schmeling and fight Louis instead.

Braddock was willing . . . for a price. That price was 10 per cent of all of Joe's future ring earnings if Louis beat him. Jim collected nearly three-quarters of a million dollars off that agreement alone and with smart investments became a multi-millionaire.

Braddock came out winging and knocked Louis down in the first round, but the Brown Bomber gradually wore him down and kayoed him in the eighth.

NOW, SCHMELING WAS NEXT. The date was June 22, 1938.

The old story along Cauliflower Alley was that it was arranged to have help ready in the event Joe needed it. If Schmeling appeared to be on the verge of whipping him again, a second in Max's corner was supposed to have been "bought off" and would put something in the German's eyes if he began to get the upper hand.

But Louis needed no outside help. Trained to a razor's edge and unleashing the hate that had built up inside him for two years, he floored Schmeling three times in the first round and won in just 2:04. Max was in the hospital for two months before returning to Germany.

THE FILM TRACES JOE'S CAREER and marital troubles through his first retirement in 1949 and his disastrous comeback in which he lost to Ezzard Charles and finally to Rocky Marciano.

Everybody in the fight game knew that Louis was way over the hill when he fought Marciano, whom Jim Norris' IBC was trying to build into a championship contender. It was common knowledge that Louis' right hand no longer was a threat; he was overweight, and far from peak physical condition.

Yet, Joe did all right for seven rounds with one hand — his potent, educated left — and was leading on points before finally tiring and being belted out in the eighth.

After watching the films of the various stages of Joe's career, I still don't think that Marciano, who had been rated the No. 1 heavyweight of all-time by computers, ever could have come close to beating Louis in his prime.

DODGERS --

eighth and two more in the ninth off Camilo Pascual on Byron Browne's second homer in as many days and a sacrifice fly by Ron Stone.

Instead of winning right there, it meant extra innings.

The Dodgers, who laced the Phillies' lefthanded relief ace, Joe Hoerner, on Friday night, finally got to the Phils' righthanded whiz, Dick Selma, in the 14th.

Selma, a workhorse who has appeared in 15 of the Phillies' 28 games, didn't allow a hit in four innings of relief. But in the 14th neither he nor Hoerner could hold the Dodgers, who scored five runs on four hits — Mota's second triple and singles by Jim Lefebvre, Jeff Torborg and Willie Davis.

DODGER OF DAY

MANNY MOTA had two triples, two singles, two RBI and stole home in Dodgers' 14-inning 9-4 victory over Philadelphia.

"We're playing good ball now," Mota said after his 4-for-7 day. "We're scoring more runs and getting lots of hits. I feel a lot better now that it's warming up a little."

Fred Norman, the lefthanded reliever, picked up the win, his first of the season, with five strong innings in which he allowed only three hits while striking out five. He has whiffed 20 batters in 17 innings.

Even Bill Grabarkewitz, who missed Friday's game and wasn't able to start Saturday because of a jammed finger, helped seal the win with a sacrifice fly in the 14th.

"I had time to get well," Grabby said of the 14-inning marathon.

DODGER DOINGS: Dan Sutton (3-4) starts for the Dodgers today, opposing the Phillies' Grant Jackson (1-3) in the final game of the series and the trip. The game will be televised on KTTV (11) at 10:35 a.m. . . . The Dodgers are 4-1 in extra innings.

Wills doesn't pop off often but his eviction Saturday was his second this season. He was bounced April 16 at Cincinnati during a 12-2 loss to the Reds . . . Philly pilot Frank Lucchesi tried to put one over on Walter Alston by sending Rick Joseph up as a pinch hitter in the ninth. The move was designed to force Alston to take Norman out of the game. But Alston wouldn't fall for it, knowing that Joseph has a badly sprained wrist and can't swing a bat. When Alston wouldn't bite, Lucchesi sent Stone up as the hitter and he drove in the tying run.

Vance pitched well, allowing four hits and a run over his 6 1-3 innings . . . Andy Kosco, who doubled in the first inning, suffered a pulled muscle and won't be able to play for two or three days.

HOGAN LIMPS IN WITH 217

Crampton Holds Lead Despite 7

HOUSTON (AP) — Bruce Crampton lengthened his lead despite a triple bogey seven Saturday while Ben Hogan remained in mild contention after three rounds of the $115,000 Houston Champions International Invitational golf tournament.

The poker-faced Crampton finished with a one-over-par 72 and a 54-hole score of 201. Crampton, an Australian now living in Dallas, went into the day's play with a one-shot lead but takes a margin of two strokes into today's final round on the 7,166-yard Champions Golf Club course.

Hard-hitting young Bert Greene moved into second place with a 3-under-par 68 as most of the field backed up on the long, testing course. Hogan, a 56-year-old master who last won in 1957 and is making his first competitive appearance in three years, limped in with a 71 for 217 — just six strokes off Greene's second-place 211.

"I played a little better," said Hogan, limping noticeably on an injured left knee, "but it wasn't much to get excited about."

As he has throughout the tournament, the little giant with the steel-gray eyes drew the majority of the gallery.

"I could almost feel them pulling for me," he said. "I think they want me to do well as much or more than I do."

Gibby Gilbert, a Florida club pro in his first year on the tour, had a 71 for 212 and third place. He joined Crampton and Greene as the only men under par.

"The pin placements were about as tough as I've seen," said Greene, still looking for his first tour triumph.

"It was much tougher than the first two days," said Gilbert. "The winds were swirling and gusty."

Crampton, a 34-year-old veteran of 14 years on the American tour, complained about the speed of play.

"You play in threesomes the first two days, and it's slower," he said. "Then you go to twosomes and it speeds up. The twosome in front of us had a starter's time ahead of them and they kind of moved up on that.

"Then we had a couple of bad holes and that puts you behind. You're conscious of being slow and you're almost running trying to catch up.

"It's on your mind. You think about it."

ONE ROUGH HOLE
Bruce Crampton spent much of seventh hole in rough. Tee shot went out of bounds, followed by second shot into rough. This shot also landed in "Marlboro Country" and Houston Champions International leader settled for triple bogey seven.

Whitworth Shoots 72 for Stroke Lead

DALLAS (UPI) — Tall Kathy Whitworth shot a one-over-par 72 Saturday to move into a one-stroke lead in the Dallas Civitan women's invitational golf tournament with a 36-hole total of 143.

Miss Whitworth, who won the Civitan in 1968 and has one victory already this season on the LPGA tour, shared the 18-hole lead with Sherry Wilder of Grand Rapids, Mich., with par 71. Miss Wilder faded to a 2-over-par 73, losing four shots to par on the final three holes that dropped her into a three-way tie for fourth at 145.

DAN REEVES

New York Football Writers to Honor Rams' President

Dan Reeves, president and owner of the Rams, will be honored for "long and meritorious service to pro football" by the New York chapter of the Pro Football Writers at their annual dinner May 25.

REEVES

Reeves pioneered pro football on the West Coast by moving his Cleveland Rams to Los Angeles in 1946. His team was the first post-war NFL team to play a Negro (Kenny Washington in 1946) and the first to employ a full-time scouting staff.

Reeves was enshrined in the NFL Hall of Fame in 1967.

NEW YORK Knick forward Dave DeBusschere is answering his phone this way these days:

"Home of the World Champions."

DeBusschere scored 18 points Friday night as the Knicks beat the Lakers, 113-99, to win the NBA championship.

HOCKEY'S Golden Jet, Bobby Hull, denied Saturday he is indifferent over where he plays next season — his 14th in the National Hockey League.

The Detroit Red Wing standout denied a statement made earlier in the week that "I'll play hockey as long as I can and it don't much matter where."

Hull told Chicago Today writer Dan Moulton, "I do care . . . and I do want to play with the Hawks."

SPECIALIZED training will begin July 13 at six sites for America's top candidates for the 1972 Olympic Games at Munich.

The sites are University of Colorado (walks and decathlon), Dartmouth College (throwing and weight events), University of Michigan (jumping events and poly vaults), University of Oregon (middle distance running and intermediate hurdles), San Diego State (sprint and high hurdles) and Washington State University (long distance running).

Athletes ranking within the top 12 or 13 for each event, exclusive of the first two or three who will represent the U.S. in international competition this summer, will be considered for selection to the program.

DEADEYE PITCHERS

Dodgers Are in Control

By BUD GOODE

Some pitchers are control artists, bulls-eye throwers hitting the corners of the plate like latter day Annie Oakleys. Others can't find the strike zone with radar.

Hitting the black is a rare art. The painted edges of the plate are tantalizing targets. The Rembrandts among the control pitchers, like Juan Marichal, walk a mere 5 per cent of the batters they face.

Poor pitching control teams currently walk 15 per cent of the batters they face. They simply can't hit the edges. What will it cost them? Their pennant chance.

The Sports Computer's Univac analysis of the season's first three weeks shows the following control percentages:

	Pitching Control %		Pitching Control %
Dodgers	6.7%	Minnesota	7.5%
Atlanta	7.9%	Oakland	8.5%
Chicago	8.6%	Chicago	8.6%
Philadelphia	9.2%	Detroit	9.5%
Houston	9.3%	New York	10.0%
New York	10.2%	Milwaukee	10.2%
Cincinnati	10.8%	Angels	10.2%
San Francisco	11.0%	Kansas City	11.2%
St. Louis	11.2%	Baltimore	11.3%
Pittsburgh	11.9%	Boston	11.9%
San Diego	12.0%	Washington	13.4%
Montreal	13.5%	Cleveland	15.1%

The best pitching control teams are the Dodgers, allowing 6.7 per cent of all batters to reach base on a walk or hit by pitch statistic, and the Minnesota Twins with a 7.5 per cent figure.

There is more than a 7 per cent difference between the strongest team, L.A., and the weakest, Montreal.

COMPUTER CORNER

Only 7 per cent you say? But what does this penny-poor control cost Montreal in runs allowed?

Their pitchers face 6,000 batters each year. Advancing 7 per cent extra batters to first base on a walk puts 42 additional runners in scoring position. Thirty per cent of runners come home.

So using the current control percentages, these weak-eyed pitchers, who can't hit their eye charts, are giving up an added 126 runs per year — and their chances at a pennant.

Will Bruins Begin Era on Top Today?

Channel 2, 11 a.m.

BOSTON (UPI) — The Yankees once dominated baseball, the Celtics ruled over basketball for a while, and Lew Alcindor had his collegiate "era." The Boston Bruins' turn presumably starts today.

The Bruins will be trying to wrap up their first Stanley Cup championship in 29 years this afternoon when they entertain the St. Louis Blues.

ORR

Since the Bruins go into the nationally televised meeting with a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series, not even the wildest bettor would go against them.

When the Bruins do win, general consensus in the National Hockey League is that they'll be on top to stay. They have just about everything going for them — which boils down to Bobby Orr, youth, and Bobby Orr.

Orr won the Norris trophy as the league's outstanding defenseman for the third time this season. He had earlier captured the scoring championship and was understandably chosen as the league's most valuable player.

"He should be good for 25 more Norris trophies," a bystander cracked as the shy and retiring 22-year-old all-star mumbled through a brief acceptance speech.

CUTIES PLAY LAKEWOOD AT PARK AVE.

The craziest act in softball, the California Cuties, will play the Lakewood Jets tonight at 7:30 at Park Ave. Field.

Preparing to depart on a tour which will take them through the United States and Canada, the Cuties will make this their final appearance in Southern California.

The Cuties were organized in 1945 by Trino Palacios, who dressed up his softball team to look like a group of girls on an outing.

ALLISON HITS INDY WALL, IS UNHARMED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Donnie Allison, a 30-year-old rookie driver from Hueytown, Ala., hit the wall on the southeast turn of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Saturday and emerged from his car unharmed.

Allison's machine apparently was caught by a wind gust and pushed into the outside retaining wall, hitting it with its left front end. It was the same Ford-powered car which three-time winner A.J. Foyt put on the pole last year as the fastest first-day qualifier.

The car was damaged but was expected to be repaired in time for next weekend's time trials.

TRANS-AM VICTOR

Parnelli Survives Brake Troubles

LIME ROCK, Conn. (UPI) — Veteran Parnelli Jones, the 1962 Indianapolis 500 winner, survived brake trouble and outlasted a field of top competitors Saturday to capture his second successive Sports Car Club of America Trans-American championship road race before a record 40,000 spectators.

Jones, in an orange Mustang, was the sole survivor of a nose-to-tail battle among three cars in the first hour of the 2½-hour race. Jones, of Torrance, who had never seen the 1.53-mile Lime Rock circuit before this week, led from wire to wire. He beat off last year's Trans-Am king, Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., in a Javelin and Ed Leslie, Monterey, in a Camaro.

Donohue blew his engine out on the course in the attempt to get past Jones' 302 Mustang which was prepared by NASCAR vet Bud Moore of Spartanburg, S.C.

Jones, who said he now prefers all kinds of road racing to the Indy car action which made him famous, revealed after the race that he was having brake trouble.

"If anybody had been around for the second half of the race, they could have finished me," he said.

Masters Gain Senior Division Volleyball Spot

HONOLULU (UPI) — Chart House of San Diego moved into the finals of the men's open division of the National Volleyball Championship defeating the U.S. Armed Forces team, 15-6, 15-10, and downing Outrigger Canoe Club of Honolulu, 15-8, 15-9 Friday.

Long Beach Masters gained the Winners bracket finals of the senior open men's division by beating Balboa Bay Club 15-9, 12-15, 15-9 Friday.

In the women's division winners' bracket match the Los Angeles Shamrocks moved into the finals by downing Windjammers No. 1, 12-9, 14-10.

Stewart Holds Pole for Monaco Prix

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Favorite Jackie Stewart in a March 701 Saturday held his pole position on the grid for today's Formula One Grand Prix after unofficially shattering the lap record Thursday

New Zealander Denny Hulme in a McLaren M 14A, and Jack Brabham in his self-designed Brabham BT33 will fill the grid's second row.

Easy Rebel 400 Victory for Pearson

DARLINGTON, S.C. (UPI) — David Pearson gunned his blue and gold Ford to an easy victory Saturday in the 14th annual Rebel 400, a race marred by a spectacular crash which injured star driver Richard Petty.

Pearson finished three laps ahead of his nearest competitor, fellow Spartanburg, S. C., driver Dick Brooks, who drove a Plymouth. Most of the big-name drivers were plagued throughout the afternoon by engine problems and wrecks.

Pearson's car ran beautifully during the 400 miles, in which he held the lead for a total of 117 of the 291 laps.

Pearson took the lead for good on the 259th lap when front-running Dodge driver Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., hit the wall and had to pit twice for repairs and tires. Pearson averaged 129.688 mph and claimed $16,575 in his first speedway win of the season.

Petty was running third when he crashed into the wall in the fourth turn on lap 171. His car flashed across the track and knocked a three-foot piece wall, then rolled over sev- of concrete out of the pit eral times and came to rest upside down on the track.

A hospital spokesman said later that Petty suffered a dislocated shoulder, a chipped bone in his shoulder and a cut on his head and would be hospitalized overnight.

Sportsman Award Given at Redding

REDDING — Outdoor writers of California and the Shasta-Cascade Wonderland Assn. Saturday night acclaimed Joseph Paul, veteran San Francisco sportsman, as the state's Sportsman of the Year.

The award, a beautiful plaque and a presentation model rod and reel, is made annually to the man the outdoor writers and editors believe to have done more for conservation and man's natural environment.

JOSEPH PAUL
Sportsman of the Year

Paul was the 16th Californian to receive the award. He was nominated by Ed Neal, of the San Francisco Examiner, and the decision of the voting writers was unanimous. The fact that Paul founded the "Committee of Two Million" last year to unify all sportsmen's groups of California to make the Eel, Klamath and Trinity Rivers out of bounds to land developers was just one of the reasons why the writers chose him for the award.

The Shasta-Cascade Wonderland Assn. is composed of leading citizens of seven Northern California counties, and the job of the executive director of the group, John Reginato, is to promote the beauty of the north as well as to preserve its environment.

While announcement of the award was made two weeks ago, the honor was not conferred on Paul until Saturday night when citizens from Redding and the surrounding area convened in St. Joseph's School Auditorium here, with the SCWA president, John Agee, Susanville, presiding.

PAUL'S FORMATION OF THE GROUP to preserve the three wild rivers of the northern part of the state is just one of the many things that he has done. Prior to that move, he probably was best known for his leadership and direction of the San Francisco Bay Chapter of Trout Unlimited, and as chairman of that group's Hat Creek Wild Trout Project Committee.

Under his direction a partnership was welded with the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, the California Wildlife Conservation Board, California Department of Fish and Game, Humboldt State College and Trout Unlimited to restore a 3½-mile stretch of Lower Hat Creek.

The restoration project aroused nationwide attention and many western anglers have expressed their desire to visit the project in Shasta County.

Paul became tremendously interested in angling and conservation following World War II when he joined the Golden Gate Angling and Casting Club. Paul, a native of Eureka, attended Humboldt State College and later transferred to the University of Missouri, where he got his degree in 1938. He is now a public relations consultant, with offices in San Francisco, but he never misses a chance to work with conservation officials in the enhancement of California fish life.

SOME OF THE FORMER HONOREES of the SCWA were here for the presentation ceremony. Robert J. Vile, president of the Ocean Fish Protective Assn. and a resident of Redondo Beach, was the honoree in 1969.

Starting with Henry Clineschmidt, Redding, as the first recipient, the others were the late Dr. Paul R. Needham, Berkeley; E. J. Strickland, Fresno; David D. Jessop Sr., La Mesa; Paul R. McKeehan, Santa Clara; the late Tom Gardiner, Oakland; Alex H. Kerr, Los Angeles; Clarence E. Wilson, Castro Valley; the late Don Hunter, San Francisco; Father John McGoldrick, Willows; Orien W. Todd Jr., San Diego; Ray Welch, Fort Bragg; Albert B. McKee, San Marino; Julius von Nostitz, San Francisco, and Vile.

The writers began assembling here Friday, coming by plane and by automobile from various parts of the state. They were guests of the SCWA at Kamloops Kamp, on Dekkas Creek, Friday afternoon for a short period of fishing and a steak barbecue, with SCWA officials doing the kitchen chores.

On Saturday, they scattered to various parts of this area on fishing trips, trying out the newest lake of all, Siskiyou, which is near Mt. Shasta. Others fished in Shasta, Whiskeytown, Trinity and Lewiston Lakes and the Sacramento River.

IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE that 96 family openings are available in Kamloops Kamp, situated on Dekkas Creek. The campground, formed in 1950 by Henry Clineschmidt, one of the SCWA winners and a former fish and game commissioner, when he organized California Kamloops, Inc., is not accessible by road and is reserved for members of the Kamploops organization.

Due to job transfers and deaths, 96 memberships have become available on a first-come, first-served basis. If you are interested, send $26 to California-Kamloops, Inc., P.O. Box 133, Redding 96001. If you don't make the list of 96, your money will be refunded. If you are accepted, you and your family may use the campground except for the weekend when the Kamloops organization meets.

When that meeting occurs, only Kamloops members (male) are welcome.

Although there is no access road to the campground, a member may take his family to Dekkas Rock Campground. If he telephones ahead, he and his family and their camping equipment will be transported by boat to Kamloops Kamp, which has its own flush toilets, camp tables, firewood stoves and its own hydro electric plant. A member pays only $5 per year after he is accepted.

Top Crews Primed for Ebright Cup

The most fiercely contested battle for the Ebright Cup since its dedication is expected next weekend when the annual Western Intercollegiate Rowing Championships open at Marine Stadium.

The trophy, honoring former University of California coach Ky Ebright, will go to the champion varsity eight-oared shells in the traditional season climax event. The results of races leading to the Western Sprints indicate that at least five teams, including defending champion Washington, will be in contention as the six finallists sweep toward the finish line Saturday.

UCLA's upset of the champion Huskies at Lake Washington 2 weeks ago — a victory rated as difficult and as rare as whipping the UCLA basketball team at Pauley Pavilion — insured that none of the Western universities would come to Long Beach undefeated.

Host Cal State Long Beach, UC Irvine of Orange County and Loyola are other top-rated entries among the 16 teams which have entered the varsity battle.

Indication of the relative strengths of the Southern California teams was expected to come Saturday when the 49ers, UCLA, Loyola, UC San Diego and the University of Southern California were to race at Marine Stadium. But Gov. Reagan's decision to close the state's colleges for a four-day moratorium forced cancellation of the regatta.

Tennis Pros Invade Las Vegas

By BOB MARTIN
Staff Writer

Aces and deuces will be more prevalent than ever in Las Vegas this week. The pros are coming to town.

Tennis pros, that is. Jackpots totaling $50,000 will lure the giants of the game to the gambling city for the second Howard Hughes Invitational Championships.

The meet will begin at noon Wednesday and continue daily through Sunday at the Frontier Hotel courts. Celebrities from show business and other fields will display their tennis skills Sunday. Other finals are scheduled Saturday.

Sixteen men stars, including world champion Rod Laver and defending champion Pancho Gonzales, will be shooting for top prize money of $17,500.

The women's field this year will consist of only two: Billie Jean Moffitt King of Long Beach and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex. They'll clash in a winner-take-all match Saturday.

Automatic Transmission Leaking?

Are there spots on your driveway and garage floor? These spots could be caused by your automatic transmission leaking. We can stop them and prevent serious damage. We offer the finest automatic transmission service at sensible prices. Includes labor, front seal, rear seal, gaskets, fluid and road test car. Written Guarantee.

FIBER GLASS BELT

up to DOUBLE the MILEAGE

With the belt placed directly under the tread to prevent squirm, you get a substantial increase in mileage...up to 100% over some conventional bias tires.

Unbeatable traction
Reduced conversion keeps the tread elements open on the road surface (unlike conventional bias tires) thereby providing excellent traction on both wet and dry pavement.

Easy handling
The strong belts hold the tread firmly against the road, providing easier cornering and better all-around handling on curves at turnpike speeds.

There's Something Unchanging About Classified Ads

She read Classified Ads when little Billy's mother was a baby ... just as her daughter reads Independent, Press-Telegram Classified Ads today. That's because now, as it was in the past, there's no better place to find good buys in things baby needs ... cribs, strollers, chests, play pens, high chairs, baby scales, toys, diaper service — and, even a baby sitter when Grandmother is busy.

Turn to today's Classified Ads and see how many items and services you find to make life happier and easier for you and your baby.

MOM:
We've been lucky, Mom. Three of us have gone and come back. Now there's just your oldest, the professional, to worry about. And you must trust that his rank, his skills, the altitude, or God (you always gave Him the credit) will bring him back. Maybe that's why you are silent, Mom. You may know I forget how to pray long ago. But I could, it would always be the same. Please don't let there be anything alive down there when he has to drop those bombs.
So, you say little or nothing. But Mom, I believe that if you say just one young man kick out his life against the logs & sandbags of a filthy bunker, or in the mud of Asia, you would change. And, Mom, Spiro would be answering to you, rather than speaking for you. He has spoken for you, and this not what you would have said. You have not been wrong, Mom—just silent.
Your Son

SALES
HOW MUCH ARE YOU WORTH?
$5,000-$10,000 $20,000
WE pay our men a drawing account up to $12,500 annually.
WE have an excellent commission structure which allows our men to average over $17,500 annually by their second year.
WE are the rapidly growing industrial chemical division of a major New York Stock Exchange corporation, offering all the advantages of a small company but none of the disadvantages. Our many faceted business involves the manufacture and sales of industrial chemicals to the institutional, commercial, and industrial markets.
WE offer protected territory, with no house accounts or territory realignments, and the repeat nature of our business allows our men to make today's business tomorrow's future.
WE offer an outstanding sales opportunity leading to sales management.
WE will teach you our business in the field, not in our office.
WE offer an excellent fringe benefit program including profit sharing and stock participation plans.
IF you are interested, let's talk! Please call

REX L HODGES REALTY

THANKS YOU... MR. & MRS. CALIFORNIA

Thanks for your trust in REX L HODGES in 1969. We were busy!

We sold more in Jan., Feb., March, April, 1970, than we did in Jan., Feb., March, April, 1969 . . . there's got to be a reason!

We've spent our evenings and Saturday mornings training and retraining and we're ready for 1970!

If you are thinking of buying in 1970, BUY!! You should have bought in 1969. ASK SOMEONE WHO DID.

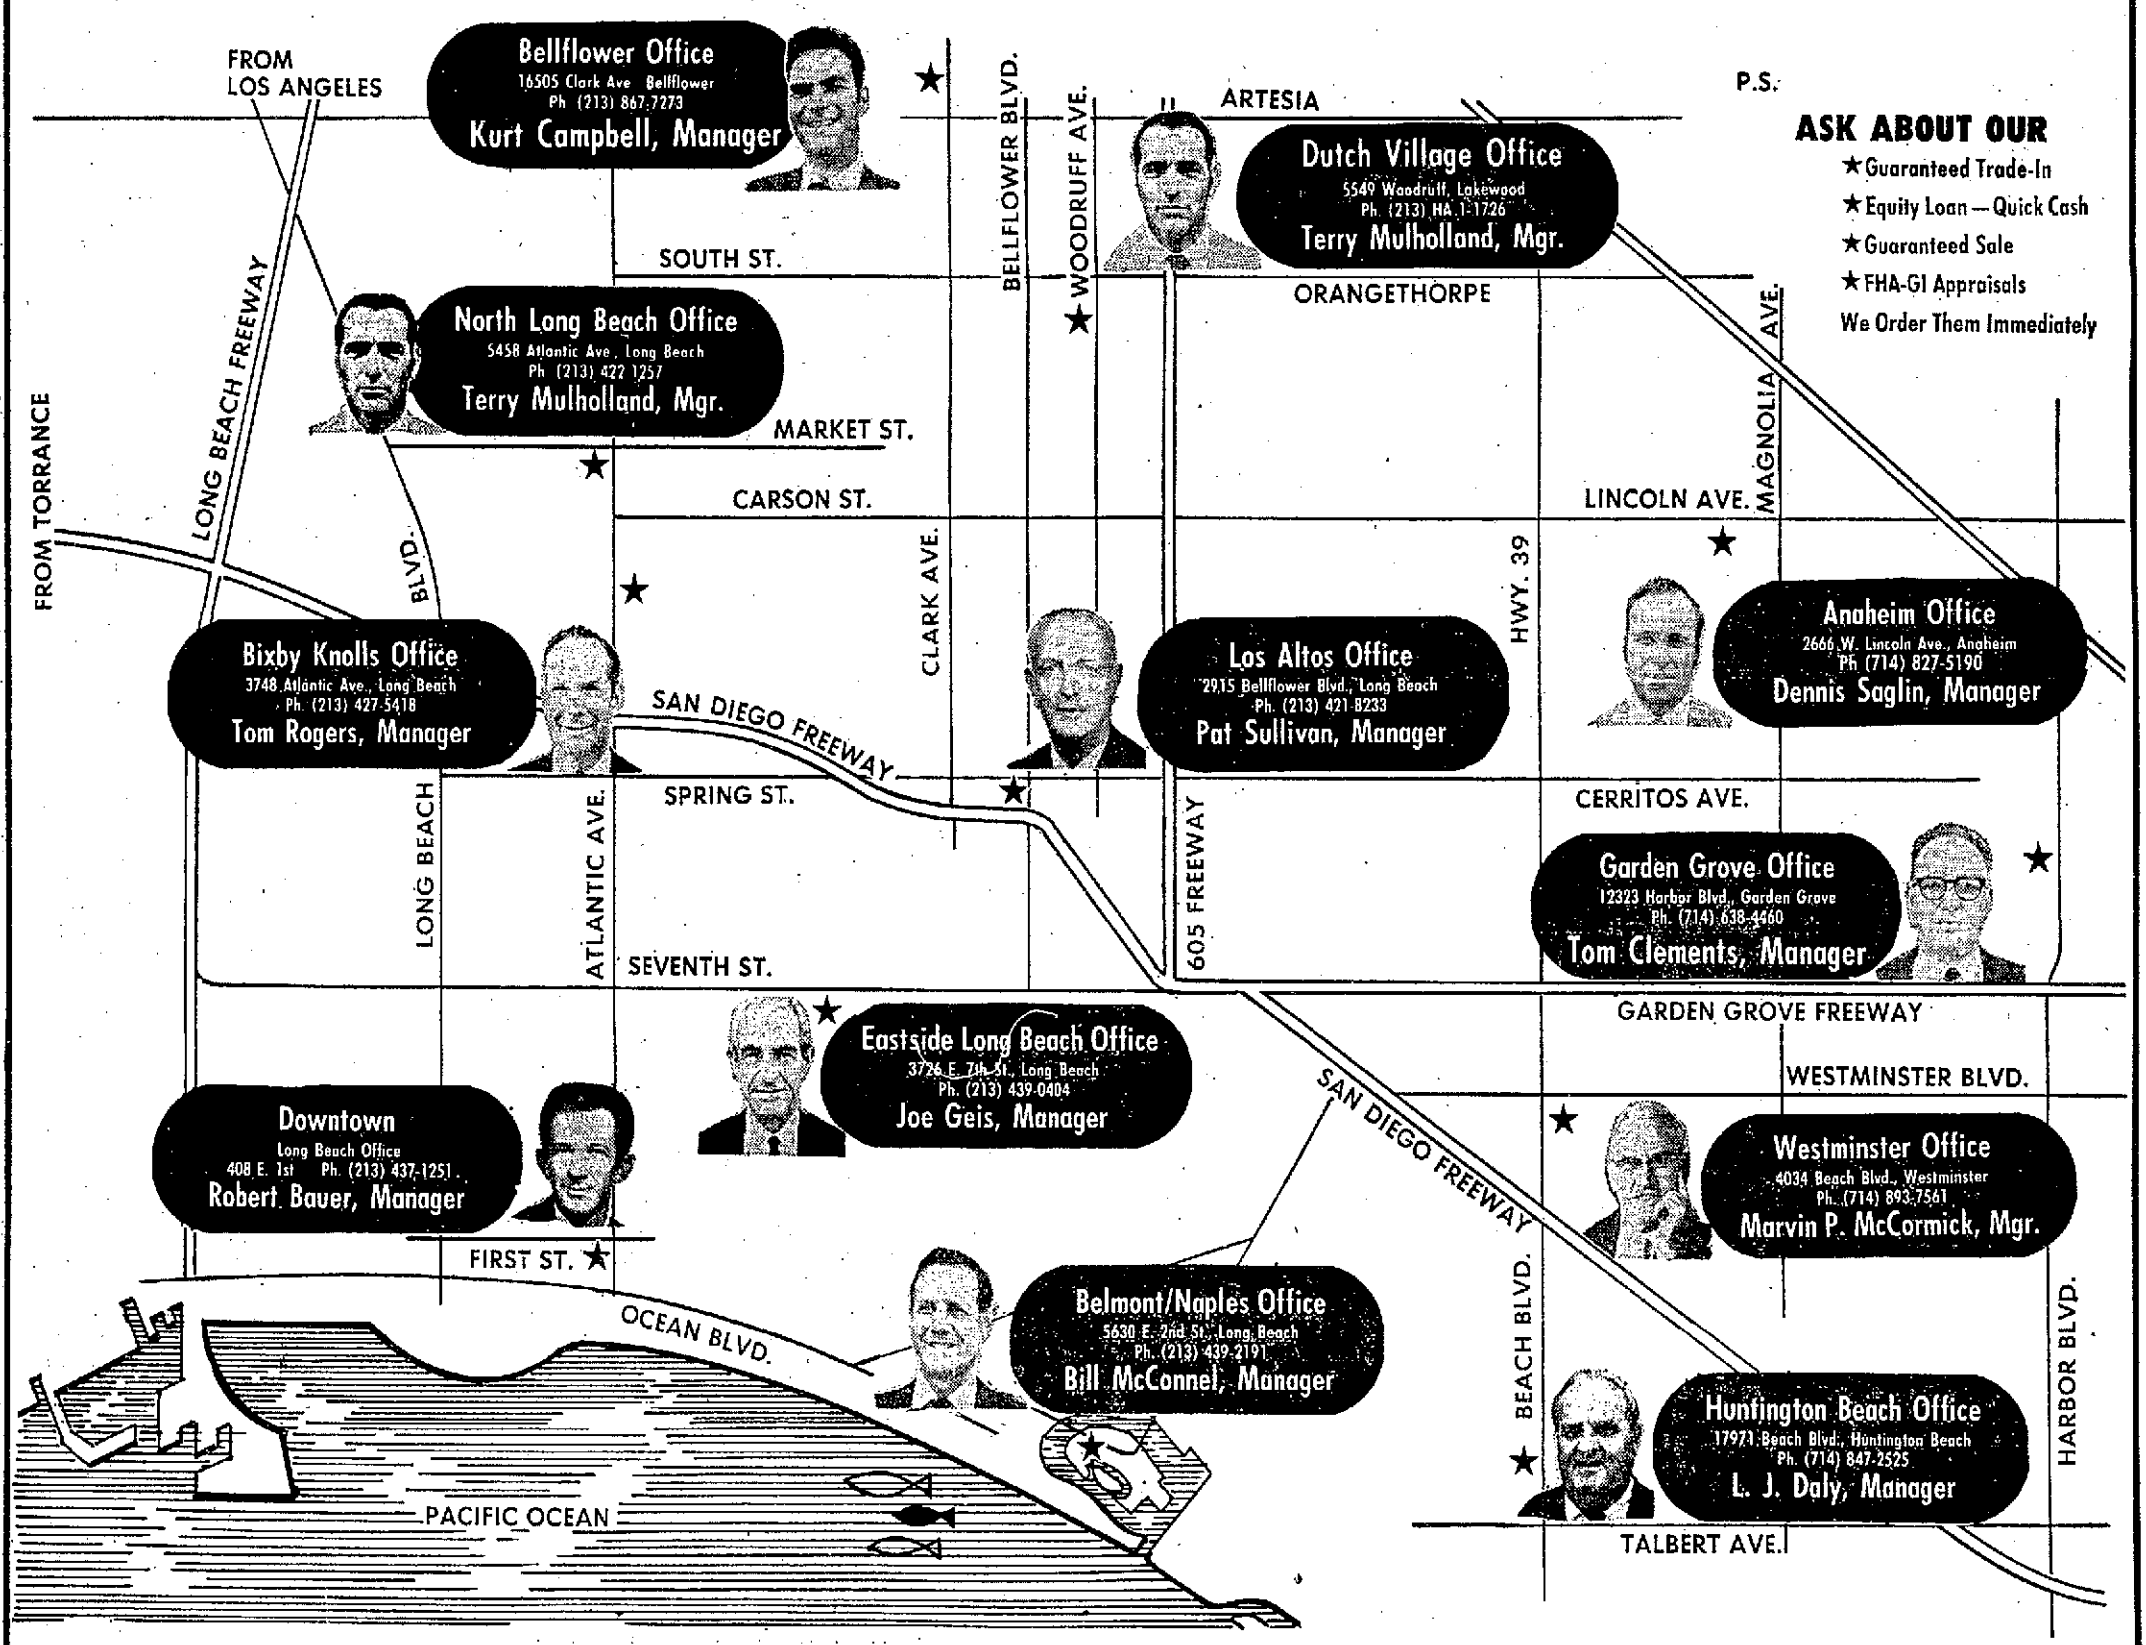

If you are in the market to BUY OR SELL, would you give REX L HODGES a chance?—A chance to prove WE WANT YOUR BUSINESS — NO PRESSURE — BUT JUST CONSIDERATION.

We're ready! Choose the office nearest to where you would like to buy or sell — Each of our salesmen has a special list of LOW INTEREST FHA OR GI HOMES FOR RESALE (TAKE OVER LOANS)

OR

We are prepared to show you homes that are ready to be sold on new FHA or GI Terms.

Give us a try—You'll be glad you did!

40 Years . . . Since 1929

REX L HODGES REALTY

BOB AUTREY SAYS:
JOIN THE RACY SET

Fiat 850 Spider $2262* When you drive the Fiat 850 Spider the going is the fun. You feel the road and enjoy it. Participate in the engineering of a really fine sports car ride. And you know why a Spider seats only two — it's the place to be a couple! Good to know that when you drive a Fiat it's all there: the new 58 hp overhead valve engine, dash tachometer, the fully adjustable bucket seats, the front wheel disc brakes, radial tires and the fully synchromeshed four-speed stick shift. Get the joy of driving—now! FIAT

Indestructible Robert Young

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

Robert Young is the most durable father figure on television, making a comeback this season when most actors his age are consigned to bit parts.

In the title role of "Marcus Welby M.D.," Young topped the ratings once this season and has been in or near the top ten for most of the year.

His achievement is especially notable because medical shows were supposed to have perished on the operating table.

YOUNG, a pragmatist, is grateful. His first show, "Father Knows Best" in which he played Jim Anderson, was a leading series for six years. It was in fifth place in the Nielsens when it was discontinued.

His "Window on Main Street" followed and lasted less than a season.

"It's been ten years since I played Jim Anderson," the actor said. "The time lapse has softened the focus on the character I used to play.

"The advantage of Welby is that the potential for an anthology exists, built around a central figure. The audience is able to identify with one character, yet new faces are regularly introduced.

"Viewers need a single individual or a family unit they can count on. It's possible for me to appear in a show in two or three small scenes and the viewers would be aware that I'm still there."

TRUTH OF the matter is that certain television stars are almost indestructible with viewers.

Red Skelton, Jackie Gleason, Lucille Ball, Ed Sullivan, Lawrence Welk are among those with whom the populace has enjoyed a long-standing romance.

Robert Young, quite simply, has returned to the fold.

As an insurance man or doctor, his voice, features and mannerisms exude strength of character, steadiness and courage components of the father image.

Women see him as husband, father, brother or wise uncle. Men would feel confident if he was the guy removing their gall bladders.

HAVING disappeared to acclaim indicates exposure for almost a decade, then resurfacing to acclaim indicates Young is loaded with magical charm.

The American Medical Association has cited the show with a certificate of merit. And Young has imbued Welby with the image of a physician's dedication to his calling.

The only unreal note on the show is an honest approach to the physician's unwillingness to make house calls and the size of their bills.

Clearly, Young's bedside manner is superior to that of Vince Edwards, Dick Chamberlain, Raymond Massey, Sam Jaffe and other sawbones who at one time took video's Hippocratic oath.

GEORGE ERES, Editor

ARTHUR GODFREY . . . Off Hawaii

The Ocean Frontier

In this jet age, when SCUBA-diving is an international sport and human beings can live a submarine life for extended periods of time, we have only begun to fathom the depths of the sea.

"Man, you know, has seen only the tiniest bit of what lies below — some 200 square miles of deep ocean bottom is all," notes Arthur Godfrey whose interest in the underwater world is evidence on "Arthur Godfrey's America — The Ocean Frontier," Hawaii-filmed informational special to be broadcast at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 2.

A SCUBA DIVER himself for more than 20 years, Godfrey adds his knowledge of the sea to the program, which was filmed at the Oceanic Institute and Sea Life Park at Makapuu Point on the Hawaiian island of Oahu. He narrates and participates in the production, which explores the sea from top (via a schooner rigged for scientific study) to bottom (through a modern aquatic apparatus known as a habitat, a mobile underwater base from which divers can operate.)

This intricate saturation diving system which is opening new avenues to undersea exploration is the most up-to-date version of an art said to have originated with Alexander the Great who supposedly went underwater in a glass bottle in 320 B.C.

AS FAR BACK as 1600, the Dutch had a submarine — made of leather.

"They tell me you used to have to row the thing with oars," says Godfrey. "At least we've got a boat to tow 'Habitat II.' "

The 17th century considered itself highly advanced in under-seafaring. Within 40 years after the sinking of the Swedish galleon "Vasa" in the Stockholm Harbor in 1628, salvagers used a primitive diving bell to recover 53 of the ship's 64 guns. Standing on a platform suspended beneath the bell, the diver breathed air compressed at the top of the chamber. Casks carried extra air.

Since then, man has created sophisticated devices capable of probing the unknown depth thousands of feet below the surface. And he has just begun.

"We've merely glimpsed what's down there," says Godfrey. "We have 146 million square miles to go."

PAN AND FAN MAIL

FRANK REYNOLDS was showing it for ABC Evening News watchers, while the other networks were only mentioning it. Frank was there, helmeted, under the camouflage nets, two miles into Cambodia, in the 10-square-mile Communist ammo supply complex. Frank said those weapons were laboriously stockpiled for just one reason: they were meant to be used in South Vietnam to kill us. So we're truly saving our men's lives by destroying these supplies: take it from non-hawk Frank Reynolds, who shares the program with liberal realist Howard K. Smith.

For every brief mention of this major victory (to save lives) on KNX Radio, the station carried an interminable detail about any expected protest, protest, protest. — Robert J. Swan, Long Beach.

I AM sick to death about all the opinions on what went wrong with "Bronson." All of these experts seem to have missed something. "Bronson's" failure had little to do with Michael Parks or with plot of the stories. What happened is: people just didn't care. This is ironic in that the most important thing to "Bronson" himself was the people. Ordinary people who lived and breathed and made mistakes. And all the time he cared.

How could people have been so insensitive to a program that was both mentally and visually beautiful?

Goodby, "Bronson" — thanks for the ride. As for the rest of you — hang in there. Maybe there's hope for you yet.

Elizabeth Connery,
Long Beach

WOULD YOU please give me, and also many of Larry Hooper's fans, some information on his condition.

Lawrence Welk never mentions his name and I know his many fans would like to send him "get well" cards.

Mrs. A.C.,
Long Beach

WHAT HAS become of Larry Hooper . . .?

Rhea M. Roy,
Norwalk

(In February, Welk announced on the air that Hooper a member of his crew was recovering from surgery. Since Hooper has taken a turn for the worse and his condition is described as critical by the Welk office).

REFERRING to the "To Rome With Love" show, Ch. 2, 7:30 p.m. Sundays, is the eldest daughter, Allison, Sue Ann Langdon?

And, what became of the new show, "McCloud," starring Dennis Weaver?

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Glaze,
Garden Grove

(Allison is played by Joyce Menges. Miss Langdon will co-star in CBS' "Arnie," next season. "McCloud," will start as a new series next season; the film shown this season was the pilot movie for TV which introduces the series).

MY SON and I are having a heated argument about Clayton Moore of TV's "Lone Ranger" fame. Is he or is he not dead? I read he died in Ohio a few years back, and my son says he saw him on "What's My Line" the other night as a surprise guest. Please answer — a wager rests on this.

Sylvia Flynn,

According to the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, he's an active member and all paid up in his union dues).

TV Business

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press

Businesses which never have advertised on television are being courted by the networks to fill the revenue loss that will result from the ban on cigarette advertising.

When cigaret advertising disappears Jan. 1 it will mean a $226-million loss to the industry and $150 million to the networks alone.

"If the cigaret dollars in our market are withdrawn with no replacement, then we will have a real problem," Frank M. Smith, CBS vice president of sales, said recently in a Los Angeles speech.

SMITH TOLD a meeting of CBS television network affiliate stations that "we must find and bring into television dollars to replace the tobacco loss — over and above the normal growth."

The impending loss of cigaret revenue has caused great concern among the networks — and in some cases a retrenchment. NBC is the only network to acknowledge publicly a corporate-wide holddown of expenses, but reports persist that the practice is general throughout the industry.

"Obviously," said an NBC spokesman, "the answer is to seek new business."

LAST FALL, ABC installed William Firman as vice president of new business and sent him on a 16-city tour to talk with businessmen.

"It's been a seller's market for such a long time and now we're in an era when we're going to have to talk to people who've never thought of television before," Firman said.

"Some may be light years away from buying, but we want to get to know them."

AMONG NEW businesses television is courting are the franchisers, textiles, financial institutions, heavy machinery, ethical drugs, farm equipment and associations, such as the American Gas Association. The franchisers include the motel and restaurant chains.

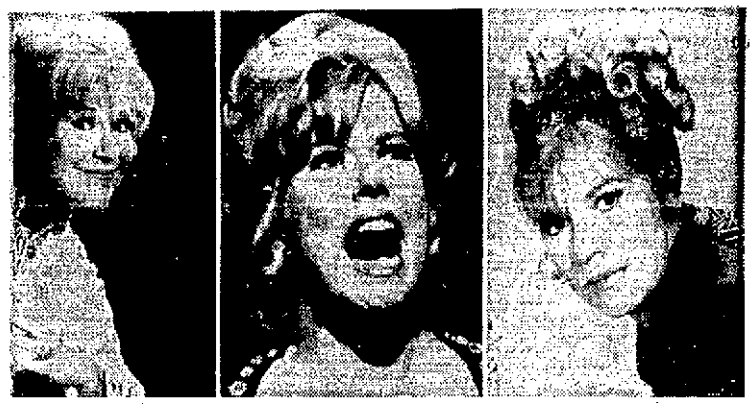

In some cases the cigarette makers have diversified and are buying commercials for their other products, but it will make up for only a fraction of the loss.

Smith said in his speech, "Our success or failure to bring into television new advertisers will be the single most important factor in determining our ability to weather this storm."

Sudden Stardom

Karen Morrow Hit Bullseye In Her First TV Try

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
Associated Press

KAREN MORROW . . . Actress, Singer, Dancer

Karen Morrow, in her initial television exposure, landed in a hit.

She's in "The Jim Nabors Show," about which there has never been a question of renewal.

Miss Morrow, a tall, blue-eyed honey blonde, recently returned to New York where, until TV beckoned, she battled, studied, and auditioned. It was, to her, like a triumphant homecoming — recognized on the street by fans, booked onto the late evening and afternoon talk shows.

SHE RECALLED the previous hard times in New York with unconcealed delight and noted: "Wonderful things have started to happen and sometimes I don't believe it . . . We all worked so hard and we wanted it so much."

Karen, actually, is an enthusiastic mass of gratitude — for the producer of the CBS show for choosing her to handle the feminine role in the sketches and take part in the musical numbers, and for Nabors' and costar Frank Sutton's help through occasional crises of nerves of adjusting uncomfortable material.

"It was mostly luck," she said. "I had been doing a lot of stock, all over the country. When they wanted a girl for the series, my name was just one on a list. But it turned out that one of the coproducers had seen me five years before playing 'Little Me' in summer stock in Chicago."

The result was that Karen was one of three girls sent from New York to Hollywood to audition — "we flew out a day apart." "Frank Sutton went to bat for me, we did a scene together and didn't like it, and then redid it. Then I sang for them."

KAREN'S principal task is to play shrill Blanche, who with her husband Harry Sutton runs a boarding house. Actually, the sketch is a device to parlay the old successful "Gomer Pyle" relationship between Sutton and Nabors.

Fortunately, Karen is not confined strictly to wearing ugly curlers and matronly bungalow aprons. She emerges, slim, coiffed and pretty, in some of the production numbers where she has a chance to use her excellent singing voice and to dance along with the chorus.

"Production for next season doesn't start until August," she said, "so I'm going to spend my vacation working in summer stock. I love acting and I love stock."

KAREN ALREADY discovered some of the practical effects of television identification. Her salary on the Nabors show has increased with her contract for a second season — and her price for summer stock roles has jumped, too.

"But I owe just about everything to all those people who gave me work in stock in the times when I needed it, and helped me to learn," she said. "So I'm giving those old friends a special price."

She is a product of a good, solid, Midwest upbringing: born in Des Moines, educated in parochial schools there and a graduate of Clark College in Dubuque. In spite of study and assorted parts, there is still more than a whisper of middle American in her speech pattern.

KAREN IS now discovering that her acting background and varied talents are almost more useful in television then in the theater. An actor who can sing or dance or both is much more likely to attract career-building bookings on the late evening talk shows.

Karen believes that, along with the discipline of acting experience acquired in assorted Broadway hits and misses and all those summer nights of stock, the most important help she has received came in a slim book called "Creative Image Therapy."

"The idea is to decide in advance what image you would like for yourself — and then go to work to duplicate the image. I've an image I'm working on — at Lincoln Center, with the orchestra playing, and then I come on and sing!"

KAREN'S MOTHER and father were singers, members of the Chicago Opera Company, but she decided to become a school teacher. Then she won a scholarship for dancing and moved to Hollywood to study. She supported herself — meagerly — by doing substitute teaching — "sixth grade, everything from spelling and arithmetic to religion, and thank heavens it was before the new math came in."

Her New York apartment is currently sublet, and she is not yet quite secure enough in her West Coast career to go the usual Hollywood house-buying route. This summer between engagements she will rest up at the home of Charles Nelson Reilly, TV actor who will be working abroad.

"It's all really so great," she said, "and I'm even able to save a little money. I think I was born frugal or maybe it was pressed upon me in the hard days. What I'd really like is to have some money, enough money so I'd never have to worry about it again."

PUPILS at an all-white Midwestern elementary school study discrimination. "The Eye of the Storm," 10:30 p.m., Monday, Ch. 7, reports on the program. Collar placed on the boy makes him a member of the "inferior" group.

SPECIAL

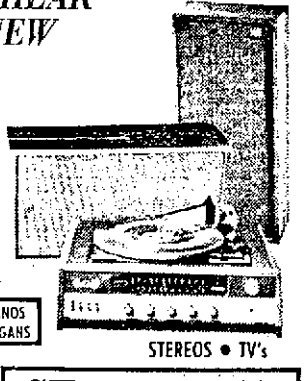

EYE OF THE STORM (7), 10:30 p.m. — A startling example of prejudice and race hatred, based on a contrived premise in a third-grade classroom in Riceville, Iowa, provides a frightening look at its effects on both inferior and superior social positions. The 8-year-old white, Christian children, who have had little contact with Negroes, Mexican-Americans or Jews, are divided according to the color of their eyes. The blue-eyes are told they are superior, with the brown-eyes losing their privileges and singled out for ridicule. Roles are then reversed, with frustration, a desire for revenge and an ugly delight at being on top showing in the faces and actions of the children.

SPORTS TODAY

BOXING, 7 p.m. (9), has Don Dunphy ringside at Madison Square Garden for a 10-round welterweight bout between Marcel Cerdan Jr. of Paris and Donato Paduano of Canada. First in monthly series of telecasts, with Tiger-Griffith bout June 3.

CRITICS' CORNER

CALIFORNIA IMPRESSIONS BY HENRI CARTIER-BRESSON, aired Tuesday, Ch. 2.

. . . It ranged from a family commune to a senior citizens' community, from surfers to Watts to a Pasadena Christmas luncheon, from an antiwar demonstration to an encounter group at Esalen Institute in Big Sur. It was beautifully shot and had its moments, but it tended to emphasize the exotic and occult, and therefore the obvious, and could hardly be considered as representative as it was artistic.

Rick Dubrow, UPI

BLACK MAYOR IN DIXIE, aired Monday, Ch. 7; "THE UNSEEN WORLD," aired May 3, Ch. 7.

ABC's series of minidocumentaries which have the umbrella title of "Now" came up with an illuminating, too-short visit with Charles Evers in Fayette, Miss.

Subtitled "Black Mayor in Dixie," the half hour concentrated on Evers in his mayoral work day. He walked about his town, talked to his people and talked of poverty, of the need for true integration, of his efforts to bring new industry to the town. His biggest problem is that while whites of his community have not interfered, they have not helped his efforts.

The series suffers from its scheduling — late in the evening following a two-hour feature film.

Jules Power, who produced "The Unseen World," has a knack of making complicated subjects easily understood and — more important — interesting.

The star of his program was microphotography. Demonstrated, among many other things, was the complicated construction and function of the eye. We saw the simplest organism and the most complex, accompanied by a clear, concise narration that carried viewers of all ages along.

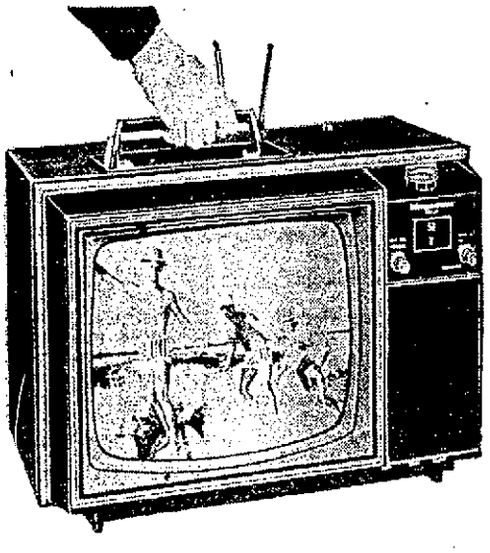

It was a fine hour of television that stacks up with an earlier Jules Power success, "How Life Begins."

SPECIAL

ARTHUR GODFREY's America: The Ocean Frontier (2) 7:30 p.m. — Godfrey is both narrator and executive producer for a look at the ocean — its vital but untapped resources, the scenery on and below its surface, and the behavioral characteristics of its creatures, especially its porpoises. Hour was filmed at the Oceanic Institute and Sea Life Park on Oahu, and in its undersea "habitat," a mobile plexiglass submarine station from which divers conduct aquatic exploration. Porpoises are seen piloting surfboards through the ocean, carrying pieces of equipment from one human aquanaut to another and demonstrating their unique sonar system.

Karen Valentine's Blossoming

A Clip From Sullivan's Show Started It

United Press International

Ed Sullivan's stone face might crumble into his grimace of a grin were he to learn that he is indirectly responsible for the blossoming career of Karen Valentine.

Karen is the gamin student teacher, Alice Johnson, on the successful new television series, "Room 222."

As a high school entrant in the Miss Teen-Age Pageant, Karen made two appearances on Ed Sullivan's show. She returned to her high school classes and became queen of her home town.

KAREN'S HOME town is Sebastopol, Calif., whose primary claim to fame is that Charles Schulz, famed cartoonist and creator of "Peanuts," makes his home in the northern California metropolis of 2,694, not counting the chickens.

Sebastopol is one of the poultry centers of the west, second perhaps to nearby Petaluma, population 14,035.

Far and away the prettiest chick to be developed in this western egg basket — her father was a poultryman — is young Miss Valentine.

AFTER graduating from high school she stormed Hollywood with absolutely no effect. For three years she studied drama, read for parts and remained unemployed.

But an executive at Universal named Bill Brademan saw some potential in the girl from chicken country and helped her find an agent.

KAREN VALENTINE

get hit by a car on your way out."

"Four days later they gave me a screen test, and

"They had given screen tests to five girls for 'Room 222' and weren't pleased with any of them," Karen said. "Then the producer, Gene Reynolds, called Mr. Brademan who suggested me for the role.

"I WAS the last girl they saw late one afternoon. When Mr. Reynolds asked me to read, I put my handbag on a chair, but missed and it fell to the floor. When I picked it up my glasses slipped off. Then when I stooped over to retrieve them I dropped the script."

"Perfect," cried Reynolds who was looking for a scatterbrain. "Just don't I got the part," Karen said triumphantly.

Firmly established in the ABC-TV series, Karen was cast in the networks movie of the week, "Gidget Grows Up."

NEXT SEASON Karen's role will be expanded. She graduates from student-teacher to full-time teacher and more shows will revolve around the slightly giddy character she plays.

An ebullient girl of 23 with a dazzling smile and quick wit, Karen looks forward to becoming a motion picture star and headlining a nightclub act in Las Vegas.

"I owe it all to Ed Sullivan," she said. "It was a clip from his show that got Mr. Brademan interested at Universal six years ago."

Take a bow, Sullivan.

TV ABROAD

Canada Limits U.S. Shows

By MAX HARRELSON
Associated Press

Unless present government plans are changed, Canadians are going to see fewer American TV shows and more made-in-Canada programs this fall.

Not everybody is happy about it, including the broadcast industry itself, but it's part of a trend to curb U.S. intrusion into Canadian culture.

The broadcast industry is waging an uphill battle to get the government's regulatory agency, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, to modify or delay the plans.

Murray Chercover, president of Canada's privately owned CTV network, contends that the proposed regulations would cost his company nearly $7 million in program costs and lost revenues. He says member stations would lose $6.9 to $8.7 million additionally in advertising revenue.

THE REGULATIONS call for an increase of prime-time Canadian content from 40 to 50 per cent next season and to 60 per cent the season after. U.S. prime-time shows now take up close to 60 per cent and would have to be halved, with 10 per cent coming from Britain and other countries.

The aim, says the commission, is to carry out the objective of the 1968 Broadcast Act which demands that TV and radio be operated so as "to safeguard, enrich and strengthen the cultural, political, social and economic fabric of Canada."

Raymond Crepault, president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, says the regulations would lead toward a "Canadian cultural ghetto."

The association, at a recent meeting, agreed to ask Parliament to review the Broadcast Act and the commission's powers. There is talk of a court test to see whether the commission has exceeded its authority.

CHERCOVER contends that the objectives of the law are being achieved without any further de-Americanization measures. In 1969, he says, stations in Toronto and Hamilton captured 67 per cent of the audience compared to 33 per cent for competing U.S. stations in Buffalo, N.Y.

Nothing short of jamming could keep Canadian viewers near the U.S. border from picking up with rooftop antennas American stations. In populous areas like Montreal and Toronto, all U.S. networks can be tuned in directly.

In other areas U.S. programs have been available through cable TV. The commission now has laid down a list of priorities for cable TV, limiting each company to use one U.S. commercial and one noncommercial station. These must black out any program that is going to appear on a Canadian station the following week or that has appeared on one the preceding week.

These new rules on cable TV do not become effective except at the time a cable company comes up for licensing. For some this means two years from now.

THE COMMISSION first banned the reception of cable TV via microwave, then reversed itself in the face of protests. The authorization of microwave TV cable has made possible a wider choice in areas such as northern Ontario, where service has been very limited.

One group favoring the increase in Canadian content includes TV writers, directors and performers who claim they are unable to make a living because the U.S. networks offer $100,000 shows to the Canadian market for $5,000. Many Canadians have migrated to join the U.S. television industry, making it difficult for the Canadian networks to find top talent.

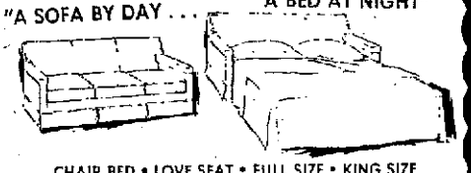

SOME VIEWERS appear to be more interested in following their favorite program than in trying to protect Canadian culture.

One woman from Pense, Sask., wrote the commission complaining that Canadian Broadcasting Corp. shows were filthy, "far worse than any American show I've seen."

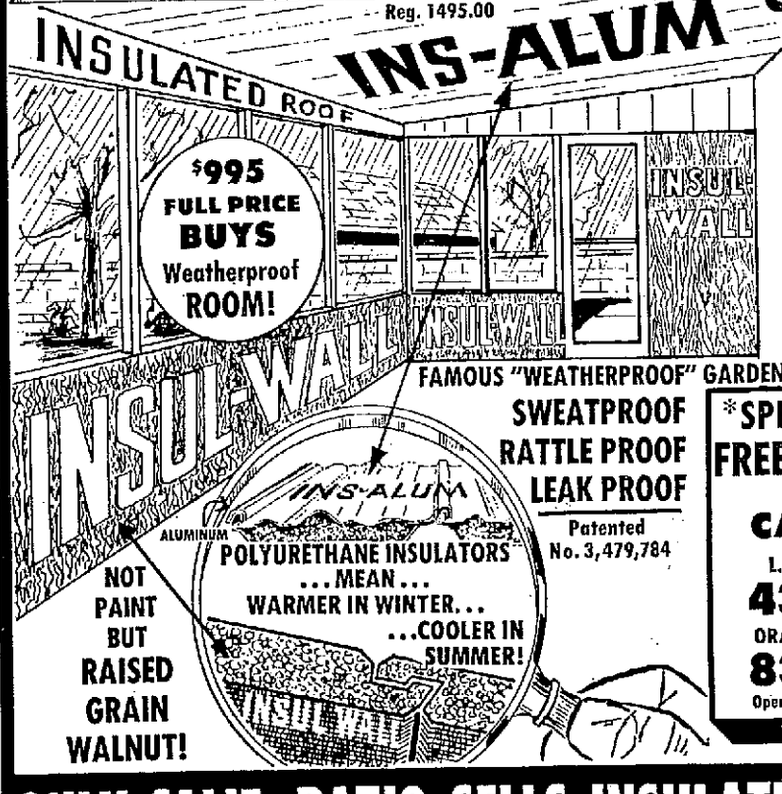

A writer from Sudbury, Ont., described CBC shows as "garbage" and said the network was "making heroes out of Black Panthers, U.S. Army deserters and pot-smoking juveniles."

Another unhappy viewer, in a letter to the Toronto Globe and Mail, said: "If the government wishes Canadians to watch Canadian TV then let the programs be of high enough caliber to merit free choosing of Canadian over American programing. At this rate we will soon be told what books and magazines we can read, and heaven help us if that is also curtailed to Canadian output."

TV NOTEBOOK

CBS has won the rating war for the 15th season by .2 of a Nielsen point over NBC — 20 to 19.8. ABC's rating for the regular season was 16.4.

For the two weeks ending April 19, the top-rated show in the national Nielsen was the Academy Awards on ABC, with 43.4 on the scale. Other shows in the top 10 for the period were: Bob Hope; Bing Crosby's "Cooling It," Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In," "Bonanza," Robert Goulet's special, Harlem Globtrotters, NBC's Saturday movie, National Geographic special and CBS' Thursday movie.

FORMER PRO football star Fred Williamson, most recently of the Kansas City Chiefs, will become a regular on NBC-TV's "Julia" next season, playing the main romantic interest of the series' headliner, Diahann Carroll.

Williamson, who also performed on the gridiron for the Oakland Raiders, Pittsburgh Steelers and San Francisco 49ers, will portray a law student who is a widower with a young daughter. As "Julia," Miss Carroll plays a working mother who is a widow with a son.

Williamson is expected to appear in about 15 episodes in the coming season.

VETERAN dancer-actor Fred Astaire, an occasional performer in the canceled series, "It Takes a Thief," will do his first western in the coming season — a one-shot "Movie of The Week" epic called "The Over-The-Hill Gang Rides Again." This 90-minute comedy-frontier opus is a sequel to the current season's "The Over-The-Hill Gang," which concerned some retired rangers who take on some bad guys, and finished No. 1 in the ratings.

Astaire will portray "The Boston Kid, a down-and-out former Texas Ranger who, with the help of his old buddies, becomes marshal of Waco, Tex." Walter Brennan, Edgar Buchanan and Ben Wills are scheduled to recreate their roles as retired rangers.

The National Broadcasting Company has accused the Federal Communications Commission of interfering with free journalism in ruling on March 27 that David Brinkley had violated "The Fairness Doctrine" in reporting on joint use of airports by commercial and private pilots.

In making known its submission of an appeal for a reversal of the ruling, NBC alleged that the FCC is imposing its own editorial judgment of what was truth in the news and that the regulatory agency was lacking in both legal authority and competence to do so.

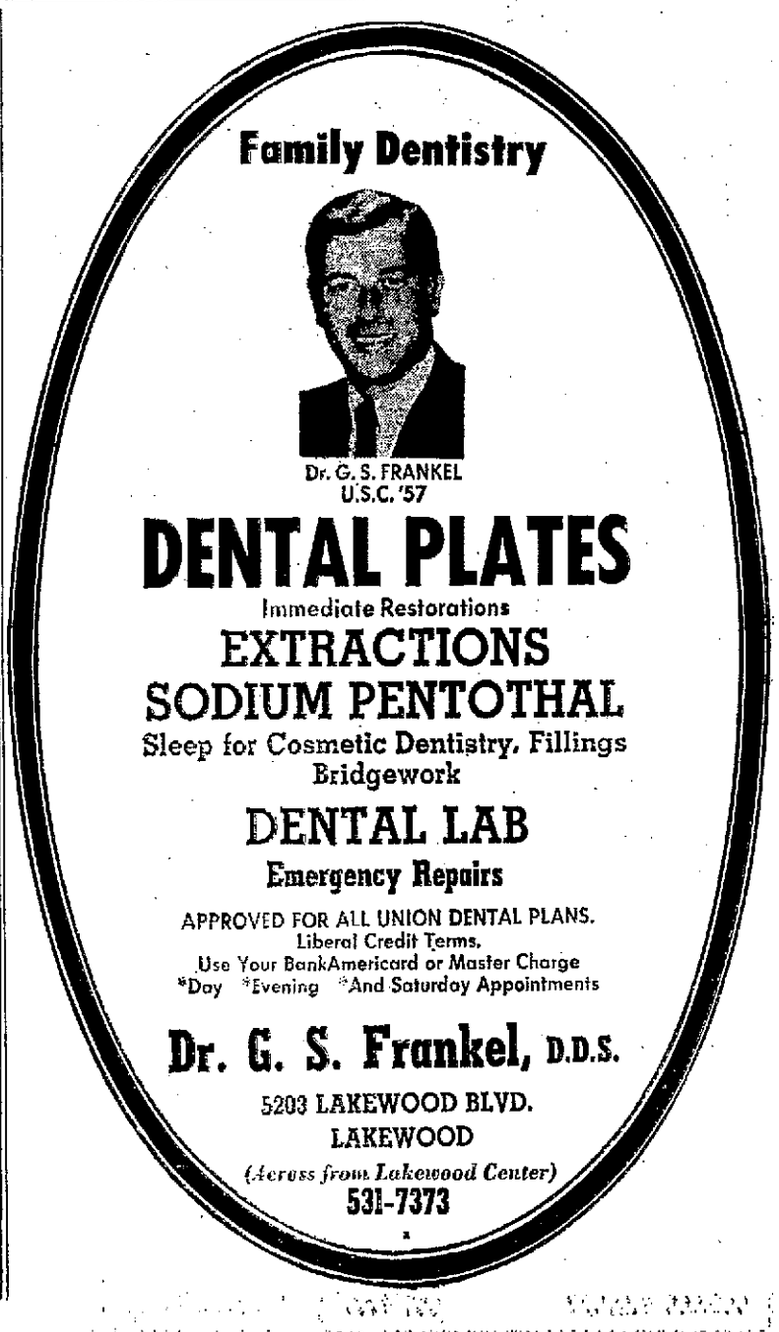

The FCC challenged a two-minute segment out of 25 to 30 minutes of an NBC study of airport traffic congestion on five nights last November, the broadcasting company said. The segment involved an interview with a private pilot with 100 hours of flying time and a commercial ppot with 14,000 hours in the air.

NBC accused the FCC of erroneously implying that Brinkley's report was intended to suggest that private pilots were incompetent. The report actually was designed merely to demonstrate that common use of airports by pilots of varying experience was a major problem, the networ ksaid.

No comment from the FCC was immediately available.

The Use of Television

'Right' Not Visually Persuasive on Video, Says BBC Man

By JACK GOULD
New York Times Service

Charles J. Curran, the new director-general of the British Broadcasting Corporation, is a man with a refreshing outlook on many familiar problems of television both here and abroad.

During a recent stay here, Curran, who succeeded Sir Hugh Greene as active head of Britain's noncommercial broadcasting organization, naturally eschewed dabbling in the affairs of the country in which he was a visitor, but his opinions clearly had an interesting domestic applicability.

In an interview, Curran advanced the view that conservative political leaders of many nations are at a disadvantage in the effective use of television. "The philosophy of the Right is in the guts and in the feelings of the individual and these can't be presented over the air in persuasive visual terms," he said. "Liberals have a way with words that simply get across. I have told the conservatives at home any number of times that if they had men of intelligence who also knew how to speak on TV, their troubles would be over. They need an Edmund Burke."

CURRAN'S JUDGMENT is interesting on this side of the Atlantic because it may go a long way toward explaining the frequent TV appearances here of William F. Buckley Jr., a man of the Right who certainly does know how to write and speak articulately and with wit and who attracts even those members of the younger generation who disagree strongly with his political position.

One could legitimately muse over whether the same theory might not explain the obvious acceptance by this country's "silent majority" of the assorted speeches of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. A phrase such as "effete snobs" catches the ear of those who dissent from his philosophy even as it expresses the "gut" emotions of those who agree with him.

Curran said that anyone who was professionally engaged in a branch of communications, be it the printed word or electronic journalism, necessarily had an obligation to be articulate and critical of the general drift of events in society.

IN THE CASE of the BBC, Curran said, the organization is regularly caught in a crossfire of conflicting opinions and that he envisions his role as a stimulus to such arguments. Otherwise, he observed, TV and radio could not produce a provocative dialogue resulting in constructive decisions for a country's future.

Curran said he was not thinking in terms of the familiar provisions of "equal time." "Bertrand Russell could kill an argument in one sentence," he noted. He agreed that the appearance of balance was an important factor in avoiding charges of cultural or informational bias and said he rode herd on his staff to make sure that an exceptionally intelligent individual was not paired off with a dull one, which would make a mockery of equal time.

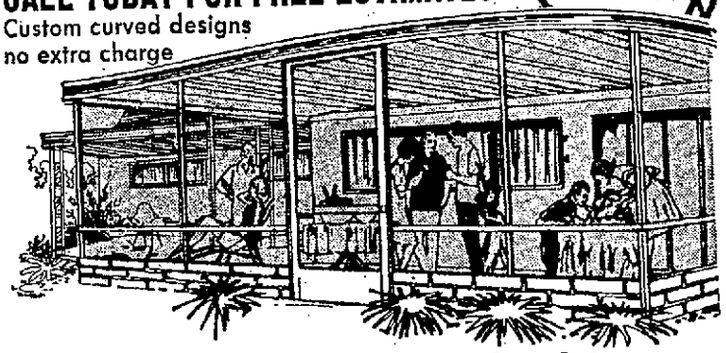

OF INTEREST to Americans concerned over the financing of public television was Curran's observation that the noncommercial BBC operation is now about $16 million in debt despite annual taxes on radio and TV sets in household us. It has been suggested that a tax on the sale of new receivers could provide an economic base for noncommercial TV and radio in this country.

Curran said the corporation hoped to work off the deficit through an extra tax of $12 a year on use of color TV receivers. "Color could be our salvation," he said. In Britain the majority of sets are rented rather than bought outright, the consumer's solution to the repair and maintenance problem.

THERE IS A commercial TV service in Britain but the BBC has never subscribed to the belief that it should relegate the equivalent of public broadcasting to some electronic ghetto. Rather, the corporation believes that cultural or specialized programing should be part of the over-all television mix on its two channels, and Curran said that giving the majority of viewers popular entertainment underwrote the cost of giving selective viewers what they wished.

To meet the economic fears of trade unions and the cultural fears of Britons who do not wish to be devoured by American culture, both the BBC and its commercial counterpart, The Independent Television Authority, impose a programing limit of 12½ per cent on imports from the United States. "We select only the best of what you have to offer and rarely more than two shows of the same kind," Curran said.

Which perhaps is why so many observers believe the BBC ranks with the finest in global TV.

SPORTS TODAY

ABA BASKETBALL Playoffs, 11 a.m. (2) has Don Criqui mikeside as the Stars face the Indiana Pacers.

BASEBALL, 11:15 a.m. (4), finds Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek at Busch Stadium where the Chicago Cubs visit the St. Louis Cardinals.

UCLA SPRING Football, 1:30 .m. (5), has Gary Beban joining Tom Harmon for player interviews, film clips and a specially-arranged scrimmage with the 1970 Bruin squad.

THE PREAKNESS, 2 p.m. (2), airs the 95th running of the $150,000-added classic, with Jack Whitaker, Heywood Hale Broun, Eddie Arcaro and Chic Anderson at Pimlico in Baltimore.

PAC-8 TRACK & FIELD Championship, 2 p.m. (11), covers today's action live from Westwood, with taped highlights of yesterday's competition in javelin, shotput, long jump and steeplechase. Also included are highlights of March's Pac-8 championships in swim and gymnastics.

ABC's WIDE WORLD of Sports, 5 p.m. (7), includes same-day coverage of the first day of the Indianapolis 500 time trials, with Jim McKay and Chris Economaki at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Other events will be announced:

GUEST STAR ANDY GRIFFITH (left) joins Claudine Longet and Andy Williams on "The Andy Williams Show" (a repeat) at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Ch. 4.

SPECIAL

RED, WHITE and Maddox (11), 7 p.m. — Jay Garner plays Georgia's Gov. Lester Maddox in a TV adaptation of Theatre Atlanta's political satire with music. Show is a scathing indictment of segregationists in general, the military establishment and an apathetic electorate.

INCREDIBLE Diving Machines (7), 7:30 p.m. — Reprise Jacques Cousteau documentary recounts the sometimes bizarre and amusing — but always determined — ways used by man in his drive for mastery of the depths, from earliest free dives to today's sophisticated submersibles, researching inner space.

MISS USA Beauty Pageant (2), 10 p.m. — Judging of 15 finalists from among the 51 contestants is hosted by June Lockhart and Bob Barker from Miami Beach Auditorium, with Rick Nelson as a special guest. Crowned by the reigning Miss USA, Wendy Dascomb of Virginia, winner will go on to represent the U.S. in July's Miss Universe Pageant, to vie for the crown worn by Gloria Diaz of the Philippines.

MAY 10, 1970

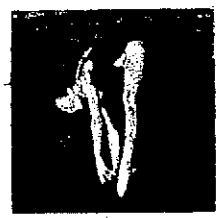

Mary Ellis Carlton
Director, Special Sections

Robert Martin, Editor · John Bruce, Art Director · Mark Clutter, Associate Editor

4 Somebody's Eating Our Islands
Coral-eating starfish are destroying reefs and threatening the destruction of Pacific islands by erosion. Jack O. Baldwin, I, P-T marine editor, tells the story.

6 Dancing With Willie
Sterling Bemis, Independent, Press-Telegram associate editor, recalls the patterns of prejudice which existed in a Lincoln, Neb., elementary school during World War I.

8 Captain King the Diving Queen
Micki King, an officer and lady of the U.S. Air Force, is also one of the world's great divers. Ev Hosking, Independent, Press-Telegram Sunday editor, tells the dramatic story of her aquatic career.

10 Easy Glider
Edwin Gettins, 77, began his career as a glider builder in 1909, a year in which the airplane was barely a reality. Herb Shannon, Independent, Press-Telegram aerospace editor, records Gettins' adventures with "motorless aircraft."

14 Wild and Wonderful California Flowers
A miracle happens in our mountains and deserts when there is just the right combination of weather and moisture. The camera of Roger Coar, Southland Sunday staff photographer, records the glorious color of brief-lived wildflowers.

Outside House Painting Eliminated

Throw Away Your Paint Brush

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (CT) — Painting is a thing of the past. Let us show you how Fiberglas TEX-COTE insulates waterproofs and beautifies and is factory guaranteed for a full 15 years.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the TEX-COTE story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs, and beautifies, and every fiberglas TEX-COTE job is factory guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

LONG BEACH CITY COLLEGE'S new addition is now being completed with TEX-COTE, the superior coating.

PROVEN OVER THE YEARS

TEX-COTE is one of the oldest coatings now marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commerical buildings since 1946.

SHOT FROM A GUN

TEX-COTE fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects. TEX-COTE may be applied over stucco, wood, brick, block or shingles.

Cal-Tex Improvements is a state licensed building contractor, bonded and insured. Most of the work now being done by Cal-Tex is in the GREATER LONG BEACH and WEST ORANGE COUNTY AREAS. For a free home demonstration without obligation — or for your free brochure regarding TEX-COTE call GA 3-8411. Also LONG BEACH headquarters for FLEXON.

Somebody's Eating Our Islands

Coral-devouring starfish is propelled over Pacific reef by thousands of tiny suction cups, called tube feet, extending downward from flexible tentacles.

By Jack O. Baldwin

The immense living coral reefs of the Pacific are losing a battle being waged by millions of revengeful and destructive thorny-backed starfish.

The attack on the Great Barrier Reef guarding the shores of Australia and the coral reef of Guam has scientists baffled.

The ugly, coral-eating creatures might well be cast in the leading role of "The Invaders." While the monster-like invaders appear as though they might have come from outer space, ocean scientists believe they came from out'a nowhere — by the hundreds of thousands!

The starfish attack the coral by extending their digestive sac over formarions and digesting the living coral. The remaining skeleton eventually breaks up, thus threatening destruction of an entire reef or atoll.

"The destruction of protective coral reefs by starfish will expose the low sandy islands of the Pacific to irresistible battering by waves and surf," says Dr. Richard Chesher. "If that happens you can expect to see the gradual disappearance of such islands as livable places."

The coral-eating starfish, called the Crown of Thorns, has greatly increased in number recently and is destroying coral reefs near Guam at a rate of a half mile per month. Of the 24 miles of coral around Guam's coastline, 90 per cent of it has been destroyed by the starfish invasion.

The Crown of Thorns has already destroyed more than 100 square miles of Australia's famed Great Barrier Reef.

The reefs off Saipan, Palau and Rota also are under attack.

If the starfish continue devouring coral atolls and barrier reefs at their present rate, the islands they protect from wind and wave erosion will be left exposed to the ravages of the sea.

The ecological balance of many forms of marine life which breed and live among the coral reefs would be thrown out of balance.

Recently two oceanographers with the U.S. Naval Oceanographic Office — Bernard J. Zahuranec, a biologist, and Willard Vary, a photographic technician — returned from making dives off Guam to observe and photograph the impact of the Crown of Thorns attack on the offshore coral reefs.

The Crown of Thorns, identified biologically as Acanthaster planci, has a disposition to match its ugly appearance. It is the only starfish known to be poisonous to man.

The weird creatures have many tentacles (the one pictured has 11) extending from a central disc. They grow as large as 18 inches in diameter. Their top side is covered with hard, sharply pointed spines. The starfish moves along over the coral reef propelled by thousands of tiny suction cups, called tube feet, extending downward from the flexible tentacles.

Zahuranec, wearing thick protective gloves, caught three of the sub-sea marauders which were placed in a dishpan of seawater and transported to the National Fisheries Center and Aquarium in Washington, D.C., where they were put on public display.

Zahuranec labeled the starfish as "science fiction creatures of the sea."

"Cut one in half and you end up with two. Cut those two in half and you will have four!" the ocean scientist reported.

Despite a five-week investigation, the scientists have as yet been unable to explain the great increase in the number of starfish.

"We don't know if it's DDT or radiation or dredging operations or shell collecting," Zahuranec said.

"This increase could be the result of some kind of biological cycle. But we do know that this sudden infestation is very unusual," he said.

These starfish were rarely seen around Guam until about 1967.

One theory is that the Crown of Thorns is simply "getting even" with the coral. For years the propagation of the starfish was held in check by the living coral which consumed the starfish larvae. Now it appears the starfish has the advantage in the undersea war.

Another check against the propagation of the Acanthaster planci is the giant triton — a natural enemy of the adult starfish.

Something has thrown these controls out of balance, but what that "something" is, scientists readily admit they do not know. □

Dancing With Willie

Prejudice is a relative thing that belongs to all races. It takes its shape from the time and the place, rather than from the inner spirit with which we are born . . .

By Sterling Bemis

In the fifth grade of McKinley School when I was a boy of 10 I danced with Willie. Willie was black. I remembered Willie the other day when I read that another state was fighting in court to keep the races separate in school.

Yet when I danced with Willie nobody was shocked, except Ardyce Johnson, which is NOT her real name. Ardyce had been listening to her Uncle Everett. The Uncle Everetts of this world are real enough.

To understand about Willie keep in mind the time and the place. The time was World War I and the place was Lincoln, Neb. McKinley School was a melting pot that would give a segregationist fits. We had Negroes in every class. We also had Jews, Italians, Russians and Germans, a few Armenian refugees and a strong leavening of the native stock, descended as I was from the pioneers.

Creaking with age under slate roofs that pressed down heavily, our classrooms were crowded. Yet there was room for prejudice. In the fifth grade, our prejudices were growing images of the prejudices of our fathers. Burning with the hysteria of war, our elders had buried some of their racial and religious bias to concentrate on hating the Hun. The Hun was a beast in the uniform of Germany.

I remember three Negroes in my class. All of them — even Willie when he danced — were accepted by most of the other striplings in the classroom. On the playground the dark ones ranged like young panthers, quick, strong, feared and admired.

The only mass prejudice I can recall was directed toward a chubby Caucasian lad named Carl Rich. Carl was a German. Many at McKinley School were of German descent. But

Carl was also a preacher's son. And Carl's father had changed his name from Heinrich and his church from German Lutheran to "Second Lutheran." So there was Carl ... a fat boy, a preacher's boy and a name as artificial as "liberty sausage." ("Liberty sausage" was a patriotic name for hamburger.)

Everybody in fifth grade said Carl was "yallow." ("The Huns are yellow," our parents were saying.) I'm afraid I was one of the gang, black and white, who shouted "Hey, Yal-low!" as Carl came puffing through the sand on the playground. What could Carl do about it? He laughed it off. And when we chose up sides for softball, he was still the steadiest catcher of all.

Carl kept laughing, in a high, pinched key, and catching. In time he won back his identity. It was a hot and cruel tempering for a 10-year-old boy built like a washtub. But it failed to scar him. Fifteen years later he coached a high school team to the championship and we McKinley grads said, "Good ol' Carl!"

In 1917 Carl was our villain. Three of our heroes were Negroes — Huck, Dave and Willie.

You never knew what Huck would do on second base. He treated it like a tiddlywink, flipping the bag forward or back, depending on how the runner was hooking his slide. If the man was safe, Huck snapped his throwing arm toward Carl at home plate with such a deep grunt and grimace that often the deluded runner would start toward third. That's when Huck would tag him with a ball he had hidden behind his back.

Dave was a shifty basketball forward and a deadly puncher in a fight. He did not have many fights. He scowled them away. But Lloyd O'Connor knew how to handle Dave. Lloyd would face up to him in the chill of morning recess under the steel turning bars on the north end of the playground and pantomime a murderous brawler raging for combat. (Lloyd was reading all the Jack London he could find.)

"Who dares to challenge the White Avenger of the Far North?" Lloyd would growl. "Ah-hah! None other than the Black Demon of the Yukon Spell. Prepare, Black Demon, to meet thy master!" Somewhere between "Avenger" and "Yukon" the Black Demon would snort and whinny his reply to the challenge. Then he and the White Avenger would wrestle up a sandstorm in the pebbled dust.

Then there was Willie. Willie was a jigging grin. The corners of his mouth were never still. He grinned over his shoulder as he sprinted to the front in the 60-yard dash. He clowned, win or lose, in a wrestling match. He made faces without trying.

Willie grinned the day Miss Brush was late to English class. We were stamping the hard-caked mud off our boots when Willie stepped up on the platform and started to dance. He set a catchy beat. I slapped my palms in cadence. Then I went up to dance with Willie.

Willie did a stomping good buck-and-wing. I did the best I could, which was not that good. Then we linked arms to Shuffle Off to Buffalo the way the vaudeville song-and-dance men exited from the stage of the Liberty Theater. We were only halfway across the platform when somebody stage-whispered, "Here she comes!" Miss Brush trotted in ... starched, grim and suspicious. She couldn't pin a thing on us.

Ardyce Johnson was lingering in the hall after the bell rang. Ardyce had claims on me. I carried her books. She was, no matter what others may say about the uniformity of the period, the only girl in the class with pigtails. They were flaming Animal Fair pigtails that went well with the green of her eyes.

("Went to the Animal Fair
Birds and the beasts were there
The little raccoon
By the light of the moon
Was combing his auburn hair.")

Ardyce cleared her throat several times and turned pink, but she didn't speak until we were out on M Street.

"Why did you do it?" she asked at last.

"What?"

"Dancing with Willie. I don't think that was a bit nice. What if Miss Brush had seen you?"

"Doin' what?"

"Well, really!" Her auburn pigtails tossed. "Dancing with that black trash!"

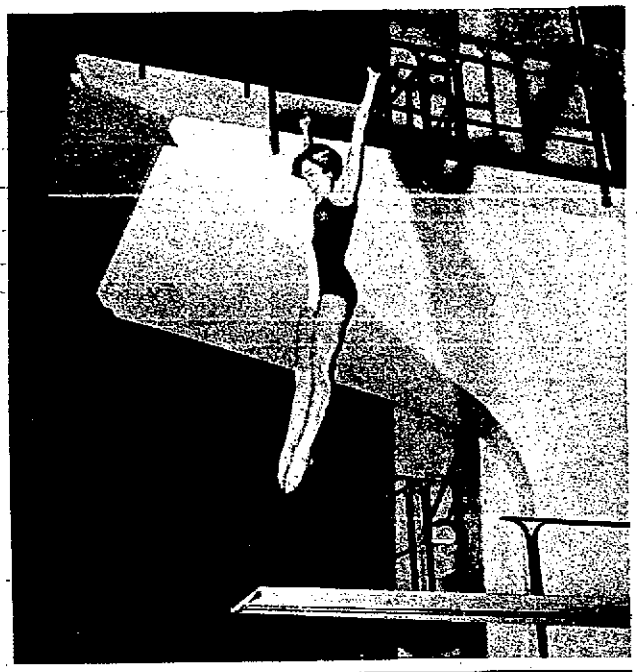

I got angry. "Willie's not trash! He's — well, he's Willie." My voice broke. "What's so bad about that?"

Ardyce stomped her foot. "Oh, you make me sick! Uncle Everett told me, he said, 'Don't you even look at that colored trash or you ought to be expelled.' Uncle Everett is a judge, practically, and I guess he ought to know!"

Uncle Everett didn't know the fifth grade of McKinley School. He didn't know the garlic of Joe Buccello or the smell of Henry Ahmends in the late sun of March when he was "sewed up" for the winter" in his woolies.

He didn't know that a white boy named Carl was "yallow." That the Black Demon could whoosh in a basket from the side court without tickling the net. That Huck could fool the best base runner rival Bancroft School ever had. He didn't know the giggles you could get pretending to be a vaudeville hoofer.

Uncle Everett didn't know. If he had just kept still, I wonder what Ardyce Johnson might have thought when she saw me dancing with Willie. □

Captain King the Diving Queen

By Ev Hosking

There are some who feel that Capt. Micki King has done more to give the Air Force a lift than anyone since the Wright Brothers.

A stocky chief master sergeant, veteran of 26 years service, watched the slim, trim young captain swing down the walk and remarked:

"That's an officer, all right, but it sure isn't any gentleman by act of Congress or anyone else, as anyone can plainly see — wow!"

The striking blonde woman returned his snappy salute.

Micki is a tall, willowy young woman who wears two uniforms — and fills them both exceedingly well.

First she wears the blue uniform of an Air Force captain — her number one job.

Then, she wears the red, white and blue swimsuit emblematic of the U.S. Olympic diving team of which she was a member.

Micki, who trains in the Long Beach Belmont Plaza pool and who now calls Torrance her home, currently swims under the banner of the Phillips 66 Swim Club of Long Beach and is considered one of the top woman divers of this generation.

But she really reached the peak of her diving career in the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City when she lost the Olympic diving championships on her last two dives — but won the hearts of all of the spectators.

Leading a field of 23 divers in the games, Micki took her ninth dive — a reverse one-and-a-half somersault.

Her left arm struck the diving board, breaking the ulna bone.

Despite the searing pain, she attempted her last dive, a reverse one-and-a-half with a one-and-a-half twist.

She wound up in fourth place with 137.5 points.

Micki finished the Olympics with no gold medal — just a cast for a souvenir.

But she became an Olympic hero to all who saw her determined bid to win.

Dick Kimball, Micki's coach at the games, said:

"She was in shock and didn't have it for the last dive. That's why she blew it. It's a shame, but she still made the Olympic team — and that's no loss."

Sue Gossick, a member of the same team, said:

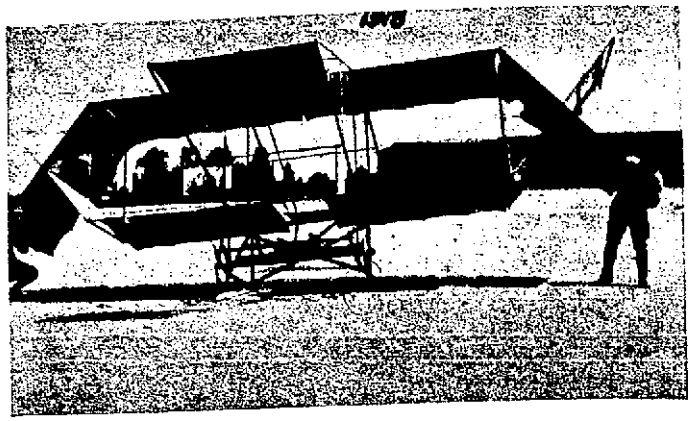

"I knew something happened. I heard her hit."

"I was dizzy," Micki said later. "I was dizzy after the next to last dive. My arm was numb. I didn't know what I was doing. I don't even remember my last dive." ☞ (16)

Edwin Gettins looks over model of his last glider (Flugesel) at his home.

Late model Octoplane (minus two center X wings) as tested for Army as a bomber design in 1918 at Exposition Park in Los Angeles.

The Octoplane is loaded on Model T for return to shop for repairs after slight mishap (left X frame busted).

Gettins' last glider, the Flugesel. He gave this to the Los Angeles County Science Museum when he quit flying in 1932.

Easy Glider

By Herb Shannon

Most aviation pioneers started out playing with kites and progressed from there to gliders and then on to powered aircraft. But not Edwin Gettins, 77, who began in 1909 with a full-scale glider, went to kites to perfect his designs and came back to gliders to stay.

Along the way he designed, built and flew a total of 195, not counting the six-foot model of the last one which hangs in the patio of his home at 13519 Markdale Ave., Norwalk.

Most of Gettins' flying was done without a license of any kind. It wasn't until 1930 that he received license No. 109 from the Aeronautics Bureau of the Department of Commerce, entitling him to fly "Motorless Aircraft of the U.S."

"That was the first civilian commercial glider license," Gettins claims. "I think I'm also the oldest living American glider pilot. I don't know of any older."

With the license in his pocket and his latest glider in tow, Gettins traveled around the Southland in search of launching sites and leaving glider clubs in his slipstream. He was the first president of the Long Beach Glider Club and founded or helped start 18 more before he stopped flying in 1932.

Two of his favorite soaring locations aside from Long Beach in that period were Crawford Field, in Seal Beach, and the Palos Verdes cliffs overlooking Torrance Beach. Both areas supported clubs, furnishing the enthusiastic manpower required for launching.

"I used a kind of slingshot launch method, with two gangs of men pulling on 100-foot rubber shock cords," Gettins recalls. "It was better than jet propulsion and a lot cheaper."

The lifetime love affair with gliders started when Gettins was a stripling of 16, studying drafting in Los Angeles. Louis Bleriot had just made the world's first overseas flight across the English Channel, exciting the imagination of Manual Arts High School's Amateur Aviation Club and member Gettins.

Determined to be "the first American to fly the Arroyo Seco," Gettins designed a reasonable facsimile of Bleriot's monoplane from a photograph he found in Scientific American Magazine. With help from his classmates, the rickety, motorless craft was built and transported to Pasadena.

The boys decided on a test flight under tow on a road at the bottom of the canyon before the epochal launch from rim to rim.

"It wasn't much of a flight," Gettins admits now. "It would get off the ground but it wouldn't stay up. Good thing, too. It would have come apart in mid-air."

Back at his drawing board, Gettins scaled down his next design to model size and incorporated some of the aerodynamic advances he noted in news photos of planes developed by the Wright

Brothers. The result was a kite in the shape of the aircraft of the day.

Within a year, Gettins and his high school chums were accomplished enough at building and flying their spectacular kites to be invited to demonstrate their skill at the world's first international aviation meet on Dominguez Hill. While Glenn Curtiss and other professional fliers competed for cash prizes in their full-size, powered box kites, the boys put on a daily sideshow for the fun of it.

After this heady experience, Gettins began to think about wiping out the earlier disappointment at Pasadena. Somehow, he and his pals managed to sneak a full-size glider, towed by a motorcycle, into the tail end of the Rose Parade of 1912.

"Everything went fine until the parade stopped up ahead," Gettins recalls. "I was sailing along at about 12 feet altitude and suddenly the tow line went slack. I fishtailed over to an open field and crashed. Then the police came and chased us away."

Undiscouraged, the indestructible glider pilot again reverted to kite-making for a while. A simple X-shaped kite then popular caught his attention and started a train of thought.

Why couldn't the inherent stability of the X shape be adapted to an airplane wing? Thus was born the Octoplane, with eight wings arranged in series like a Roman numeral: XXXX.

Gettins loaded his weird craft sideways on a Model T touring car which was also to serve as

MR. KITCHEN'S REMODELING CENTER

If you were shown a hole in the ground, one foot square, then blindfolded and told to jump over it, you would probably do your best to jump twice as far as necessary to keep from falling in. Asking an average contractor, not specializing in kitchens, to do your job is a similar situation. By being blindfolded to unfamiliar situations, some contractors will jump the price twice as much, in order to cover any unknown details that might arise; thereby keeping himself from going in the hole financially.

By dealing with a kitchen specialist you eliminate the blindfold and make your job a good step forward instead of a giant leap into "Kitchen Brinkmanship."

See Wrinkles* Actually Reduced

With Medically Proven Hormone Application

Now you can see your skin become clearer and younger-looking as *dry-skin wrinkles diminish in only 10 to 12 days. A laboratory test conducted by skin specialists proves conclusively that estrogenic hormones, applied to the skin, actually reduce dry-skin lines and wrinkles to a marked—visible—degree.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula—but without hormones—was applied to the other side.

The results of this "half-woman" test showed that skin lines on the hormone side were clearly, visibly reduced. Many fine lines had disappeared altogether, while even deep wrinkles showed dramatic improvement.

How? Why? Doctors say the hormones cause skin cells to increase their natural moisture. As millions of cells become plumper, they smooth out lines much as you plump up a pillow. Results are often visible in 10 to 12 days.

This anti-wrinkle formula is produced by the trustworthy 56-year-old Mitchum laboratories under the name HORMONEX Beauty Serum. It acts so rapidly because pure hormones are quickly carried into the skin in a penetrating liquid formula.

Note this: Only 7 drops a day of HORMONEX Beauty Serum are the full recommended treatment for face and neck. Just seven drops a day!

The regular 100-day supply comes in a convenient dropper bottle at $3.50—less than 4 cents a day. Look younger quickly. See those dry-skin wrinkles visibly reduced.

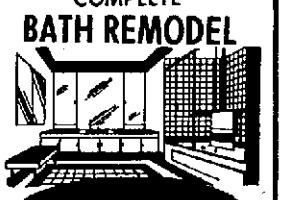

You may obtain HORMONEX Beauty Serum at your favorite drug or toiletry counter.

the motive power for flight and hauled it to Exposition Park in Los Angeles for the test.

"The car pulled me along and the glider just rolled a little ways with nothing much happening until one of the coaster wheels out front hit a pothole," the designer related. "Next thing I knew, I was lying on my back on the ground and the glider was off to one side.

"Everybody was laughing. They said I was the first pilot to do a half loop. The glider had gone straight up and threw me out at the top. We never bothered with seat belts up to then."

By this time Gettins was out of school and working as a draftsman at the Richfield refinery in Long Beach. In his spare time he continued to build gliders, improving designs and developing his own manufacturing techniques.

Seal Beach is site of 1929 glider ride by Gettins.

"We used anything handy," he explains. "Stove bolts and bamboo, muslin and piano wire, even ordinary clothesline. But I never thought about working for any of the aviation firms that were springing up then. They couldn't pay enough to make it interesting."

He also had no idea of building airplanes for profit until 1918, when it occurred to him that a modified version of the Octoplane might be just what the Army was looking for in the way of a bomber.

The demonstration model eliminated the two central Xs in the wing, leaving a biplane arrangement with an X shape at either end. It was also fitted with stabilizers fore and aft to stop the violent pitching of the original Octoplane.

"The officer who came from the War College to look it over just shook his head," said Gettins. "He said it wouldn't fly because the aspect ratio was all wrong. I didn't know what he was talking about, and neither did he.

"If there was any problem with the Octoplane

Wild and Wonderful

Spring comes in infinite ways at indefinite times to different places. In the ring of mountains and high desert passes surrounding the Los Angeles basin, wildflowers are the response to an arrival conceived under proper conditions of warmth and moisture. Spring melt from winter snows, a propitious rain falling on the desert, the warming sun . . . these and other factors combine by chance, culminating at unannounced dates with a display of color that is a marvel to thousands who break away if but for a day from their city toils.

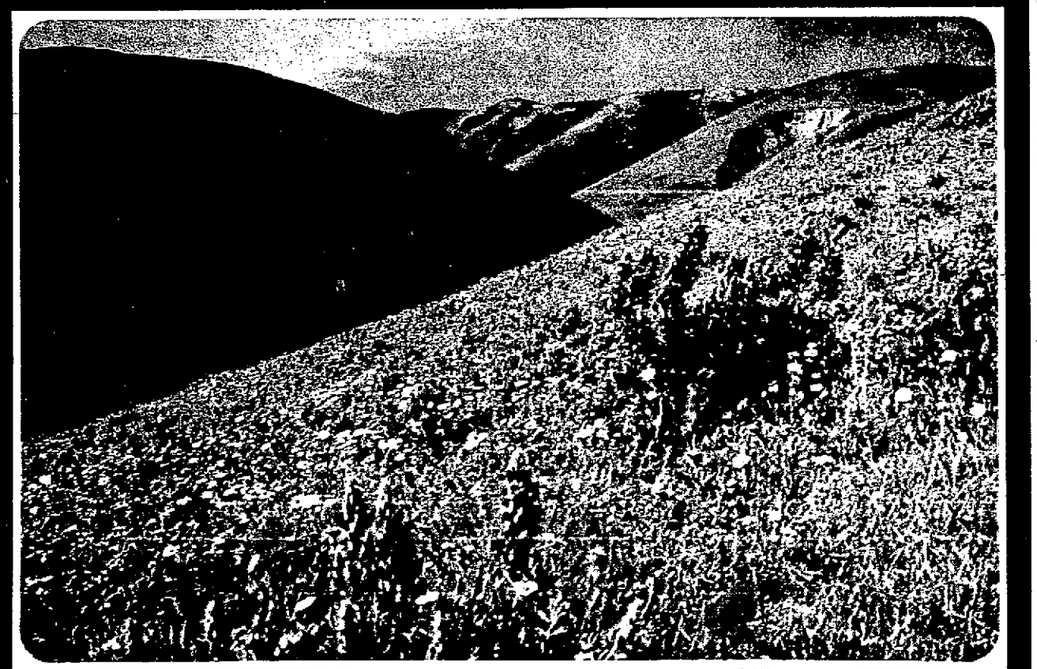

Scenes visited by Southland Sunday include the last resting place for a number of pioneers who settled Kernville and Quartzburg. A soft mantle of creamcups and goldfields covers the cemetery (left) overlooking Lake Isabella, which now covers the former townsites.

Micki King

At any rate, the only diving that Micki did for the next 108 days in which she had a cast on her arm was to dive into the paper work on her desk at the Air Force's Space and Missile Systems Organization in El Segundo where she serves as special services officer.

Then, when the 108 days were up, Micki suited up and started to work out to strengthen her arm. And now she is back competing whenever her stringent duty schedule allows her to.

The attractive captain's diving career began at her local YWCA in Pontiac, Mich.

She was doing jackknives and flips at the age of 10.

At 15 she began to perform competitively.

After her first meet, diving changed from a casual activity to serious business. She practiced three days a week and entered local Amateur Athletic Union meets which she won regularly.

Then the blonde youngster who was more at home in the water than on land grew into a determined young woman with a burning ambition to compete nationally and internationally in diving meets.

She entered the University of Michigan and began to really train under the direction of Kimball, who had been coach of the 1964 men's Olympic diving team and was former national champion diver.

She began to consistently make the finals of the national AAU meets.

Micki's record began to get more impressive as time went on.

As a member of the University of Michigan's swim team, Micki won the intercollegiate one-meter title three times and also won two gold medals as a member of the relay team.

Her love of the water led her to take a fling at water polo. She was goalie on Ann Arbor Swim Club's national championship team in 1963 and was named All American in that sport before giving it up to have more time to train for her diving competition.

Micki entered the Air Force in September of 1966 upon her graduation from Michigan and went on active duty with the ROTC detachment at her alma mater.

She served as administrative officer of the unit and counseled the cadets.

"It offered me a challenging career," she said, "and at the same time it offered me a chance to continue my diving."

And continue she did.

Currently she has six national AAU diving titles to her credit; two in the ten-meter platform event, one on the one-meter and three on the three-meter springboard.

On an AAU-sponsored goodwill tour she performed in Wales, Monaco, Portugal and Spain, winning the Spanish national springboard title.

She is the Canadian national champion in the one- and three-meter events which she has won two years in a row.

Representing the United States, she placed second in the 1967 Pan American Games in Winnipeg, Canada.

That summer she went to Tokyo as a member of the U.S. contingent to the World Student Games, winning the three-meter gold medal which she says is her most prized award.

The Associated Press voted her the eighth most outstanding woman athlete of 1967 in its annual press poll. That year she was nominated for the Sullivan Award which is presented to the outstanding man or woman athlete of the year.

The year 1968 marked the peak of her athletic career when she won a berth on the U.S. Olympic Team only to suffer the tragedy of breaking her arm and losing an almost cinch first place.

Nineteen sixty-nine was a year of training, straining to get back into shape with her bout with the cast.

She competed in the World Military Games (C.I.S.M.) which were held in Pescara, Italy, and thereby set something of a record — sort of a blonde bombshell type record.

It turned out that she was the only woman ever to have competed in the history of the military games, and in the otherwise all-male field she finished third on the ten-meter board and fourth on the three-meter.

On April 2 of this year, tired from appearing in Canadian meets, Micki competed in the National AAU meet at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

She didn't win, but the Associated Press had this to say about her performance:

"The surprise of the women's competition was provided by Capt. Micki King, U.S. Air Force, representing the Phillips 66 Swim Club of Long Beach. Miss King turned on a phenomenal performance in the finals to take third place after a semifinal finish at ninth."

On her return to Space and Missile Systems Organization at completion of her leave it will be back to the paper-packed desk in SAMSO's sprawling headquarters in El Segundo, and back to Long Beach in the evenings for more training.

Oh, yes, and in her spare time she is learning to fly.

As one of her Air Force associates said:

"She has a bad case of the blues—

"She fell in love with the blue of the Air Force—

"She loves the blue waters—

"And currently she is headed for a love affair with the wild blue skies." ....□

THE OBJECT IS ART

A long way from tic-tac-toe and dominoes are the adult playthings that may be termed Art Ob — for art objects. The Museum of Modern Art in New York has been the pacesetter in these table-top fashions. That portion of the museum one day may be known as the Museum of Mid Art for the tactile objects it has commissioned from noted artists, playthings that fall midway between art and toy.

This art fills a need for beauty on a budget. The depression syndrome left the art field to collectors of fine arts or poor reproductions since it was unthinkable that money should be spent for non-producing things. Function was foremost until the affluence became more established, and today's young people are accumulators of beauty before necessity. Fun instead of function brought many noted artists into the field of object design.

Stanley Landsman produced the Jekyll Glass which gives bizarre images in fun-house fashion on its silvered glass surface. It may serve the demand for usefulness as a paperweight, or just appeal to the narcissism in an 18-image reflection.

Perrygons created by Charles O. Perry are a fascinating mixture of 16 hexahedrons (specifically, rhombic hexahedrons!) that snap together in sculptural form. They're clear plastic and fascinating to change or observe.

Jim Bottomley's white paper forms can, with glue and imagination, be used to create fantasies such as this.

Poem Disposables by Les Levine are a dozen 13-by-13-inch clear plastic molds with poetry embossed. A full wall might be a witty way of ennobling your home with words by Saroyan, Williams, Waldman and Giorno, to name a few.

None of these objects would be in excess of $15. But art on a dime store budget is even possible. There's the 50-cent Omni Fluunt by Herbert Kapitski with two discs in black silk screen on clear acetate that simply moves in tandem to produce moire patterns.

For those who suffer from the non-producing complex or just nervous hands, the construction objects may have a calming influence. Spaceforms have become more elaborate in interlinking patterns. Jim Bottomley is the designer of the white paper forms and the possibilities are endless. The finished sphere can just waft from a ceiling or be filled with rice paper to form a light. All you need is glue and a package of 10 of the forms.

The low-key function continues through the paper sculpture world. David Doolin's paper pyramids are reminiscent of the mirror sculpture with the difference between $3 and $300. Doty blocks are nine in all with circles of bright colors that weave and turn to create interesting abstract patterns.

Among the unsigned Ob-art are weaving wonders of wire. Long strands of wire end with airy forms from kites to kittens. They are stylized enough in form to take away the sting of realism: the shapes move nicely in a window or atop a table.

Also making a table top splash is Artmongers' Les Levine Waterdrop. Explained as a three-dimensional drawing delineating the edge rather than the surface, each soft, clear plastic segment represents a drop of water and in puzzle-fashion they form a full Waterdrop.

According to Marna Thoma, business manager of publications for the Museum of Modern Art: "The trend began with the kaleidoscope, and at the moment artists are avocating in the 'ob' field to such a degree that the demand has exceeded the supply — even to the ultimate in 'do your own' wall sculpture by Victor Vasarely." His limited edition "thingee" can be changed every day in every way to create untold varieties of colors and shapes. This now becomes a serious ($500) art form.

For the first time, the average art lover may fill his home as well as his emotional need with budget beauty! □

Perrygons — created by Charles O. Perry — are rhombic hexahedrons that snap together in fascinating forms.

Long strands of wire are used to create lively forms such as this kite.

Henry Ford II . . . . His money doesn't make his wife feel guilty.

Marlene Dietrich and Burt Bacharach . . . . "Hap" played piano for her.

Enola Gay and crew . . . . Historic B-29 is a museum piece.

Hugh O'Brian . . . . Ideal bride would lack an ideal.

Fanny Brice and Gypsy Rose Lee . . . . Fellow troupers.

Eva Gabor . . . Being blonde isn't criminal.

that!

Q: My husband insists the plane from which the first atomic bomb was dropped over Hiroshima was dismantled and destroyed immediately after the mission. I can't believe the United States wouldn't have saved such an historic relic. Who's right? – C.R., Forest City, Ariz.

A: You are. Though The Bomb was dropped on Aug. 6, 1945, the historic Boeing B-29 Enola Gay still rests in the Preservation and Restoration Facility of the Smithsonian Institution.

Q: Hugh O'Brian, reputed to be one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors – will you ask him what he's REALLY looking for in a wife? – N.P.S., Cleveland.

A: "What I'm really looking for," Hugh hedges, "is the ideal bride who isn't looking for an ideal groom."

Q: An old showbiz buff said the other day that Fanny Brice and Gypsy Rose Lee were in the Ziegfeld Follies together. Couldn't be, could it? – Betty Buckalu, Chicago.

A: Could be and was. Not in the original Ziegfeld Follies but in a company formed by the Shuberts after they bought the rights and changed the title to "The Shubert Follies." On the road Fanny and Gypsy became confidantes and roommates. As the big name box-office attraction, Miss Brice received a star's salary. As a stage starlet, Gypsy's weekly salary was $250. Since she had to pay for costumes, hotels, traveling expenses, she was left with only a G-string to her name.

Q: Who gave Louis Armstrong the unflattering nickname, "Satchmo"? – T.V.B., Ames, Iowa.

A: Louis himself. After playing on a Mississippi steamboat, he introduced himself by saying, "This is the Reverend Satchelmouth Armstrong."

Q: Is it true that Cristina Ford (Henry the Second's young wife) feels guilty about spending his money? – B. Roberts, Hamilton, Ohio.

A: On the contrary. She said: "Why should I feel guilty about money? We give away pretty near everything to charity. Money and position don't make you secure. If they took away the money tomorrow, I'd be just as happy."

Q: Double Oscar-winning songwriter Burt ("Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head") Bacharach – is it true he once worked with Mae West? – Jeannie Boyd, Long Beach.

A: No. It was Marlene Dietrich the young man accompanied. At one time she wouldn't accept an appearance anywhere unless "Hap" (as his proud parents call him) accompanied her on the piano and conducted. Before that he toured with the Ames Brothers. Bacharach's next assignment – hosting two Kraft Music Hall TV shows in London

Q: I love "Green Acres" and Eva Gabor. When will her autobiography be published? – Sandy Mixon, Naples, Fla.

A: It was published, by Doubleday, back in 1953. Under the title "Orchids and Salami." Sample slices of baloney: "The major thing that divides the European male from the American male is the Atlantic Ocean." And "I am tired of being called a blonde as though this were a criminal act comparable to stealing from the collection plate in church."

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of Southland Sunday, P.O. Box 2505, New York, N.Y. He will answer as many questions as he can in his column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible. □

FRANK UEHLE
Welcome, Mothers

"God could not be everywhere, and therefore He made mothers."

That Jewish proverb is perhaps one of the most affectionate tributes ever penned. In just 10 words it reveals the spiritual magic that is motherhood.

Tributes to mother will take many forms today. There will be flowers, beautifully wrapped gifts, hugs and kisses. And her eyes will light up with particular pleasure when the family announces that she will also be honored with dinner in a fine restaurant.

An outstanding choice today will be the Embers Shoreline Restaurant, 1900 E. Ocean Blvd., located on the lobby level of the 17-story Pacific Holiday Apartments. Owner Frank Uehle and his large staff have laid careful plans for the Mother's Day repast to be served from noon to 10 p.m.

The special menu will emphasize eight entrees. Included will be succulent chicken roasted with herbs, several steak varieties, thick and luscious; the finest sweet lobster, other sea foods and a continental entree with a rich wine sauce. The prices will be $3.50 to $6.95. Children will be $2.50. Reservations are suggested.

The dinner will start with the Embers' special coquille hot appetizer, which is sea food in a white wine sauce, served in a shell dish. The next course will be soup du jour or tossed salad, followed by the entree, served with potato or rice pilaf and special mixed vegetables. Each table, topped with crisp linen, will receive the attention of two waiters, serving the dishes from special carts equipped with gas burners to keep everything warm.

The Embers, one of Long Beach's most beautiful luncheon and dinner establishments, has a terraced dining room. Three of its walls are glass, providing guests with sparkling views of the nearby strand, the ocean, boat activity and the city's oil islands, scenically landscaped.

Open week days for luncheon, the restaurant is a popular meeting place for business leaders and professional men who enjoy such hearty mid-day specials as the sourdough sandwich with roast beef and cheese or shrimp prepared in beer batter. Feminine guests are intrigued by six fancy salad selections or eggs Benedict.

GUIDE by Tedd Thomey

MOTHERS IN mini skirts or lavender and old lace will be welcomed today at Long Beach's Holiday Inn, a tall circular landmark on Lakewood Boulevard at Willow Street, overlooking the San Diego Freeway.

The inn's Skyroom restaurant, with windows offering views of the city, airport and Signal Hill, will serve a special Mother's Day champagne buffet from 11:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. The all-you-can buffet will be set up in the Crown banquet room, offering a dozen fresh, colorful salads; baked ham, roast turkey, round of roast beef, sea food Newburg, potatoes, vegetables, bread and hot muffins, beverage and dessert. The price will be $3.75, including a glass of champagne. Children's dinners will be $2, including a soft drink or milk. Reservations will not be necessary.

From 1 to 10 p.m. the inn will offer special Mother's Day dinners in the main dining room, $4.25 for adults, $2.25 for children. The courses will include cream of chicken soup or mixed green salad; sweet potato, rice pilaf or mashed potatoes, fruit tart and beverage. Among the entrees will be baked ham with Cumberland fruit sauce, round of roast beef, roast turkey, sea food Newburg and crown sirloin steak. Champagne will be 60 cents a glass.

The inn, which has seating for 275 persons in its Skyroom facilities, will also serve breakfast today, from 6 a.m. to 1 p.m. The menu will range from pancakes and waffles to ham and eggs, omelettes and the steak-egg combination.

The man who directs all of the inn's activities is innkeeper Herman Stieglmeier, an experienced chef and ardent horticulturist. Herman's hobby is gardening. Each year he plants sunflowers in the gardens which decorate the inn's large parking lots. This year he did his seeding in January and was rewarded with big yellow blossoms in early April.

Born in Germany, Herman completed his studies of the culinary arts at Frankfurter Hof, a hotel in Frankfurt. He has been employed as a chef or hotel executive in establishments in Switzerland, South Africa and New York. He has been manager of the Long Beach Holiday Inn since it opened in January 1969. □

Look into Contadina for a rich, delicately seasoned tomato sauce

HOT ZIPPITTY DIP!

We take 8 great Contadina Tomatoes. Simmer them till they're rich. Then season ever so lightly to give you a sauce that's a perfect dip straight from the can. Or, you can add a few more ingredients for a Hot Zippitty Dip.

1 cup (8-ounce can) CONTADINA® Tomato Sauce
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon crumbled basil leaves

Combine tomato sauce, cheese, garlic salt and basil leaves in small saucepan. Heat, stirring until most of cheese is melted. Serve hot with cooked frankfurter slices, Vienna sausages, pepperoni slices or meat balls.

design, it was overstabilized. It wouldn't maneuver very well with those boxes on the wing tips, but the only way you could get it out of the air after takeoff was to fly slow and let it settle to the ground."

After the design was rejected by the Army, Gettins finally made the Octoplane a commercial success by converting the design to a large kite model. The toy section of a Los Angeles department store ordered 100 for sale at about the time of the World War I Armistice.

Gettins' last glider was produced by much the same method as his first. Using his draftsman's dividers on photographs of a plywood glider which had proved successful in Germany, the self-taught designer gauged the scale for a graceful monoplane of similar appearance, but made of conventional spruce frame and airplane cloth.

Previous Gettins models were named for young ladies of his acquaintance at the time. The Gettins in "cockpit" of early model glider (about 1911).

Octoplane bore the name "Ruth." A Los Angeles newspaper noted in 1911 that the design which won him a prize was named "Mabel."

The Germans called their glider "Pegasus," after the fabled flying horse of antiquity. Gettins decided to give his last sailplane a name properly derived from its Teutonic origin, but with less pretentious overtones.

The soaring craft which he turned over to the Los Angeles County Museum in 1932 is called "Flugesel," which translates loosely as "Flying Jackass."

"All things considered," said Gettins, "I think it is very appropriate."

Medicine & You

A robot dental patient will soon be available for dentistry students to work on.

The simulator, similar to one now being used for training in anesthesiology, will even "hurt" at the proper times.

For example, if a dental student fails to inject an anesthetic correctly, the simulator may react with such symptoms of pain as a wrinkled brow. It might even say "ouch!"

And if the student makes a mistake, the robot will also respond accordingly. It may jerk its head. It may even bleed.

In short, the student will have to work just as cautiously with the robot as he would with a patient. Saliva will flow in the robot's mouth. Its breath will fog dental mirrors. Its tongue will get in the way as the fledgling dentist moves instruments in the mouth.

The dental training robot is being developed by researchers affiliated with the Dental Health Center, San Francisco, which is part of the division of dental health of the National Institutes of Health. Completion of the simulator is expected in the next year to 18 months.

A researcher thinks that the measles virus may be related in some way to multiple sclerosis, a tragic neurological disease.

The theory is that the measles virus works slowly to bring about an aftermath of multiple sclerosis, according to a report in California Medicine.

An abnormally slow heart action may be an early indicator in premature infants of great breathing difficulty.

UC Irvine doctors have been using the finding to cope with such spells in preemies.

Babies are given a mild electric shock to the foot when their heart rate falls below 90 beats a minute. This tiny electrical sting usually suffices to start them breathing normally again.

Dr. Margaret J. Ingman, lecturer in pediatrics, reported to a medical meeting that cessation of breathing, or a spell of reduced breathing, was found to precede slow heart action 80 per cent of the time. A device called a tachometer is used to activate an instrument which gives baby's foot a mild electric shock whenever slow heart action occurs. The stimulus restores normal breathing.

A noted rehabilitation authority, Dr. Howard Rusk, cites some telling evidence as to why persons should not routinely retire from work at 65:

—Tennyson was 83 when he wrote "The Crossing of the Bar."

—Clara Barton was 84 when she founded the American Red Cross.

—Michelangelo was painting masterpieces when he was 89.

—Verdi was composing great music at 85.

—Viscount Brice was past 80 when he wrote his "Modern Democracies." □

NIAGARA CYCLO MASSAGE

4125 Long Beach Bl., GA. 7-8735

She's a church deacon — the youngest deacon to serve at Covenant Presbyterian Church — a Millikan High School senior, a summer camp counselor for underprivileged girls, a Girls Athletic Association past-president, a Millikan orchestra member and a banner carrier with the high school band.

She's 18-year-old Sharon Anderson and she's equally at home in dresses and nylons or Levis and bare feet. Sharon, named "Youth of the Year" by the Long Beach Council of Churches in February, will attend Whittier College next fall to major in sociology. After college she'd like to work with underprivileged children.

Her views:

—What bothers me most of all is the poverty all over the world and the discrimination that goes with it. The government can find all this money for the war in Vietnam and the space program, but there is never enough for the poverty programs. The moon will still be there — it could wait — we have so many problems here to take care of. It's such a contradiction that we are supposed to be a Christian nation and we're doing all this killing.

—The word "hippie" is not a bad name. A hippie is more than just the way you wear your hair or dress; one day a kid can go with a hippie look and the next day she can be Miss Prim and Proper High School USA. I agree with a lot of the hippies. They think and reason out things for themselves. But the important thing is for you to decide what is right for you, and you can do this as a hippie or not as a hippie.

—The church has to be active in the community and take a role. It can't just sit back and tell someone who is starving to go and read his Bible and everything will be fine. The church has to take care of their physical needs with the help of the people in the church. A lot of people turn away from the church because it isn't answering their needs, especially the youth. The youth are looking for action.

—The drug problem at the schools is not as bad as people make it out to be. Last year there was a survey which showed that Millikan had the highest drug rate of any Long Beach school. The survey included such drugs as aspirin and made the rate seem higher than it is. People think when you walk on campus you'll run into drugs everywhere. Of course, there are a few kids who everyone knows are on drugs.

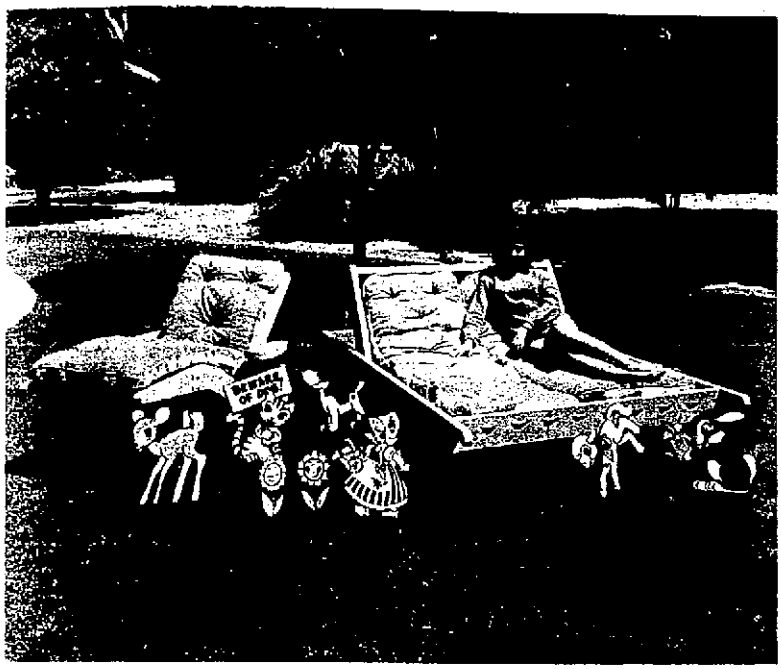

—I'm glad I'm graduating this year because the cuts in school funds will really limit the number and types of electives you can take. Last year the school introduced lots of new classes. They had an Afro-American and minorities class and comparative world religion class. With the cutbacks in money, I'm afraid these will be the ones to suffer.

—Membership in the Girls Athletic Association is sort of ridiculed. It's not the most sought after position on campus. When you say you're in GAA, people frown and expect you to be muscle-bound. But I like sports, and people's opinions don't matter to me too much. If I have to do something to impress someone and put up a false front to keep a friendship, the friendship isn't worth having.

—In the past when kids were elected class president it was more of a popularity contest. Now the kids who run have a program to get through. They don't get elected on popularity alone.

—At Millikan, demonstrations more often hurt instead of help causes. The people who organize them probably have good intentions, but you always get kids who join in and aren't really interested in the issues but are just taking advantage of the opportunity to cut classes. They run up and down halls and disrupt those who remain in their classes. Then it is the leaders who get hurt.□

FOR THE WELL-DRESSED YARD

By Steve Ellingson

Furnishing an outdoor living room can be as challenging as decorating the interior of your home. As a matter of fact, it's much easier and certainly less expensive because nature provides most of the essentials. For walls you have the trees, your ceiling the blue sky, and your floor a lush green carpet of grass. Actually you need only supply accessories such as the ones shown here with actress Beverly Adams.

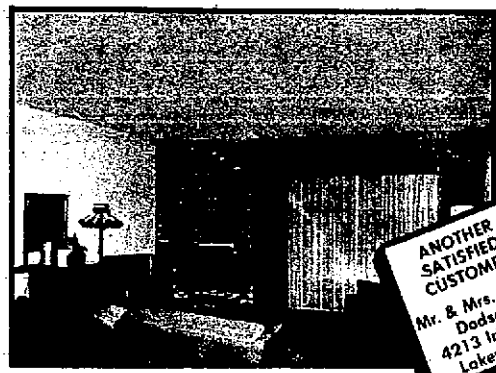

The two chaise lounges are made of durable materials and designed for solid comfort. You will notice the smaller chaise has a contoured shape which fits all curves. The back is adjustable for reading or dozing. The double chaise was built for two. It also has an adjustable back which may be lowered to convert into a double bed for outdoor sleeping. Both have wheels which make them easy to move and both use standard-size outdoor funiture pads.

The little lawn ornaments are the kind of accessories that add sparkle to your yard. They may be used on your fence, lawn or among your shrubbery. They are made of plywood with the paint-by-numbers method.

All of the items pictured are easily built when you use the full-size patterns. To make the chaise lounges you need only trace the pattern parts on wood, then saw them out and put the parts together.

To obtain the full-size patterns number 3LC for all of the items pictured, send $3 (add 50 cents if airmail is desired) by currency, check or money order to:

HOLLYWOOD'S RAQUEL WELCH

Q. Is it true that when actress Raquel Welch was 19 she was pregnant and unwed, and her family wanted to give the baby away?—N. T. Hawkins, San Clemente, Calif.

A. Raquel Tejada and the father of her child, Jim Welch, were married in Las Vegas, Nev., on May 8, 1959. On Nov. 6, 1959, a boy was born to the couple. They named him Damon. A few years later, their daughter, Tahnee, was born. In 1964 Jim and Raquel Welch were divorced. Fictionalizing her past, Raquel Welch subsequently set about making a new life for herself in Hollywood.

Q. A little more than two years ago a small army of young people, of which I was one, campaigned in New Hampshire for Sen. Eugene McCarthy, hoping to end the war in Vietnam. Did we really accomplish anything? — E. S., Cambridge, Mass.

A. Yes, about 100,000 troops have been brought home. The war, however, still rages on, and Senator McCarthy moves in mysterious ways.

Q. I have been told that the FBI prefers to hire girls from small towns because girls from large cities are too sophisticated for FBI work. Can this be correct? —A. Lewis, Nashville, Tenn.

A. No, the FBI recruits girls from American towns and cities of every size, looks for young women of competence and character.

Q. Charlotte Ford Niarchos, daughter of Henry Ford —will she marry Tony Newley?—Roberta Leger, Tenafly, N.J.

A. They're friends. Any discussion of marriage at this time would be premature.

Q. I know that Chet Huntley of the Huntley-Brinkley team is folding up shop and retiring from TV. How old is Chet? Where and what does he plan to do?—Marville McIntyre, Boston, Mass.

A. Huntley was born in December, 1909. He will retire to his home state of Montana, intends to become chairman of "Big Sky", a recreation complex in Bozeman. No doubt he will be tempted to enter political life.

Q. Is it true that there are more gambling casinos in Great Britain than throughout the remainder of the entire world?—Vivian Johnson, Searchlight, Nev.

A. A year ago there were 1200 gambling casinos in Great Britain. There are now only 170. The decrease is the result of careful investigation by Sir Stanley Raymond's Gaming Board.

Q. Robert Culp and France Nuyen were married for two years. How much alimony is Culp now paying? —Tito Sanchez, Deming, N. Mex.

A. $1400 per month pending trial and final settlement.

FRANCE AND ROBERT

Q. How goes the Carol Lynley-David Frost love affair?—Evelyn Landers, Baldwin, N.Y.

A. Blazing.

CAROL LYNLEY

DAVID FROST

Q. I've read that the famed Pasadena Playhouse, where William Holden and other famous stars studied, has gone bankrupt. Is this so?—T. L. T., Ontario, Calif.

A. Yes, it has filed a petition for bankruptcy, hopes eventually to become financially solvent.

Q. What were the two largest U.S. naval disasters of World War II? Were the naval officers responsible for these disasters ever tried?—W. Knowles, Norfolk, Va.

A. The sinking of the U.S.S. Arizona by Japanese bombers at Pearl Harbor with the loss of 1104 lives on Dec. 7, 1941.

The sinking of the cruiser Indianapolis which was struck on July 30, 1945, by Japanese torpedoes while cruising between Guam and Leyte. The ship went down in 12 minutes with the loss of 883 lives. Navy Capt. Charles B. McVay III was found guilty of negligence in the loss of the cruiser. His was one of the lesser-known courts-martial in recent times.

Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, commander of the U.S. Fleet at Pearl Harbor, was found guilty of "dereliction of duty" by a board of inquiry.

Q. I know that Dean Martin has given beauty-contest winner Gail Renshaw her walking papers. Who is Miss Renshaw's lucky successor?—Myra Armstrong, Long Beach, Calif.

A. Martin has flipped, at least for a few weeks, for a 22-year-old divorcee named Cathy Hawn, manager of a Beverly Hills beauty salon. Mrs. Hawn came to him well recommended. She was for a while a close friend of Frank Sinatra.

The Decline and Fall of Hollywood

by Lloyd Shearer

In the old days cheesecake sold movies, but these shots seem tame indeed in our permissive times when nudity has become a screen staple. Stars are a glut on the market and there are virtually none under contract to studios.

LONDON, ENGLAND

Samuel Billy Wilder, one of the truly great writer-directors of Hollywood's golden age — Double Indemnity, 1944; The Lost Weekend, 1945; The Emperor Waltz, 1947; Sunset Boulevard, 1950; Stalag 17, 1953; Sabrina, 1954; The Seven Year Itch, 1955; Witness for the Prosecution, 1957; Some Like It Hot, 1959; The Apartment, 1960 —has recently finished here a new film on an old subject.

It is called The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes, and it cost roughly $6 million. This means it must gross $12 million to break even. Advertising, prints, distribution, and sales promotion generally add 100 percent to the original production cost of a motion picture.

In a depressed economy $12 million is a great deal of money to earn back, especially on a subject like Sherlock Holmes who since 1903 has appeared as the main character in 30 films and countless times on television.

Stars replaced

Originally, Wilder planned to cast his film with two British stars: Peter O'Toole in the role of Holmes and Peter Sellers in the role of the detective's good friend, Dr. Watson. But he subsequently became disillusioned in both men. O'Toole began to make prima donna demands and Sellers began to denounce life in Hollywood. Wilder thereupon called Sellers "an unprofessional rat fink," and told O'Toole to seek employment elsewhere.

For his two stars he substituted a pair of British stage actors, Robert Stephens and Colin Blakely, both men of considerable talent who together are not worth 40 cents in box office appeal in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., or any other U.S. community.

Thus, if The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes is to prove successful, it will have to make it on the basis of story-power not star-power.

Star-power, traditionally the main ingredient of the motion picture industry, is just about dead, and even Wilder, who has worked with all of them from Bing Crosby to Humphrey Bogart to Audrey Hepburn to Marilyn Monroe, realizes that "establishment stars" now hinder more than they help a production.

"In today's market," he declares, "familiar star-faces keep audiences away. They know what's coming from these people. They know what to expect. They're tired of the same old characterizations. The element of expectation has died.

"Today's audience," he continues, "no longer cares about spectaculars or production values. Nobody in Kansas City says, 'Let's go to see such and such a film. It has a cast of thousands and it cost $20 million.' They couldn't care less. Sherlock Holmes, I think, hopefully, has some inherent values as a literary property in much the same way as Tarzan has. But Holmes has never been done right, and that's why I think we have a chance.

"What counts most in a film today is quality. If you can't make a film of quality, forget it. Pack up and say, 'Goodbye, Charlie. I've had it.'

"If it's a question of making every film about sex on a motorcycle, then I've also had it. The thing to do is to make films on the highest, not the lowest level. Don't write down to the audience.

"If I've learned anything about the market today, it's that the audience is smart. These kids have gone to high school and college. They're smarter than the picture-maker. The object today is to stay a little ahead of them or maybe just to catch up. You can't fool these kids any more.

"The name of the game is to get the audience involved. Every picture is a new game, a game you try to make interesting, exciting, stimulating. My objective is to get the audience involved in playing the game."

The wrong people

A scowling, brilliant, cynical film veteran who wears brass knuckles on his tongue and is not reluctant to use them, Wilder believes that the Hollywood he loved and helped make fabulous is moribund "because the industry has been taken out of the hands of the picture-makers.

"Hollywood," he snaps, "has been infiltrated by the stock-manipulators, the conglomerate guys. And what these guys have done to the industry staggers me. The studio books are running red with ink. You want to know why? Because stock-manipulators, businessmen and computers can't make pictures.

"I wouldn't have the guts to go to a cookie-maker and say, 'I'm taking over your business.' Especially when I knew nothing about cookie-making. Yet, here are these stock-manipulators taking over Hollywood. I don't think they have any respect for the enormous difficulty involved in picture-making. I don't think they really understand the enormous pains of creating.

"I don't know what these people will do to Hollywood, to the motion picture industry. I guess they'll get rid of the studios, go into the real estate business, start digging for oil. But my heart bleeds for the second and third generations of film-workers. What's going to happen to them? Are they going to spend the rest of their lives looking for jobs that no longer exist?

"I tell you honestly I hate to go back to Hollywood as it is today. It's my home, and I will go back, of course. But I go back with a heavy heart."

The Hollywood Billy Wilder is returning to is a disaster area—a sad community rife with failure, depression, near-despair, and bewilderment. It will never again be the same. The pirates who made it the colorful, thriving, amoral film mecca it once was—Harry Cohn, Louis Mayer, Jack Warner, Samuel Goldwyn, Darryl Zanuck—they are all dead, retired, or have left town.

The industry has been taken over by former agents and corporation executives, some of whom are functional illiterates and others who have no taste, little courage, and less competence.

Distress signals

Last year, five studios lost a combined total of more than $110 million. The result is that Paramount Studios is for sale. So, too, is MGM where they are now auctioning off all their old props and costumes. Twentieth Century-Fox is looking for a solvent corporation to merge with. Warner Brothers has been taken over by Kinney National Service, Inc., a conglomerate. Paramount is owned by Gulf & Western, another conglomerate. United Artists is a subsidiary of Transamerica Corporation. Universal Pictures is owned by MCA, a conglomerate put together by former Hollywood agents.

Unemployment in the craft unions is at an all-time high. Writers, directors, producers—and especially stars—are a dime a hundred. Production of feature films has come to a virtual standstill.

Elizabeth Taylor, Marlon Brando, Rock Hudson, Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Julie Andrews, Jack Lemmon, Burt Lancaster, Rex Harrison, Kim Novak, stars of yesteryear, some of whom demanded and got $1 million per film plus a percentage and an expense account of $1000 a week, are unwanted at any price.

Take Liz Taylor who earned a minimum of 1 million per film for The Comedians, Reflections in a Golden Eye, Boom, and Secret Ceremony, all flops or near-flops. No producer in his right mind will offer Liz half that sum, unless of course she promised to hang nude, except for her diamonds, from a chandelier, which would have to be a heavily secured one.

Stars will always exist, but the star system as Hollywood structured it for 40 years—numerous players under contract to studios which cast and promoted them—is dead. Nowadays the studios have virtually no players under contract.

Only two names, Paul Newman and Steve McQueen, have an appreciable box office following; and these two are only as good as their films. Their names alone provide no absolute box office insurance.

One reason Hollywood is in such deep financial trouble is because its executives refused to acknowledge realistically the death of the star system. Budgeting Star with Julie Andrews at $14 million, Sweet Charity with Shirley MacLaine at $17.5 million, Darling Lili with Julie Andrews and Rock Hudson at $18 million, Hello, Dolly! with Barbra Streisand at $22 million, Paint Your Wagon with Lee Marvin at $15 million indicates economic projections at odds with realistic expectations of the potential audience.

A lost audience

Hollywood, for the most part, has lost the family audience. There is enough such audience for reasonably budgeted Disney films, but that's about all.

About five years ago the family audience began to desert movies for television. Instead of mom, pop, the grandparents and the kids all going to the local cinema, the movie house became the bailiwick mostly of filmgoers in the 15-to-25 age bracket.

What these youngsters want to see, if The Graduate, Easy Rider, Goodbye, Columbus, and Midnight Cowboy are reflections of their desire, are screen stories which treat their personal trials and tribulations with realism and under-

Through the Paramount gate passed some of the world's most famous stars. Today the studio is up for sale, as is MGM. Last year five studios lost a total of $110 million and unemployment in craft unions is now at an all-time high.

standing. From the screen they seek vicarious identification, personal verisimilitude, reassurance that the camera is showing "things the way they are."

They are not interested, as Billy Wilder points out, in "films for bigness' sake with a cast of thousands or in how much some stupid producer shelled out for location sites."

Easy Rider cost $425,000, Medium Cool less than a million, Alice's Restaurant $1.7 million, Goodbye, Columbus $1.9 million—all cheap by old-fashioned Hollywood standards, but each enormously successful because the young audience identified with the reality of the characterizations and the story-lines.

One would imagine that the film executives would have had enough common sense, enough foresight to perceive the demographic change in their total audience. It would have been reasonable to expect them to alter the content of their pictures to fit the primarily youthful audience. But they did not, and they lost millions.

'Failed to adjust'

Forbes, the financial magazine, in a recent survey of movie-making pointed an accusing finger. "Why does the industry keep losing money?" it asked. "For a simple reason: a major part of the industry is still in the hands of the heirs of the old-timers, men who still live in the Twenties, in the days of Mary Pickford and Cecil B. De Mille, men who have failed to adjust to a changing world, failed economically, technologically, artistically, and in every other way. In some cases, the men who are taking over from them may do just as badly as they have—Gulf & Western has made all the mistakes at Paramount that previous managements did, and the company is wallowing in red ink—but the opportunities for success are there."

What are the opportunities, and is it possible for Hollywood to work its way out of the quagmire in which it is now depressed? Yes, but it requires radical surgery, and radical surgery never leaves its patient the same.

First, many of the major studios will close or sell off large shares of their real estate, which is what they are in the process of doing. The cost of maintaining a studio is gigantic—anywhere from $5 million to $15 million a year—and no studio can afford the extravagance unless all of its sound stages are in constant use. Years ago a studio used to turn out from 50 to 70 films annually. Now, most studios shoot six to 12 films a year on the home lot.

Television, a decade ago, was a hungry maw into which Hollywood emptied at large prices most of its old trash. No more. The networks are producing their own films for TV, have enough of a Hollywood backlog for three years, will buy only the good stuff and that at a $750,000 top.

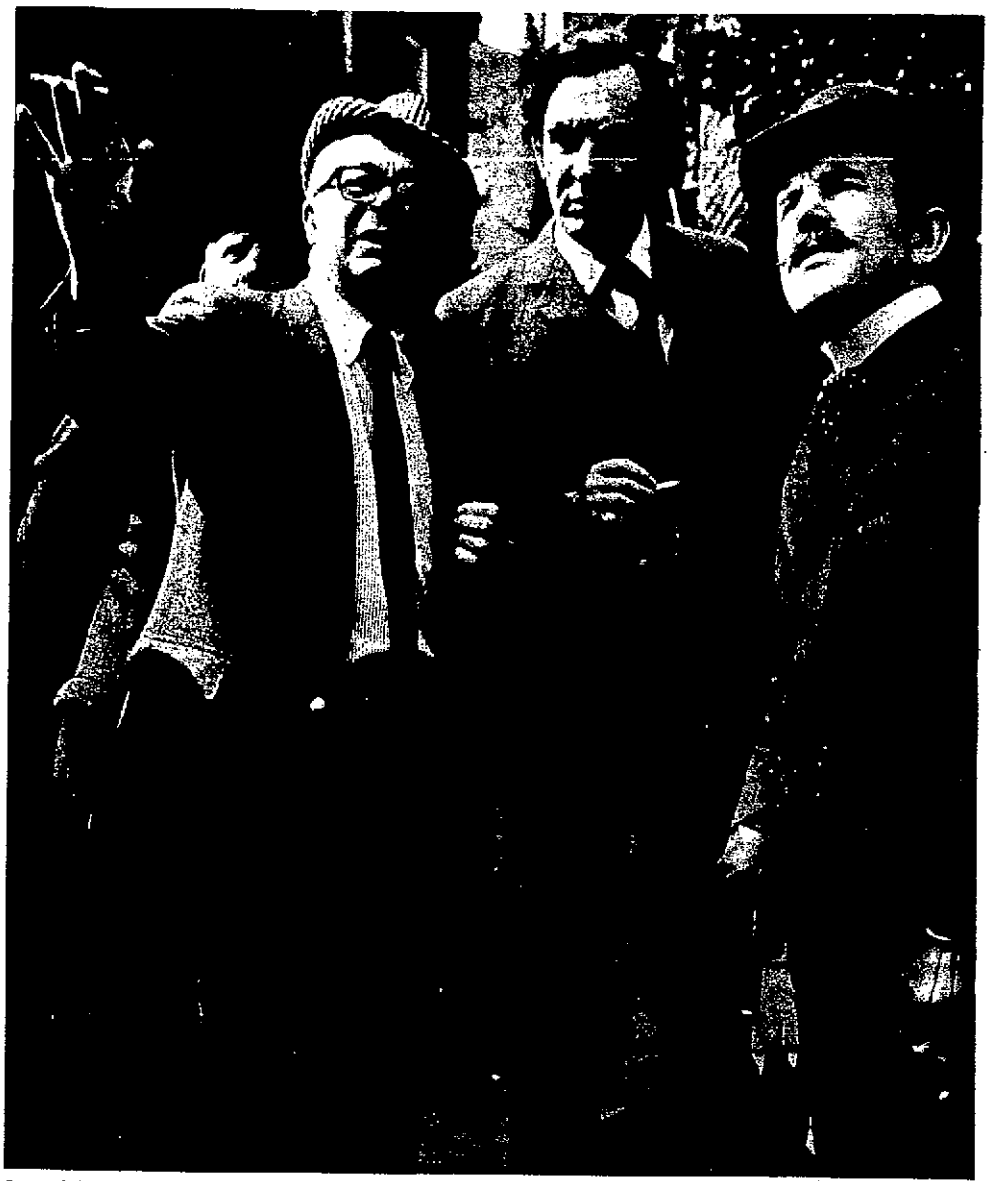

Since the audience for movies is now specialized and fragmented, most films will have to be made reasonably. Almost every company in Hollywood has placed a $2 million ceiling on an individual production. Hollywood regretfully has come to realize that motion pictures no longer constitute the primary entertainment medium of the masses. It is a medium directed for the most part at young people who are willing to spend as much as $2 and $3 per ticket but who want to see something relevant to their lives or something genuinely entertaining.

Step in right direction

Charles Bluhdorn, chairman of Gulf & Western, whose knowledge of the film world was molecular when he took over Paramount, was belatedly realistic some months ago when he named 29-year-old Stanley Jaffe, producer of Goodbye, Columbus, as Paramount's new chief operating officer. "To me," he said, "Mr. Jaffe epitomizes what the motion picture industry is all about today. He is a knowledgeable young man in an industry that is appealing, first of all, to the youth market."

Where does this leave Billy Wilder, age 63, with The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes? Where does it leave Alfred Hitchcock, age 70? John Huston, age 65? Fred Zinnemann, age 63? Willie Wyler, age 68? Where does it leave the grand old film-makers of Hollywood's golden age? It leaves some with the reluctant realization that the parade has passed them by even while they thought they were leading it. It leaves others staggering but desperately holding on.

To audiences and movie-makers alike, however, it is abundantly clear that the old, wasteful, nepotism-ridden Hollywood is gone. The key word in the film colony today is change. Heads are falling. And the new kings are not yet in sight.

Youth Notes

It Costs to Learn

How much will a college education cost in the 1970's?

Financial advisers predict anywhere from $20,000 to $30,000 for four years at a private institution, more if a student plans on graduate study.

Ten years ago $2300 covered tuition, room, and board at Yale University for one year. Last year the cost skyrocketed to $3600. Next year it moves up to $3900. Add the cost of books, clothes, travel, and incidentals to that sum, and you very nearly reach $5000.

At state universities, costs are much less. But even at such universities a prudent projection of expenses comes to $2500 per year.

Inevitable

It's happening all over. Next year at least five of Harvard's undergrad dorms will go coed, providing rooms for 440 Radcliffe girls, all of whom are to be chosen by lottery.

At Phillips Exeter Academy, one of the nation's oldest prep schools, coeducation gets underway in September when some girl students from nearby areas will be admitted as commuting students. In January, when dorms become available, girls will be admitted as boarding students.

Pupils' Privacy

Two grade-school teachers in Japan have just been cautioned for making public by name the grade rankings of children in their classes.

The Kochi District Judicial Affairs Bureau explains that such an act is a violation of Article 13 of the Japanese constitution guaranteeing respect of an individual and protection of the rights of schoolchildren.

Teachers in Japan are permitted to send parents examination results and report cards of their offspring. But they are not allowed to send home rankings of all the pupils in the class, which is what the two teachers in question did.

The 18-Year-Old Vote

Sen. Stephen M. Young (D., Ohio), at 81 the oldest member of the U.S. Senate, is one of the most vociferous champions of American youth.

"Here is a valid argument," he states, "in favor of permitting 18-year-olds to vote.

"Of each 100 young women 18 years of age, 26 are married. Surely when a young woman is old enough to marry, to maintain a home, and to start raising a family, that young person should be permitted to vote.

"Furthermore, there can be no argument but that youngsters 18 years of age, most of whom are graduates of high school, have acquired a far sounder education both by schooling and by reason of our modern way of life than college graduates of a generation ago.

"Fifty years ago fewer than 17 percent of American youngsters graduated from high school and fewer than eight percent went to college. Today nearly 80 percent are high school graduates and approximately 45 percent receive some form of higher education. Very definitely, the times demand young men and young ladies 18 years of age should have the complete right to vote."

'Drug-Flavored' Discs

The government of Singapore has ordered every pop record in that republic to be screened for "drug-flavored lyrics."

The Ministry of Culture believes that pop records are in part responsible for introducing the youth of America, Canada and Great Britain to narcotics, and they want no part of that in Singapore. To date the government has banned three records, "Puff, the Magic Dragon," "The Pusher," and "Happiness is a Warm Gun."

Too Many Babies

High school and college students polled on what they consider the world's No. 1 problem generally come up with overpopulation. The following table explains why:

	Babies Born	People Die	Increase
Per minute	235	96	139
Per hour	14,125	5816	8309
Per day	339,010	139,560	199,450
Per week	2,373,075	976,920	1,396,155
Per year	123,400,000	50,800,000	72,600,000

More Blacks on Campus

Last year, for the first time in the history of U.S. education, five member institutions of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges had a full-time undergraduate black student enrollment in excess of five percent of the total.

They were: Wayne State University with 11 percent black; Southern Illinois University with six percent; Ohio University, six percent; University of California at Berkeley, five percent, and Rutgers University, five

In 1968 only five universities, including all branches of the University of California and the State University of New York, had black enrollments of 1000 or more. This year there are nine universities with more than 1000 black students: Wayne State, Southern Illinois, Ohio University, University of California system (the Berkeley branch alone has 1000 black students), State University of New York, University of Illinois, Indiana University, Michigan State University, and the University of Wisconsin.

Denture Invention

For People With "Uppers" and "Lowers"

For the first time, science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds false teeth—both "uppers" and "lowers"—as they've never been held before. It forms an elastic membrane that actually holds dentures to mouth and gum surfaces!

It's FIXODENT—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it's protected by U. S. Patent #3,003,988.

FIXODENT not only holds dentures firmer, but it holds them more comfortably, too. It's so elastic you may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally. You may even eat and enjoy apples, steak, and corn-on-the-cob again.

The special pencil-point dispenser lets you put FIXODENT exactly where it's needed. Resists oozing over and gagging.

Just one application may last round-the-clock. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FIXODENT Denture Adhesive Cream at all drug counters.

Making a pet of danger: This girl's "tame" raccoon looks like an appealing traveling companion. But unusual pets are potential booby traps for a fatal case of rabies.

Rabies—New Threat From an Old Enemy

by Dr. John M. Hejl

Last year on a small chicken farm in San Diego County, Calif., the 2-year-old son of the owner was playing quietly in the yard when a bobcat suddenly attacked. Before the father could pull his little boy to safety, the child had been savagely bitten about the head.

The bobcat was shot, and laboratory tests confirmed that the animal was rabid. Doctors immediately ordered a series of therapeutic vaccinations for the boy. Despite the prescribed 21 shots in two weeks, followed by two boosters and further intensive treatment, the child died, after suffering for 133 days with progressive paralysis.

This tragedy points up a growing problem in the United States. For the tenth consecutive year, rabies in wild animals has exceeded rabies in domestic animals. The National Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga., reports that 76 percent of all confirmed rabies cases last year occurred in wild animals. Furthermore, these cases were not confined to those involving animals coming out of the wild to attack.

Take the case of the California resident who welcomed a pet ocelot into his home. This "tamed" animal turned vicious with rabies a month after it arrived. Then there was the Idaho resident who took a pet raccoon back home with him after a visit to Florida. Two weeks later the pet sickened and died from rabies. Before either owner realized the seriousness of his pet's condition, the ocelot had managed to bite five people and the raccoon four. All nine persons had to undergo the type of extensive—and painful—treatment described for the California youngster; the difference being that they lived to tell about it.

30,000 victims

Altogether, because of these and other such incidents, about 30,000 Americans were forced to undergo treatment for suspected rabies infection last year. This, despite the fact that the disease in domestic animals—principally dogs and cats—has decreased dramatically. Rabies in dogs, for example, dropped from 5688 cases in 1953 to 256 in 1969, largely because of vaccination programs, aided in many communities by public clinics.

The author is the director of the Veterinary Biologics Division, Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

But look at the figures for wild animals—"tamed" and untamed. Skunks are a good example. Cases of rabies in skunks have increased from 319 in 1953 to 1156 last year.

Such figures carry a warning for people interested in owning unusual or exotic pets. First of all, rabies has an unpredictable and sometimes exceptionally long incubation period (ranging from two weeks to well over six months). Months can pass between the time animals are infected and disease symptoms appear. If your pet is in the "silent" stages of rabies when you get him, the disease may flare up without warning after the animal is taken into your home.

Vaccines limited

Secondly, vaccinating exotic pets is no guarantee against trouble. Today's pet vaccines for rabies were developed specifically for dogs and cats. These vaccines (if they are to be sold in interstate commerce) must be licensed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Veterinary Biologics Division, which checks each production lot to be sure that it is pure, safe and effective. To date, no rabies vaccine has been licensed that is specifically recommended for exotic or wild animals. What's more, while a few veterinarians have reported some success in vaccinating various exotic pets, vaccination would be totally useless for such animals if they had already picked up rabies virus in the wild.

As for dealing with the increasing risks of rabies from wild animals in the wild, public health officials are attempting to create buffer zones in those areas where heavy concentrations of wildlife threaten humans. In San Diego County, for example, officials have trapped nearly 7000 wild animals after discovering that 22 bobcats, 47 foxes, nine skunks and eight coyotes in contact with citizens in a three-year period proved to be rabid.

Public health officials also warn hunters and others to be wary of any wild animal that seems unusually friendly. One hunter who recently met up with what seemed to be a particularly appealing fox found out otherwise. The animal approached, apparently begging to be petted. The good-natured hunter bent down to oblige and the fox bit off his thumb. The hunter returned this favor with a blast from his gun and then took the fox off to a diagnostic laboratory. Sure enough, the animal was rabid, and the hunter became one of those 30,000 people who required rabies treatment last year. The moral is: if a normally man-shy animal approaches you in a friendly fashion—look out!

Actually, the same principle holds true for any animal—domesticated or otherwise. Be wary of any unusual behavior that can signal the onset of rabies. The harmless pooch that turns into a ferocious beast is the common concept of a mad dog, but other changes are equally common. Mean dogs may become friendly; dogs that are homebodies may become rovers. Cats tend to become secretive when suffering from rabies so you may not hear or see them. But rabid cats may suddenly attack with such fierceness that in the melee they often bite themselves as well as the victim.

Avoiding danger

The decrease of rabies in domestic pets in recent years should not make us complacent about this truly terrifying disease. As we and our neighbors move closer together in cities and suburbs, so do our pets. One rabid animal loose in the neighborhood could cause untold trouble and tragedy.

What can you do?

You should see to it that your pup or kitten receives its rabies vaccination as soon as it is weaned. Some rabies vaccines provide protection for one year; others for up to three years. Know which type your pet has received so that you can keep the vaccination current with booster injections.

As a final precaution, avoid taking in strays or wild animals, including such "cute little things" as squirrels, raccoons, or possums. These and other animals, such as pet foxes, ocelots, or skunks, remain potential booby traps no matter how tame, how defanged, or how descented they are.

Thanks to vaccination programs, this boy romping with his dog is safe from rabies.

WILL YOU SMOKE MY NEW KIND OF PIPE

30 Days at my Risk?

All I want is your name so I can write and tell you why I'm willing to send you my pipe for 30 days smoking without a cent of risk on your part.

By E. A. Carey

My new pipe is not a new model, not a new style, not a new gadget, not an improvement on old style pipes. It is the first pipe in the world to use an entirely new principle for giving unadulterated pleasure to pipe smokers.

I've been a pipe smoker for 30 years, always looking for the ideal pipe—buying all the disappointing gadgets, and never finding a single, solitary pipe that would smoke hour after hour, day after day, without bitterness, bite, or sludge.

With considerable doubt, I decided to work out something for myself. After months of experimenting and scores of disappointments, suddenly, almost by accident, I discovered how to harness four great natural laws to give me everything I wanted in a pipe. It didn't require any "breaking in." From the first puff it smoked cool—it smoked mild. It smoked right down to the last bit of tobacco without bite. It never has to be "rested." AND it never has to be cleaned! Yet it is utterly impossible for goo or sludge to reach your tongue, because my invention dissipates the goo as it forms!

You might expect all this to require a complicated mechanical gadget, but when you see it, the most surprising thing will be that I've done all this in a pipe that looks like any of the finest conventional pipes. The claims I could make for this principle in tobacco enjoyment are so spectacular that no pipe smoker would believe them. So, since "seeing is believing," I also say "smoking is convincing" and I want to send you one Carey Pipe to smoke 30 days at my risk. At the end of that time, if you are willing to give up your Carey Pipe, simply break it to bits—and return it to me—the trial has cost you nothing.

Please send me your name today. The coupon or a postal card will do. I'll send you absolutely free my complete trial offer so you can decide for yourself whether or not my pipe-smoking friends are right when they say the Carey Pipe is the greatest smoking invention ever patented. Send your name and mailing address to me today. As one pipe smoker to another, I'll guarantee you the surprise of your life, Free. Write:

A Loving Cake

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Pre-nuptial parties deserve a special kind of cake—with hearts and flowers, or maybe just a luscious cherry-studded heart. Here's a sweetheart of a dessert for every loving occasion—a shower, an anniversary, a Sweet-Sixteen party. The sides are decorated with an almond-flavored white frosting; the top is brilliant with red cherry filling.

Sweetheart Cake

1 package white cake mix
½ teaspoon almond extract
½ can (1 lb. 5 oz.) cherry pie filling*
Snowdrift Frosting

Prepare white cake mix as directed on package, adding almond extract with liquid called for in directions. Bake in two greased and floured 9-inch layer-cake pans (heart-shaped, if available) as directed on package. Cool. Put layers together with frosting between. Frost sides of cake making a high rim; let set. Top cake with cherry pie filling.

*This is a prepared pie filling, not to be confused with pitted sour red cherries.

Snowdrift Frosting

1⅓ cups light corn syrup
2 egg whites
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon almond extract

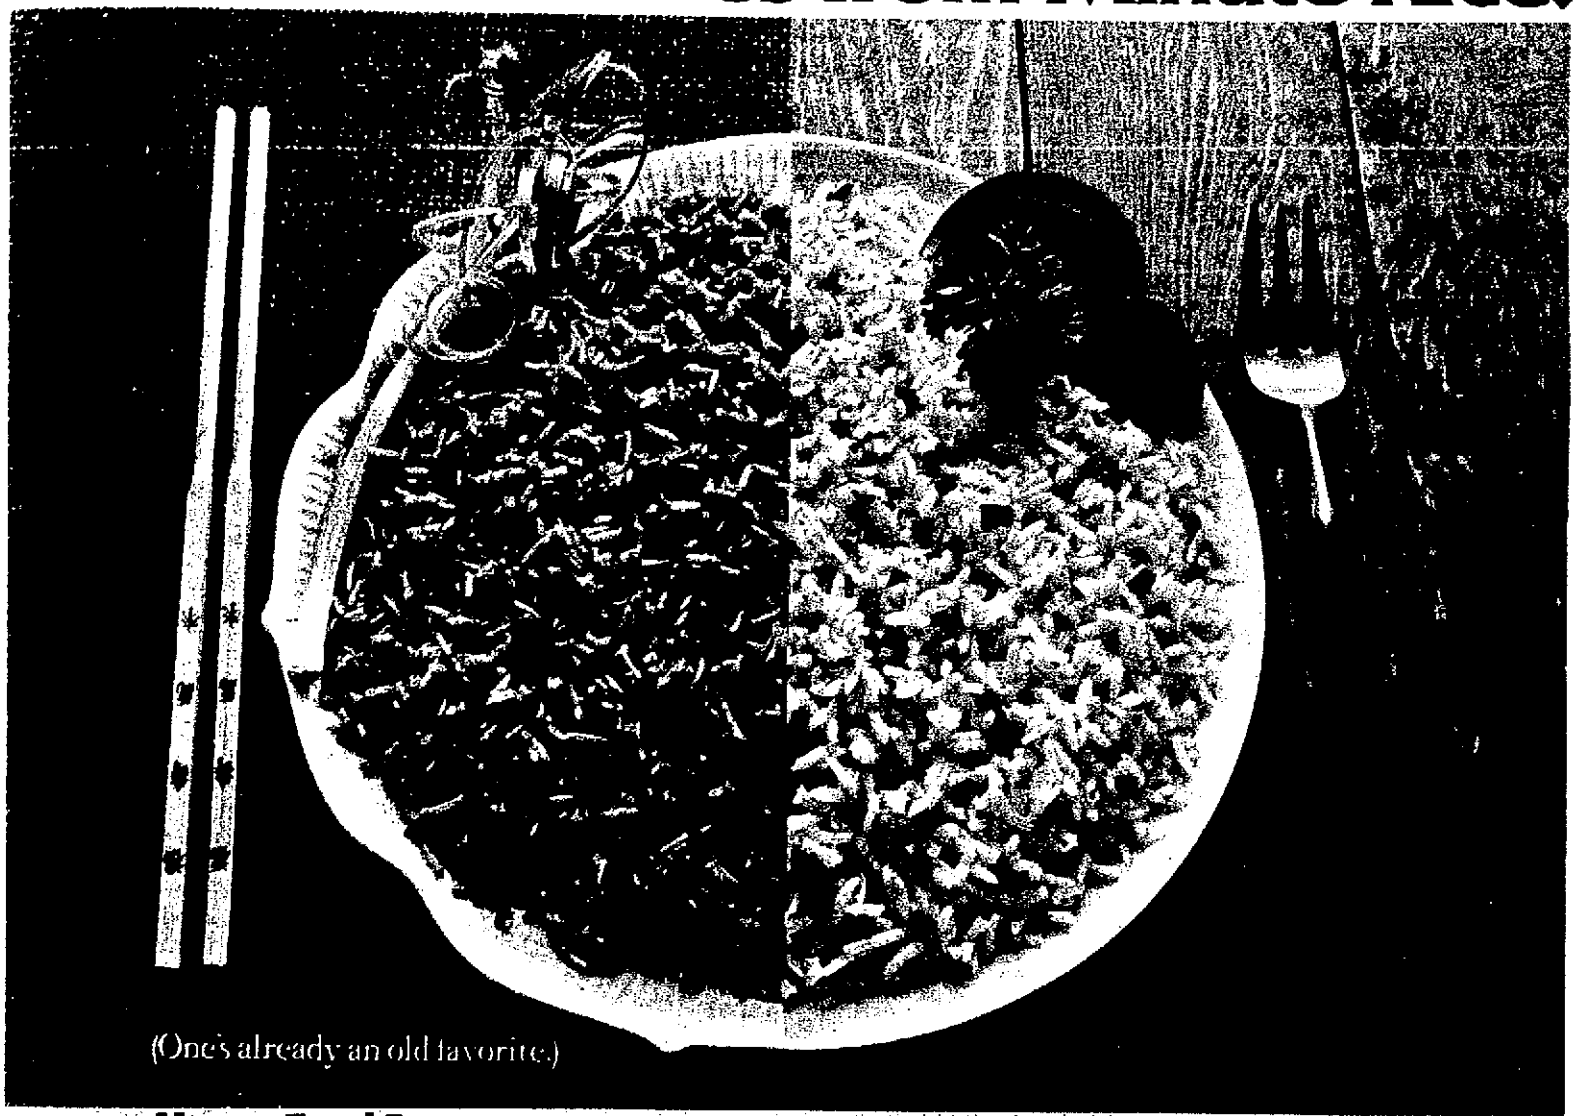

Bring corn syrup to boiling point. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Add syrup very slowly while continuing to beat until stiff peaks form. Stir in salt and almond extract.

Note: The remaining half of the pie filling may be spread between the cake layers if desired, or saved for a future dessert.

Lemons Hold Nature's Secret For A Lovelier Skin

Your complexion can count on leading a fairer, lovelier existence now that cosmetological research has revealed a remarkable lemon beauty discovery that sponsors to the full the natural cycle of tissue renewal and is able to bring out the true bloom of radiant splendour on your skin.

The exquisitely fine, velvet-textured "fabric" of your skin depends vitally for its health and beauty on its own capacity to shed and replace the outermost layer of closely-packed cellular scales of which it is composed. The presence of worn-out cells on the skin inhibits healthy functioning and leads to the premature development of ageing signs on the complexion, but today the availability of this scientific lemon freshener with its exceptional toning and invigorating qualities, makes it possible to further nature's every effort to keep up a steady sequence of new-cell formation and preserve the freshest, smoothest qualities of your complexion.

The beautifying properties of lemons have been recognized for centuries, but researchers recently discovered that it is the unique Caribbean lemon that holds many of nature's real secrets of skin beautification. Used in the carefully balanced form of a skin freshener, this lemon lotion helps the natural "flaking" process of skin cells which have outgrown their usefulness. It gently coaxes away the old, clinging, complexion-dulling particles of scarf skin so that the new cells can take their place and a clear, youthful-looking complexion is revealed.

Women all over the world are now using this Lemon Jelvyn Skin Freshener to aid in stimulating the circulation, relaxing the muscles of the face and neck and waking the skin into tingling life. Lemon Jelvyn Skin Freshener encourages the melting out of clogging grime and impurities that cause blemishes and sallow complexions, and improves the balance of acid-and-alkali on the skin, which makes all the difference to flawless skin beauty.

Pressed gently to the pores on a cotton pad, the cool Lemon Jelvyn Skin Freshener will quickly remove beauty-robbing intermixtures of oil, perspiration, dust and cosmetic particles, yet its most revolutionary beauty benefit remains the ease with which it sweeps away those billions of little scales your skin sheds every day.

Lemon Jelvyn Skin Freshener is available in major countries throughout the world. In America it is obtainable through druggists and is acknowledged as one of the finest methods to create a wonderfully constant standard of youthful skin freshness and radiance on the complexion. It is also recommended to help improve the appearance of blemished sallowed hands and necks, quell a greasy nose, or, brushed on the hair after a shampoo, to promote a lovely sheen and sparkling highlights.

Hints To Bring Beauty To Your Complexion

Complexions with an oily character quickly respond to a daily lemon-toning treatment. Every time the accumulated oil is removed off the top layer of the skin with Lemon Jelvyn Skin Freshener, the glands can continue to function and release fresh oils to the surface of the skin because the ducts are kept open.

My Favorite Jokes
by Alan King

EDITOR'S NOTE: Alan King started entertaining when he was 12, singing for pennies in the backyards of Brooklyn. Now he is one of the most popular comedians in the U.S.—he does his own specials for NBC-TV and is a headliner at The Sands in Las Vegas. King, who appeared with Judy Garland in her legendary Palace Theatre engagement in New York, has since become a British favorite and numbers Queen Elizabeth II among his fans. A multimedia entertainer, he is constantly expanding his comic undertakings; is the author of two books and is producing his first film, An Eskimo Named Joe Siegelman.

King lives in Kings Point, N.Y., with his wife Jeannette and their three children, and is now busy collecting funds for his "project of love," the Alan King Medical Center in Jerusalem.

Herewith some of his favorite jokes:

An alleged high jumper on a college track team was so bad it was said he could hardly clear his throat.

A mother was asked if her son studied medicine as she had always planned for him to do. "Oh, no," she replied, "he's a specialist!"

A very pretty little girl was being wheeled in a stroller at a chic resort hotel by her indulgent grandmother. "How old is she?" asked an admiring passerby. "Two years old," replied the proud grandmother. "How sweet, does she walk yet?" "Thank heaven she doesn't have to!" was the haughty reply.

The best definition of an honest politician is one who when he is bought . . . stays bought.

A man was hesitant about going into a doctor's office for an examination. "What are you afraid of?" asked a friend. "Just look at that sign in the window," said the potential patient, "it says 9 to 1." "So what?" asked his friend. "So what?" exclaimed the patient, "I'm not taking a chance with those kind of odds!"

A young man serving his first term in a state legislature asked an "elder statesman" what a "renegade" in politics was. "A renegade, my boy," replied the veteran politico, "is a man who deserts our party to join the opposition." "Well then," said the young man, "what is a man who leaves his party and joins ours?" "A convert, my boy!" was the answer.

A patient who lived a long distance out in suburbia apologized to her doctor for having to drive out so far to make a house-call. "Perfectly all right, my dear," replied the doctor, "I have another call to make near here, so it's really killing two birds with one stone."

How about that recent mail strike, with men being drafted into the post office. During the strike, I had three cents due on a letter and a soldier with a bayonet came to collect.

The philosophy student had cornered a very pretty coed at a party and was, naturally enough, trying to impress her with his views on love, life, death, history, civilization and whatnot.

"For instance," he was saying, "one trouble with modern society is that we are too specialized. Now, I happen to have a good background in the liberal arts, but I must confess that I haven't the faintest idea of how TV works." "My goodness!" exclaimed the wide-eyed coed. "It's awful easy. You just turn the dials and it plays."

Are The Foods You Are Eating Today STARVING YOUR BRAIN?

Check the three vital symptoms below—and then read how ORDINARY FOODS—used in a new way—may actually be able to REFUEL your vital brain cells, ACTUALLY AVOID OR BANISH MANY KINDS OF MENTAL TROUBLE!

Yes, Dear Friend:

Please believe this—

The man or woman who is a "nervous wreck"—who is "torn apart" by anxiety and tension day after day—may actually be a victim of his own starved brain!

The man or woman who is plagued by a "fading memory" —who no longer can rely on his own good mind to feed back to him the vital information he must have—may also be a victim of that same starved brain.

And, most tragic of all, the man or woman who suffers from really drastic fatigue, depression, overwhelming fits of temper, and other signs of possible schizophrenia or paranoia or other mental disturbance—may also be a victim of his own starved brain!

And now every one of them can do something about it! Can fight that damaging BRAIN STARVATION with ORDINARY FOOD! Can do it in their OWN HOME—with nothing more than a few simple directions, and food you can get in any supermarket!

HIS MAY BE THE MOST CONTROVERSIAL BOOK YOU EVER READ!

For in it, a crusading judge opens an entire new vista of hope for the ill—especially for the mentally troubled—and strikes at the very roots of some orthodox beliefs about medicine.

Tom R. Blaine was a practicing attorney in 1920. He has been an Oklahoma state judge since 1942. He began to suspect that even many "insane" people, juvenile delinquents, and actual criminals were in trouble because they suffered from low blood sugar; that is, they simply were not getting enough food for their brains.

Working with physicians and laboratory men, he proved his theory and expanded it. The fact is that almost anyone, of any age, who suffers a lack of vitality, nagging ill-health, and flagging mental powers, may be a victim of low blood sugar. And the best, safest, easiest way to restore the normal content of sugar in the bloodstream is with food and food supplements—exactly as Judge Blaine describes in this trail-blazing book!

Try it at our risk, today!

What Doctors Discovered About The Vital Food Substance That Keeps Your Brain "On The Job".

What is this vital substance that is so absolutely necessary to your well-being? It is BLOOD SUGAR—your body's natural fuel—carried by your bloodstream to every gland and organ. And only recently have doctors discovered that millions of people have TOO LITTLE natural sugar in their blood!

Yes, if you feel that your brain is hampered in any of those three critical ways) or if a loved one shows signs of the mental trouble that strikes one family out of every three), your brain may not be receiving enough BLOOD SUGAR. So you are STARVING YOUR BRAIN no matter how well-balanced your diet seems to be!

Can You Restore The Blood-Sugar Balance Of Your Body— And So Restore The Vital Functions That Have Gone Wrong?

Yes, it is possible, practical and EASY in millions of cases! You are invited to send for the book that explains the simple method—a book you read without risk. In it, you are going to see, simply and clearly:

The precise kinds of ORDINARY FOOD, sometimes with a few vitamin "extras", that can restore health to many suffering minds, and has brought even the seemingly insane back to useful, happy living.

How the same ORDINARY FOOD also works wonders for such common ailments as headache, fatigue, irritability, memory lag, anxiety, depression.

How the same ORDINARY FOOD also refuels the entire body, to help you get into splendid youth-condition from head to toe.

Based On Years Of Breakthrough Medical Research!

Behind those statements stands the work of such physicians as Dr. Abram Hoffer and Dr. Joseph Tobin; Nobel Prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling; famed nutrition expert Judge Tom R. Blaine, and other researchers of equal stature. The entire book is the dedicated work of Judge Blaine, who has winnowed thousands of cases to help you see the nutrition cause of your own problems—and how a simple, pleasant way of eating may quickly help you banish troubles like these.

Are you depressed, nervous, unhappy? Read a doctor's story about a woman with marriage troubles who had been deeply depressed and miserable all her life. She got rid of her misery—thanks to simple changes in nutrition and a vitamin you can buy in any drugstore. (page 41)

Does any member of your family suffer from schizophrenia?

Read a letter from a young man who conquered schizophrenia—not through psychiatry—but through simple changes in nutrition. This letter also reveals significant food traps for schizophrenics. Even if you are not schizophrenic, avoiding these same food traps may make a priceless difference to your health and peace of mind. (page 104)

Do you suffer from gastro-intestinal sluggishness?

This (and scores of other common symptoms) can be a warning of blood-sugar deficiency. Read about a simple food supplement that is known by several names. Get it by any name! See how it aids the entire gastro-intestinal tonus. (page 156)

Extra added bonus—

Have you had, or are you threatened by heart failure or stroke?

See why your present meals may contain a "heart mistake" food that nobody ever warned you about before. And why you may be avoiding a delicious type of food that should not bother your heart in the least! (page 126)

Why Did It Take So Long To Discover The Importance Of The Natural Brain-Food Diet In Both Mental And Physical Health?

Because, as you will see in Judge Blaine's fascinating book, blood-sugar deficiency is the GREAT MASQUERADER. Your own doctor will confirm that people have been treated for years for other conditions (such as ulcers, arthritis, every kind of indigestion, exhaustion, blurred vision, paranoid delusion) before it was discovered that blood-sugar deficiency can masquerade as all these and many more!

Of course, there still are diehard medical men who go on treating symptoms instead of the basic causes of illness and debility. There still are drug companies who do not like to hear that the best medicine, in some cases, is food alone. There still are psychiatrists charging $50 an hour, for years of treatment—when a month of proper "brain-food" diet, costing no more than your ordinary diet, may do the job. (And a simple test, described in this book, can tell you unmistakably if you suffer from low blood sugar.)

So it took courage to write this book—the courage of a dedicated jurist and health researcher who says that WRONG NUTRITION dooms millions to misery; and that the right kind of "brain-food" nutrition can often lift such people onto a high new plane of mental balance, efficiency, and the kind of physical well-being that money cannot buy.

FIVE MINUTES THAT CAN CHANGE YOUR LIFE

The moment you receive Judge Blaine's easy-to-read book, turn to pages 37 and 38. In five minutes or less, read the MASTER FOOD-LIST for "brain-food" nutrition! Meats! Seafoods! Vegetables! Dairy products! Desserts! Drinks! The list will delight you—and so will the delicious, hearty meals you eat . . . plus special snacks between meals and at bedtime!

Also in this important book: FOOD SECRETS that brought a full recovery from symptoms of arthritis and senility—special FOOD SECRETS that make old age wait—FOOD SECRETS that help your eyes, help teeth and gums, help the skin to be firm and youthful—FOOD SECRETS that strengthen the entire system of adrenal glands—plus all the especially important FOOD SECRETS (so easy to follow!) that help to strengthen and tonic YOUR MIND, no matter how many years you have suffered!

HOW TO REDUCE How would you like to lose 25 pounds a year?

According to the Health Insurance Institute, it's a snap. Just add 30 minutes of moderate exercise to your daily routine. Of course, you must not eat more than you ordinarily would.

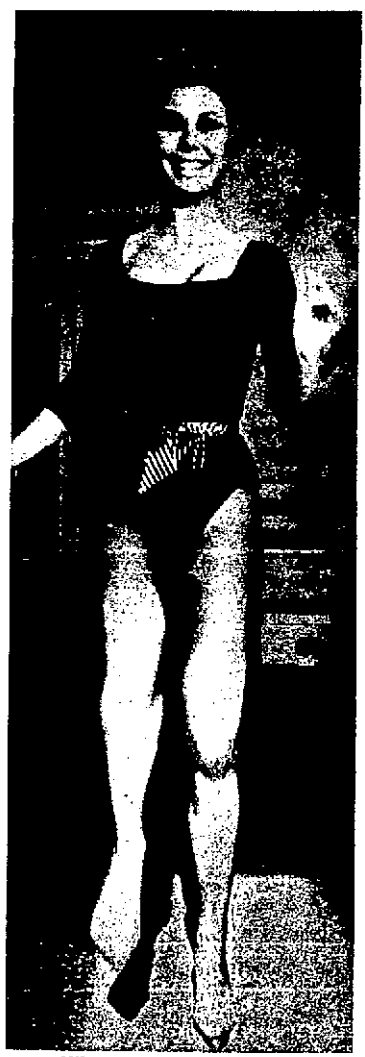

Without exercise, you will find that one soft drink a day or one cookie or one slice of bread or any food which contains as little as 100 calories, will increase your weight by up to 10 pounds per year.

Despite what many people think, exercise does not increase your appetite, and it doesn't have to be particularly strenuous to help you lose weight. The American Medical Association declares such assumptions are false.

Most people add weight as they grow older because their inactivity goes up, and their activity goes down. What activity is good for you? That depends upon your age, your physical condition, your background. Best you check with your physician before you begin your exercise program.

Herewith a list of how many calories various activities will burn up. The list was compiled at the University of Illinois department of physiology and biophysics.

ACTIVITY	CALORIES BURNED PER HOUR
Sleeping	80
Standing	140
Housework	180
Walking (2½ miles per hour)	210
Bicycling (5½ miles per hour)	210
Gardening	220
Lawn-mowing (power)	250
Lawn-mowing (hand)	270
Bowling	270
Swimming (¼ mile per hour)	300
Volley ball, square dancing, roller skating	350

LONG LIFE Want to live to a ripe old age? The British Medical Association, in a booklet entitled Sixty Plus, offers the following advice: Get married, eat sensibly, cut down on your drinking, take exercise, cultivate hobbies, continue your sex life until the end even if it involves nothing more than fondling and kissing.

The booklet points out among other things that the sages of China and India believed regular sexual activity was the spigot which turned on the fountain of youth; that married people tend to live longer than single; that married clergymen live longer than celibate Roman Catholic priests.

The booklet can be purchased for 25 cents from the British Medical Association, 47-51 Chalton Street, London N.W. 1, England.

CREDIT CARDS Are you receiving unsolicited credit cards in the mail? Oil companies, jewelry stores, clothing establishments--all types of businesses--have been sending them out. The Federal Trade Commission plans to ban all such unsolicited cards this month.

Be advised that if you sign or use any credit card sent to you in the mail, you most likely have entered into a contract and are responsible for all charges. If you haven't signed or used the card, you are not liable. Best procedure is to destroy such unsolicited cards immediately by scissoring them in half.

NUDE BATHING Twice a week the local authorities at Haffkrug-Scharbeutz on the German shores of the Baltic are permitting nude swimming. The only stipulation is that men and women must swim at different times.

FOR CHILDREN The U.S. public will most probably be taxed in the near future to provide enough money to reconstruct airports throughout the nation. Most likely is an airport use tax ranging from $1 to $3 on each overseas ticket.

In Europe several airports are equipped with nurseries and staffed with trained personnel who look after children while their parents are occupied shopping, phoning, and making travel arrangements.

In the Frankfurt, West Germany, airport last year, six nurses looked after 14,374 tiny passengers in nurseries equipped with toys, children's furniture, children's restrooms as well as comfortable armchairs for attending parents.

The idea is worth copying in this country.

REVERSE BRAIN DRAIN British scientists, who a few years ago emigrated to the U.S., are beating a hasty retreat to England. According to Minister of Technology Wedgwood Benn, "There is no shortage of scientists in Great Britain. We have been flooded with applicants back from America, and thousands more are being turned out by the universities and technical colleges."

Most of the returning British scientists lost their jobs because of sharp cuts in U.S. defense plants, especially in the aerospace programs in California.

RADIO FREE EUROPE West Germany's Chancellor Willy Brandt wants very much to improve relations between his country and East Germany. One of East Germany's primary demands is that Brandt throw Radio Free Europe out of its headquarters in Munich.

Radio Free Europe, organized by the U.S.A. in 1945 and ever since financed by us, employs 1800 people. Their job is to prepare and transmit radio broadcasts to Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania, Hungary, and Bulgaria. For the most part Radio Free Europe tells the truth, which is most disturbing to Communist nations.

If Brandt goes along with the demand and asks Radio Free Europe to move, most likely it will transfer its operations base from Munich to Ankara, Turkey.

You are invited to reserve now the first wristwatch to approach total perfection!

NOW—LONGINES QUARTZ WATCHES ... more accurate than the Sun itself!

For the first time in history—wristwatches so precise you can time a moon-shot. More reliable...more accurate than springs...than tuning forks...elegant and modern as tomorrow.

LONGINES—for more than a century, maker of the World's Most Honored Watch, now offers the practical scientific time standard of the world, reduced to a compact size so that at last true accuracy is possible in a fine wristwatch!

THE LONGINES QUARTZ watches are capable of accuracy better than one part in 432,000...the equivalent of less than a 59-second variation over a full 300 days. An achievement that challenges the imagination!

THE HEART OF THE LONGINES QUARTZ watches is a wafer of crystal quartz that vibrates on a sub-molecular basis, the same kind of crystal that locks radar on a satellite. Using sub-miniaturized transistor, diodes and circuits, this invisible, silent motion is transformed into energy to drive the hands of your watch!

A scant ten years ago it would have required a generous-sized shoebox to house the components of a LONGINES QUARTZ watch—a triumph of miniaturization has resulted in this astonishing achievement. Time standards at astronomical observatories need not exceed the accuracy of which the LONGINES QUARTZ watch is capable. It meets all the requirements of precise surface, air and transplanetary navigation.

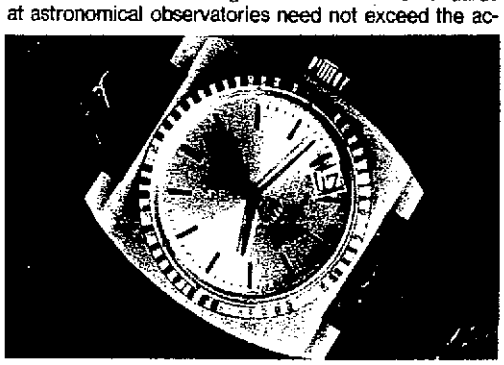

ACCURACY BEYOND LOGIC—is only half the story. To house this scientific masterpiece, the jeweler craftsmen at Longines have created a new measure of elegance. Housed in solid 18-Karat gold or battleship-strong steel—to identify the avant-garde of time-keeping. For the man to whom time represents successful precision in business and social life.

Only a limited series of these watches will be available during the next 12 months. Those who reserve now will receive the first released—the case will be engraved with serial number and owner's name. The LONGINES QUARTZ watch is priced from $850 to $1,000, with 18K bracelet models somewhat higher. To reserve your LONGINES QUARTZ watch, simply fill in the coupon below and take it to your Longines-Wittnauer authorized jeweler. If you prefer, you may simply mail it directly to the address shown below. We will arrange all details with your authorized jeweler, and send you a complete copy. Please include check or money-order for $100 as a good-faith deposit.

Here are the features of every exciting new LONGINES QUARTZ watch:

1. Accuracy to plus or minus 59 seconds in 300 days—adjusted to your wrist, regardless of your basic body chemistry or occupation.
2. Distinguished and impressive styling, as exciting as tomorrow.
3. Engraved with the serial number and your name for lasting historic value.
4. Lifetime parts service—parts guaranteed to be available during your entire lifetime or your LONGINES QUARTZ will be replaced without question or quibble.

THE QUARTZ CLOCK is the proud parent of the new LONGINES QUARTZ wristwatch. The practical standard of true accuracy in the scientific world is the quartz crystal—heart of the new LONGINES QUARTZ. From the timing of solar eclipses to the departures of moon-bound rockets, the quartz crystal is accepted through the scientific world as the most accurate practical timing device. The LONGINES QUARTZ watch is capable of astronomical observatory accuracy that varies a mere plus or minus 59 seconds a year—actually more accurate than the apparent sun itself!

However, if the gift cannot wait—ask your Longines-Wittnauer jeweler about the world's most accurate conventional wristwatch...the famed LONGINES ULTRA-CHRON!

Offered in a series of 18 magnificent models, the self-winding LONGINES ULTRA-CHRON represents the ultimate evolution in wristwatch timekeeping.

A fast-pulsed wristwatch that splits the second into twice as many measuring units as an ordinary timekeeper. Accuracy that is adjustable to within 59 seconds (plus or minus) every 30 days—without gadgetry, batteries or mechanical tuning forks.

The LONGINES ULTRA-CHRON illustrated is just one of the models available right now, each magnificently styled, each the proud bearer of the Longines heritage of over a century of progress in engineering design and fashion styling, which has won for Longines 10 World's Fair Grand Prizes, 28 Gold Medals, plus countless observatory honors for accuracy and dependability.

Stuart Altman of the President's Commission on an All-Volunteer Armed Force urges that Americans educate themselves by studying its report.

A Volunteer Army Is Up to You

by David Detweiler

PROVIDENCE, R.I.

Should we end the draft? President Nixon says yes. So, according to a recent survey, do 52 percent of Americans. So does the President's Commission on an All-Volunteer Armed Force, which has recommended ending the draft by July of 1971. But a top researcher for that commission is worried that skepticism among some citizens and Congressmen may kill the proposal.

"The objections to an all-volunteer army are superficial and emotional," says Dr. Stuart H. Altman, professor of economics at Brown University and a co-director of research for the President's commission. "If people would just familiarize themselves with the commission's report, I know they'd be much more in favor of ending the draft."

Altman, with experience as an economic consultant on two previous Federal draft studies, answered for PARADE some of the common objections to an all-volunteer force:

It will cost too much. The commission estimates that to achieve an all-volunteer force by July, 1971, will add only $2.7 billion to the defense budget instead of the 5 to 8 billion originally estimated in a 1966 Johnson Administration report.

"The military is very inefficient," says the 32-year-old economist. "They get men cheap, so they'd rather have a job done by ten men than by one expensive machine. When men start costing more, you'll find the military starting to think about buying that machine."

Not enough people will volunteer. Our present military forces comprise more than 3 million men. From extensive surveys the commission has shown that to maintain an all-volunteer force of 2.5 million men (a figure based on Government planning for the future) would require an increase of 75,000 volunteers per year.

Pay inducement

The military now pays the average enlistee about 60 percent of what he could be making in civilian life. Altman says that the needed 75,000 men could be induced to volunteer by improving pay and service conditions.

"Also, if you have a career-oriented force," he adds, "the turnover is reduced and you don't have to train so many people. Therefore you don't need so many trainers, and you can have more men 'militarily effective.' "

An all-volunteer military would be predominantly black. "That possibility is more likely with the present system," says Altman. "The Army is now enlisting a lot of underprivileged people, many of them black, who can't land a job anywhere else. If the pay were higher, these underprivileged people would have to start competing against better qualified volunteers. At the same time, the civilian business world has recently begun to give blacks an increasing opportunity to get better jobs. It's all evening out."

The 'elite' bugaboo

America will end up with a powerful, independent military elite.

"This is unfounded," Altman insists. "For one thing, the people who run the Army—the officers—are volunteers and usually career-men anyway. Furthermore, look at the Latin American and other countries where the military always seems to be taking over. You'll find the great majority of nations that have had coups, like Greece and Brazil, have also had a draft-conscripted army."

Every young man has a patriotic duty to serve his country, so he should be exposed to a draft.

"The draft has required college graduates to perform contortions with their lives," says Dr. Altman. "They scramble to get into the Reserves, enter deferred occupations, get married and have children, or do extended graduate work to avoid the military. We face a surplus of Ph.D.'s now in almost all areas. The draft has forced this over-education of a large segment of society."

Dr. Altman sees the draft as an inequitable burden on the draftees, who are required to serve against their will, at very low pay. If Army recruiters would follow the law of supply and demand, he reasons, then they would have to pay wages high enough to attract the number of men they need.

Optimistic on chances

Altman is optimistic about eventual chances for an all-volunteer army. "The White House team currently studying the commission's proposal is headed by an avid all-volunteer man," says Altman. "Nixon's choice of him was no accident. I bet that by early summer the President has a favorable proposal ready for Congress.

"The two prerequisites for implementing an all-volunteer military," says Altman, "are the continuing reduction of our presence in Vietnam and education of the public about the proposal. When it becomes a bill before Congress, we may need a good deal of public pressure to get it passed. This puts a responsibility on every citizen to acquaint himself with the commission's report (which you can order for $1.25 from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402) and let his Congressman know how he feels about it."

Dog missing?

Is your pet missing the extra vitamins and minerals that Perviral® provides? Sure, you feed him well, but just like some humans, your dog may need a dietary supplement.

He'll like the taste (tablet, liquid or powder) and you'll like the results. Good nutrition is essential for sleek coat, sound bones and teeth, resistance to d sease, good nerve and muscle coordination, proper digestion and elimination.

If you love him you'll add Perviral to his feeding just as breeders and professional handlers have been doing for years. Available at Pet Shops and Pet Departments.

There may be a few other disability income policies that can pay you up to when you're sick or hurt and can't work...

$1,000.00 a Month

But, feature for feature, there isn't any other individual health insurance policy that gives you more for your money than Mutual of Omaha's "Paycheck Protection"!

This is the kind of policy you should have!

As the family breadwinner, you select the amount you qualify for (from $100.00 to $1,000.00 a month) to help take care of your regular living expenses when you are unable to work because of sickness or accident. These Mutual of Omaha "paychecks" are tax-free to spend as you wish—to buy groceries, to pay rent, the utilities, and other living expenses. Monthly "paycheck" benefits are payable for disabilities that start before retirement—monthly in-hospital benefits are payable for disabilities that start after retirement. Does not cover: losses caused by war or military service; childbirth, pregnancy or complications resulting from pregnancy. For free facts, just mail the post free reply card.

SAVE UP TO 54%

If your family is protected by short term "sick leave" or group insurance where you work, you can have your Mutual of Omaha "paychecks" start after those benefits have been used up. By doing this, you save up to 54%, depending on your age, occupation and the plan you qualify for. Mail the post free card or the coupon below now.

Free Facts about how you can get more for your money

Mutual of Omaha will furnish free facts about its low-cost health insurance plans for young and old and the full range of fine family plans to meet your life insurance needs now available from its affiliated company, United of Omaha. You'll find a low-cost packaged program of health and life insurance in the great Omaha Companies tradition. Full information is yours without obligation. Use the post free card or the coupon below.

Mutual of Omaha Insurance Company is licensed throughout the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Panama, and Puerto Rico. Listen to Bob Considine on NBC's "Monitor." See "Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom" on NBC-TV, Sundays.

Mutual of Omaha Life Insurance Affiliate: United of Omaha

SEVEN REASONS WHY THIS MUTUAL OF OMAHA POLICY PROTECTS YOU BETTER.

1. Pays you up to $1,000.00 a month— tax-free to spend as you please—when you are sick or hurt and can't work!
2. Covers you both in and out of the hospital!
3. Covers accidents occurring and sickness contracted after the policy date. There are no waiting periods!
4. Covers mental disorders the same as any other sickness!
5. Covers you as a passenger on any kind of aircraft—even a private plane!
6. Covers you on or off the job. Pays in addition to workmen's compensation or employer's liability!
7. Guaranteed renewable for life! Only you can cancel this policy. Even your premium can't be changed unless changed for all policies of this form issued to persons of the same classification in your state.

Little Orphan Annie

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT, OLIVER — THE NATHAN HALE WILL REVOLUTIONIZE THE STRATEGY OF KEEPING THE PEACE ON A WORLDWIDE BASIS!

THAT WAS OUR INTENTION, ADMIRAL!

"HE WHO HAS NEVER HOPED CAN NEVER DESPAIR" — G.B. SHAW

WHILE THE SEARCH FOR ANNIE CONTINUES, OLIVER WARBUCKS IS DEMONSTRATING THE AMAZING QUALITIES OF THE INVISIBLE SHIP, THE "NATHAN HALE," TO TOP GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS...

TRAVELING AT A SPEED OF 100 KNOTS PER HOUR, OUR SHIP IS WELL OUT TO SEA, GENTLEMEN, COMPLETELY CONTROLLED BY THIS INSTRUMENT BOARD!

NOT ONLY INVISIBLE, BUT UNDETECTABLE BY ANY KNOWN DEVICE!

MEANWHILE, ANNIE CONTINUES HER SEARCH ON THE GIANT SHIP, SEEKING SOME WAY TO ATTAIN THE UPPER DECK...

IF THERE WAS ONLY SOME WAY O' LETTING "DADDY" KNOW THAT WE'RE SAFE AN' SOUND, SANDY! HE PROB'BLY THINKS WE HIT THE WATER, SAME AS HIM AN' PUNJAB, WHEN THE BOMB WENT OFF!

I FIGGER IT HAD T' BE A KINDA NERVE GAS SOME GOONS EXPLODED JUST AS WE WERE CLIMBIN' ABOARD THE 'COPTER — 'CAUSE IT DIDN'T 'ZACTLY KNOCK US OUT — JUST MADE US SORTA WEAK...

...AN' I'M BETTIN' "DADDY'S" GOT ZILLIONS O' GUYS BEATIN' THE BUSHES, TRYIN' T' LOCATE YOU AN' ME!

ALTHOUGH THE "NATHAN HALE" IS INVISIBLE, THIS IS HOW IT WOULD APPEAR TO SOMEONE WEARING "GAMMA GLASSES"...

FUNNY THING, THOUGH, SANDY — I GOT THE WEIRDEST FEELIN' THAT THERE'S SOMETHIN' ALIVE BESIDES US ON BOARD THIS SHIP... 'CEPT THAT "DADDY" SAID THERE WAS "NO LIVING SOUL ON THIS VESSEL"!

IF OUR INTELLIGENCE REPORTS ARE ACCURATE, CAPITALIST WARBUCKS' FANTASTIC SHIP IS WELL OUT AT SEA!

AND WE ARE TO ASSUME THAT THE CHILD ANNIE IS ON BOARD!! SHE WILL BE THE UNWITTING TOOL OF OUR GLORIOUS TRIUMPH, COMRADE!!

"DADDY" SURE THOUGHT OF EVERYTHIN', SANDY!! WHAT KIND OF KID WOULDN'T GO APE OVER ALL THEM TOYS AN' STUFF?! THIS SHIP IS KINDA LIKE A WHOLE SEA-GOIN' CITY!!

WE'VE COVERED EVERY INCH OF THE SURROUNDING WOODS, MR. WARBUCKS, AND SO FAR... NOT A TRACE OF ANNIE!

KEEP UP THE SEARCH AROUND THE CLOCK, RANGER! ANNIE'S GOT TO BE SOMEPLACE AROUND!

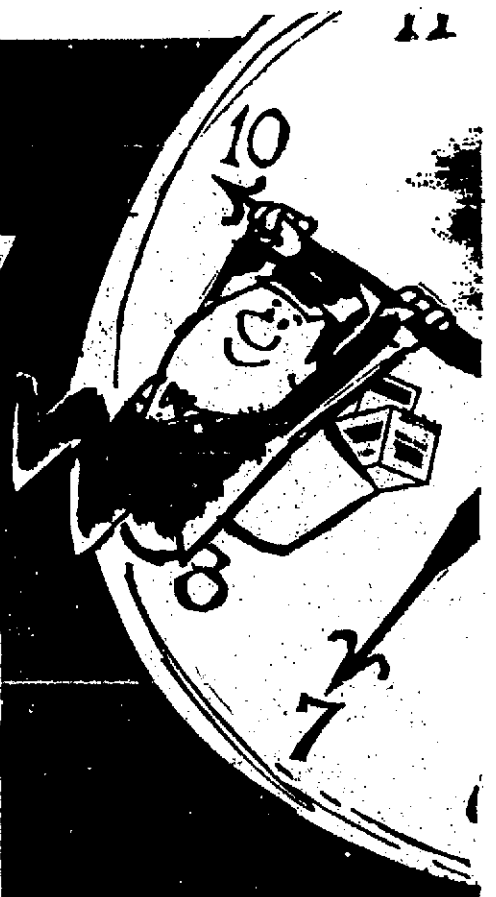

IF ANYTHING'S HAPPENED TO HER, THERE'LL BE NOTHING BUT THE TASTE OF ASHES IN MY MOUTH — NO MATTER HOW GLORIOUS A TRIUMPH THE NATHAN HALE TURNS OUT TO BE!

ANNIE LIVES, SAHIB! IN MY HEART AND IN MY SOUL AND IN MY MIND, I SENSE IT!

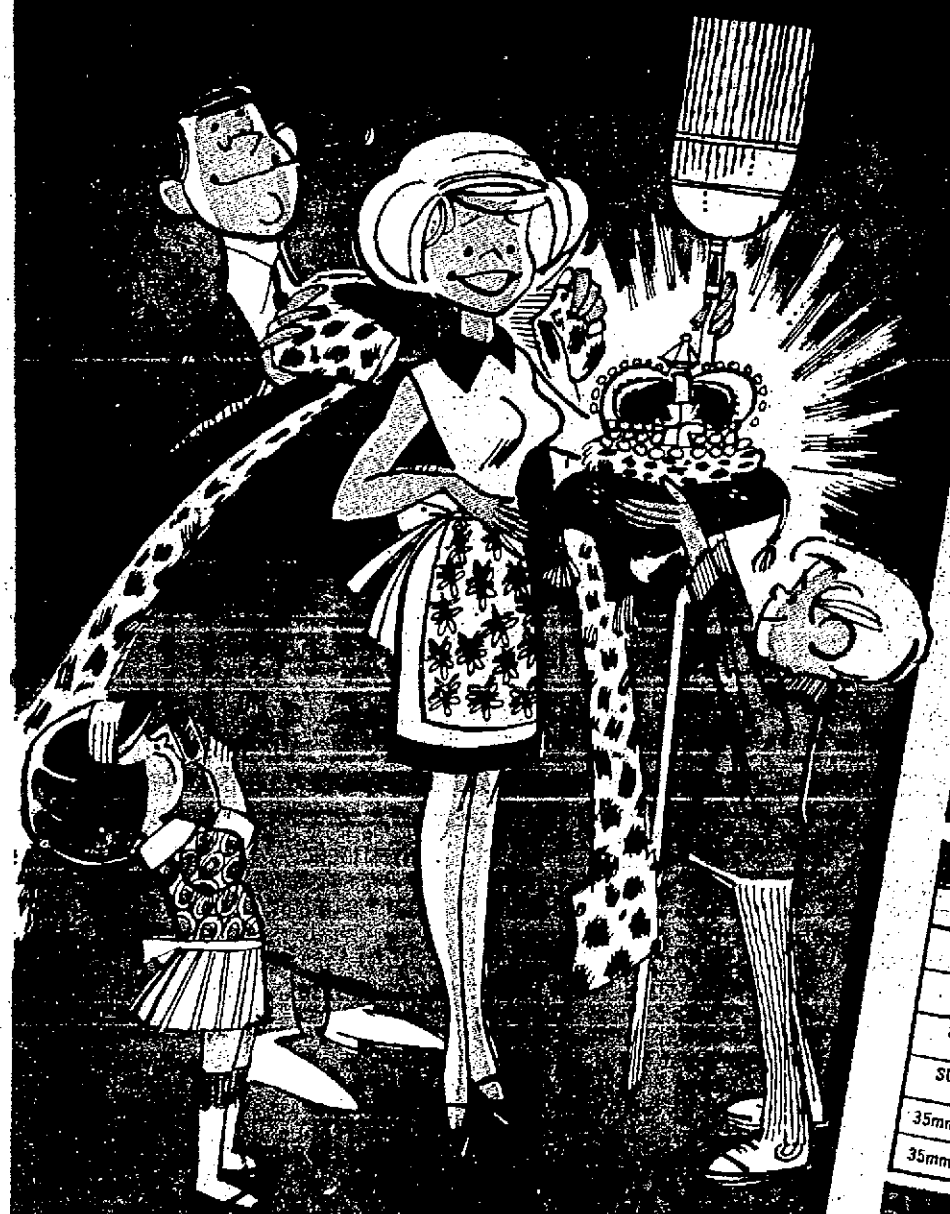

PRAY YOU'RE RIGHT, PUNJAB!
